Wing troupe to unfurl act

Take ten people, without props, costumes or scripts, relying only on their creative theatrical experience, and you have the Wing, a 12-member improvisation group who will perform Saturday, Nov. 7, in the Little Theater.

The Wing, the first performing group to consistently offer totally improvised theatre, is historically and traditionally linked to earlier groups which developed many of the principles of improvisation as a theatrical form. Such an area, the Wing holds open workshops. On tour, they frequently combine performances with workshop demonstrations for students and faculty.

The key to ensemble improvisation is that it is a group creation, in which the individual ego, the "star" concept, gives way to a mutual attitude of trust. Cooperative and support, in improvisation there are no stars. Each performer is important.

The Wing troupe, a self-contained improvisation group who will perform Saturday, Nov. 7, in the Little Theater, started as a club charter at Cal Poly's Drama Department, will speak on "Air Pollution and Man" at 11 a.m. today, Cota, said, can be adapted to the measurement of air pollution, thus opening vast new areas for investigation.

The conference is actually supported by a number of statewide organisations concerned with the possible development of a pollution science degree program in a California school, most likely the one this year.

Any analytical technique in use today, Cota said, can be adapted for application to the measurement of air pollution, thus opening vast new areas for investigation.

Judging contest

Bull team tops; cows run next

Two of this college's judging teams took high honors at the Intercollegiate judging contest staged at the Grand National Livestock Exposition in San Francisco last weekend.

The livestock judging team brought home the first place trophy while the dairy cattle counterpart finished second, outsored by Illinois State University.

Members of the dairy cattle judging team representing the college were Jim Davis, Ralph Groves, Frank Salas and Richard Dentler, and alternate.

Admission for a single performance will be $3 for adults, with a special rate of $1 for college and high school students with school identification cards. Children under 13 will be admitted for 50 cents.

Student sports

This campus in order to program activities with a high level of student participation, has a very effective Intramural program.

In addition to regular league play of popular seasonal sports, the Intramural Department, under the direction of coach Dick Haxton has added to its' program tournaments which are to be held on campus this fall.

These special tournaments have been added:

Water polo team will try for third straight victory

Coming off a two-game sweep in its trip to the Bay Area, the Mustang water polo team will try to extend its winning streak to the beginning of the season, as I'm sure that they will be much improved over the first time we played them,” said Greg Hind, assistant water polo coach.

Last weekend the Mustang polo team downed Santa Clara, 11-1, weight classes. But they went right ahead and opened their season two weeks ago against Cal State Long Beach. Unfortunately the lack of preparation hurt them and they fell 5-3 to the Tigers.

The boosters not to be discouraged, came back last weekend against Fresno State and the University of California at Los Angeles, but the more experienced

Soccer team loses three

The European version of football—soccer, which happens to be the most popular sport in the world, only four weeks ago did not exist on this campus. But thanks to a contribution of $2,000 from the athletic department, there is now a Mustang soccer team.

With only a short time to practice and prepare a schedule, things got pretty hectic for the soccer players. But they went right ahead and opened their season two weeks ago against Cal State Long Beach. Unfortunately the lack of preparation hurt them and they fell 5-3 to the Tigers.
