Three students in the Graphic Communications Department, along with the aid of the department's Poly Royal, have created a poster that will be used on two billboards north of San Luis Obispo to advertise the Poly Royal.

The three students, Tom T. Livingston, Vince Curtuciello and Joe Pulanco, designed the poster as part of a commercial illustration class. Small proofs were then distributed to various members of the printing industry, asking for sponsorships.

The billboards are located above Cuesta Park and in Paso Robles. They will be up for the entire month of April.

The added funds are needed to compensate for the cutback by Gov. Ronald Reagan in his proposed fee hike plan. As of now, the only recommendation which has been met with any favor by the Assembly Ways and Means Committee is the California State Legislature is the rating of student fees by approximately $70.00 for the 1971-72 academic year. If this raise should become a reality, student fees would increase from $61.00 to approximately $75.00 per quarter. If no other means of raising the needed funds is obtainable The EOP program would lose one half of its grant money which could mean one half of its student population. If the EOP program should be withdrawn from South Vietnam, the California State colleges would lose a substantial amount of its grant money which could mean one half of its student population. Students on EOP will not be here next year.

The students argued the restriction was unreasonable and violated their basic right to live as they see fit.
Movie industry trouble

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif., UPI — A sympathetic President Nixon met with leaders of the economically depressed film industry Monday, but he gave them little hope of concrete help.

The president talked with 22 motion picture producers and union heads at the Western White House before departing for Washington at 3:30 p.m. EST after a 1-hour adjourn here.

The delegation particularly sought Nixon's support for a measure now before Congress which would exclude 20 per cent of the gross receipts from a movie from tax, making producers more competitive with subsidised foreign films.

Charlton Heston, president of the Screen Actors Guild, said Nixon gave the group a "very warm and sympathetic hearing" but candidly told them the measure had little chance of passing this year.

A presidential aide said Nixon felt there would be no legislative relief this year, not because of lack of sympathy, but because the House Ways and Means Committee has indicated a "reluctance to make any change in the tax bill."

The President directed his staff, however, to study any executive action he could take to help the ailing industry, which is plagued with escalating cost and a dwindling share of the entertainment market.

Expert raps on religion

Expert raps on religion: Scholar raps "Collegiate exposition of Christianity before confrontation" last night in Face of Loma

Hanna, Lebanese-educated philosophy professor, discussed the role of religion and philosophy in society. He emphasized the importance of understanding religious and philosophical perspectives through empirical evidence and logical consistency.

His academic standing at the university won him a hearing from not only the sympathetic Christian churches of the Middle East, but also the not-so-symphathetic academic communities. After graduation, he travelled and lectured in the Middle East and North Africa.

Hanna earned two masters degrees at the University of Southern California—one in theology and another in philosophy. He went on to secure his doctorate and taught at USC for three years before coming to this college.

In connection with last night's confrontation topic, "Can a Thinking Man be a Christian?" Hanna cites the importance of rational argumentation in philosophy, including such criteria as logical consistency, empirical evidence, and pragmatic workability.

Just who placed fourth and fifth is still not very clear, but last Wednesday night the Student Judiciary awarded Tom Barnhart and Dave Macomber a fifth place trophy for a rally in which they participated over one year ago.

It seems that on February 30, 1970 the now disbanded Ralleymaster organization sponsored a rally entitled ELO Progress. On that day Barnhart and Macomber after completing the event, checked in with the ralleymaster, Doug Anderson and then departed for home.

A few days later as custom dictates, Barnhart received a notice from the Ralleymasters letting him know that he and Macomber had placed fourth in the rally and that they were to pick up their trophy at the next Ralleymaster meeting. But, when the two went to pick up their trophy they were informed that it had already been given away.

The two disillusioned rally kings went to several sequential Ralleymaster meetings in an attempt to find the whereabouts of the trophy. Hie money had been misplaced, a mistake and there would have been no way to determine who was to receive the money in the event of a tie. Since the money had been frozen, no one could be sure if it would entitle the two to a plaque instead of fourth in the rally.

It was finally decided by the Student Judiciary that the Ralleymasters were to provide Barnhart and Macomber with a fifth place trophy. The money was to come out of the Ralleymaster treasury of $79.50. Since the money had been frozen when the Ralleymasters disbanded, it was up to the Student Judiciary to obtain the needed funds for the trophy. Had there been no money in the treasury there would have been no trophy.

After the dictation was finally made, the only thing the two fifth place finishers had to worry about was which one of them was to get the trophy. Decisions, decisions.

Rap session planned for Cambria trip

Another Interdisciplinary Rap Session is being planned for the weekend of April 11-12 according to Dave Hafemelster of the Physics Department.

Hafemelster says a group of eight professors and 30 students will go to the YMCA Ocean Pines Camp in Cambria for the session. On past weekends the groups have communicated through informal discussions, family-style cooking, sports, role-playing, scenic-nature, and what-have-you, he said.

Interested students should fill out a form found outside Knapp's office in Science E-18. The cost will be 14 and those who are planning to attend must provide their own sleeping bags.

Meditation may be path for finding inner self

Meditation. Like to live life to its fullest, get rid of your hang-ups, and free yourself from stress and strain?

Walter Coke of the Santa Barbara Student International Meditation Society spoke in the College Union last Friday on the principles of transcendental meditation and the results of its practice.

According to Coke, T.M., as transcendental meditation is sometimes called, is a process, a technique, and a practice which is not only easy, but is natural and absolutely effortless. It is contacting the infinite reservoir of happiness, intelligence, and energy within and letting the mind come out infused with these qualities. It is a practice of finding the inner self which, in one way, can help a person enjoy his own religion better though it is not completely connected with religion. The search for greater happiness, and finding this goal is within every man. Coke explained, and when he draws from the reservoir, the mind becomes aware of an expanded level of intellect. Since the purpose of life is the expansion of happiness, the mind becomes more joyful, and therefore, according to Coke, "duty turns into joy and life is more rewarding and fulfilling."

When the ages of 18 to 31 have been reached, people should have found this happiness and should live it out to fulfillment, but they cannot because they are looking for it on a level where it doesn’t exist. According to Coke, man has three levels of intellect: an outer objective, which is the material field of nature; an inner subjective, which is what we perceive as emotion; and a transcendental field which is a source of thought deep within the mind. To reach this latent field, which is said to be 90 per cent of our mind, transcendental meditation is practiced.

Everyone has one common element, according to Maharishi Mahesh Yogi, the man who founded transcendental meditation, and that is that they want more happiness, satisfaction and fulfillment.

On April 16, another lecture will be given and those interested in T.M. can sign up for instruction that will be given during that weekend. The cost is a minimum donation of $8 for students and $15 for adults.

Coke advised that those interested in this practice should stay off drugs for two weeks prior to that time as it has been found that they tend to form a wall between the conscious and subconscious mind.

The Poultry Club will sponsor the Fourth Annual Poultry in Art Exhibition for this year’s Poly activities. The contest is open to the public with four general divisions with awards to the top place finishers. The four divisions are: elementary, infancy through 11 years old; intermediate, 12 to 18 years through high school; open, college age and up (except professional); and professional. It is open to those who earn their living from art, have won awards for their artwork, committed their lives to art, or have conducted one-man art shows.

According to Doug Tillman, there will be two categories—graphic arts and three-dimensional arts. First place winners from each division will receive a Showman Champion award in each category. He added that all entries must be completed since April 30, 1970.

Entries will be accepted from San Luis Obispo and Santa Barbara counties and must be submitted to the poultry unit egg house by Tuesday, April 30 at 5 p.m. All entries must depict domestic poultry in some form. For further information contact Tillman at 934-8007 or Mrs. Edith Barnes at 846-3487.

Open meeting set for April 15

Parking on campus, mass transportation, annexation of the college to the city, and campus problems and issues are being held at the meeting will be held on April 15 at 7 p.m. in the College Union multi-purpose room.

A panel of informed persons will be available at the meeting to discuss and answer questions on these topics. Members of the panel will include Douglas Gerard, executive dean of campus planning; Willy Mautner, architecture student who headed the student study of mass transportation, and representatives from the San Luis Obispo City Council, City Planning Commission, and Campus Housing Office. Free Robert E. Kennedy is also expected to attend the meeting. The panel will be chaired by Banks.

The "Open Meeting" series is being sponsored by a special committee of the Student Affairs Council which has been studying communications. The meetings are problem solving to give students and others an opportunity to discuss and learn about current problems and issues.

The committee plans to have at least two other meetings after today to discuss such topics as faculty promotion, retention and tenure decisions, student evaluation of faculty, accreditation, student housing, parking on campus, consent. They are exploring other means to improve communications and solve student problems and welcome suggestions and comments.

Supreme Court upholds 1968 Gun Control Act

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The Supreme Court Monday unanimously upheld the constitutional rights of two Californians charged with possessing unregistered hand grenades, also reversed a lower court's ruling that the indictment was ineffective because the accused did not know the weapons were not registered.

Justice William O. Douglas' written opinion in the case reinforced those grounds the law imposed on the accused' illegal lobbying against it in Congress requiring registration of automatic weapons, sawed-off shotguns, bombs and grenades and other explosive devices.

Speaking to a two-week recess, the Court ruled that mere possession of such weapons is not self-incriminating because it is the transferring party, not the recipient, who must register firearms and pay tax. And it said in the California case that not knowing the weapons were unregistered was no defense since the public could be expected to know grenades are illegal.

In a flurry of other actions before taking a two-week recess the Court:

-Left standing, on a deadlocked vote, previous decisions allowing federal agents to search a whole house when they make an arrest there, only the suspect's immediate surroundings.

-Refused to make retroactive a 1966 ruling that police can search a whole house when they make an arrest there, only the suspect's immediate surroundings.

-Refused, on a narrow legal point, to review the constitutionality of a 1970 California law providing that public school students may not be bused to class without written parental consent.

Election may split police three ways

Voters in Berkeley decided Tuesday if this city, birthplace of the Free Speech Movement and a hearth of anti-war activity, will have "the first revolutionary government in America."

On the ballot is a radical proposal to divide the police department into three segments -- control of the City Council. The move is taken seriously enough by Gov. Ronald Reagan and his aides who have remarked that "it can happen here."

The radical group, calling the April Coalition, is united behind former Berkeley city councilman Melton said he is "running to vindicate Charles Manson." Other mayoral candidates range from the Socialist Workers Party's Antonio Canseco to ultra-conservative Councilman John DeBonia. The strongest race for mayor is expected to happen between two black councilmen, Wilmot Eason and Warren Widner.

The Texas-born Skney is strongly against the police plan, saying "It's back in the ghettos, stay-in-your-place."

Preparations of the charter amendment say it would give citizens greater control of the police force. Black Representative Delmma D-Berkeley, has been in the forefront of the campaign for the plan.

Raid disclosed; weapons netted

Police Monday disclosed a raid on a radical headquarters and seizure of arms, explosives and communications equipment, including a typewriter stolen from the office of Defense Secretary Melvin Laird.

Four persons were arrested in the raid and held on suspicion of conspiracy and possession of explosives and stolen goods.

The raid was planned by poster-seeders of Mao Tse Tung, was uncovered last week by police attempting to track down 13 sticks of dynamite which had been sold in the Richmond area by Black Panther leader Bobby Seale, who is being tried in New Haven.

Operation sunshine turns marching lights on Jesus

A new kind of light will shine on San Luis Obispo tomorrow.

Operation Sunshine, a Compass Crusade for Christ will be hitting the switches for the first time Saturday at 6 p.m. on Main St at San Luis Obispo and--let's hope--will make people know that Jesus Christ is still around!" march at the corner of Marsh and Oso streets at 2:30 p.m.

"We are inviting everybody and anybody to march with us," says CCC staffer Larry Finch, who believes that there is more meaning to Easter than cute little bunnies.

Finch added that this will be part of a program of activities taking place throughout the community that will give people a chance to test the claims of Jesus Christ and how they relate to people today--two thousand years after his death.

The march culminates at Mitchell Park at 3:30 p.m. where the marchers and others interested will perform a rally, where singers and speakers will share what life is to them.
Marine released after Viet crime

PORTSMOUTH, N.H. UPI — Marine Pvt. Michael A. Schwartz of Weirton, W.Va., convicted of murdering 12 Vietnamese women and children near Da Nang in February 1968, was released Friday from the Portsmouth Naval Prison. Schwartz left the prison at 11:30 a.m., enroute to the Quantico, Va., Marine Corps base where he was due to report by noon Saturday.

Schwartz, who was a member of a five-man search and destroy patrol at the time of the incident, was originally sentenced to life imprisonment by a court-martial in Vietnam. That sentence was later reduced to one-year imprisonment, a dishonorable discharge, and loss of pay and allowances by the convening authority in Da Nang. Schwartz's sentence caused considerable reaction in the United States including several appeals to Marine Corps headquarters in Washington for the reduction.

Sharp Congress split on Nixon action with Calley

WASHINGTON UPI — Members of Congress, crossing party lines, split sharply Monday over the case of Lt. William E. Calley Jr. and President Nixon's plan to make the final decision on his punishment.

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott praised Nixon's announced intervention in the case, but his GOP colleague, Sen. Jacob J. Javits of New York, said Americans were wrongly being encouraged to honor the convicted murderer.

Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III, D-Ill., said if Calley is guilty of slaying South Vietnamese civilians at My Lai as the court martial determined, he "must pay the penalty."

In the House, Rep. Ed Edmondson, D-Okl., introduced a resolution calling on Congress to urge a full pardon for Calley, who was sentenced to life in prison.

Scott told reporters that Nixon, in deciding to intervene in the case, was acting within his authority as commander-in-chief of all U.S. military forces.

Nixon, said Scott, "intervened in response to enormous public reaction in the case ... There is nothing political contemplated in his ultimate review."

In a Senate speech, Javits defended the guilty verdict, contending the United States had told the world "we don't observe the good rule, treating Orientals as subhuman."

Javits said in the name of public opinion, he hoped the life sentence would be shortened.

Draft ceiling up but still lower than last year

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Selective Service System advised local draft boards Monday they may call up men with lottery numbers through No. 125 to replace draft quotas for the month of May.

The lottery "ceiling" number had been 100 for the first four months this year. Despite the increase, the ceiling still is running lower than last year, which stood at 140 for the month of May in 1970.

Selective Service Director Curtis W. Tartt also told local boards they may summon men with lottery No. 178 for preinduction physical examinations. The process ceiling for preinduction physicals had been No. 150.

The draft call for May previously was announced at 16,000. Draft calls for the first five months of this year total 83,000, compared with 84,800 last year.

Nobody wants Mafia's Joseph Valachi's body

Tex. UPI--When Joseph Valachi was alive, the Mafia was reported willing to pay $100,000 to see him dead. But now that Valachi is dead nobody seems to want him.

"Nobody has claimed the body yet," La Tuna federal prison warden William E. Zachem said Monday. "We are trying to find out where to ship him and we have two or three sources. But so far, we have been unable to get in touch with his family."

Valachi, who shook up the underworld in 1963 by testifying about the inner workings of the mafia, or La Cosa Nostra, died in La Tuna Saturday at the age of 66 of a heart attack.

The mob was reported to have put a $100,000 price tag on Valachi's head after his testimony. Valachi was a strong arm man for the mob most of his life until he was sentenced to federal prison on a narcotics conviction in 1958.

In 1962 he killed another prisoner he thought had a "contract" on his life. Convinced that the mob was determined to kill him, he testified. In return, the government protected him in prison all the rest of his life.

Zachem said Valachi had left a will and he had consulted the federal prison bureau's legal department in Washington about what to do with his personal effects.

Valachi had lived the last years of his life—he arrived at La Tuna in July, 1968 from a federal prison in Milan, Mich. quietly and mostly in a private room. He went out for sun and fresh air occasionally with a heavy guard about him.

"He had a buzz in his room," Zachem said. "He buzzed Saturday morning around 11:00. Our medical staff got right up there. I think he lasted about an hour."

An autopsy was performed in the prison. It determined that Valachi died of a coronary thrombosis.

The body then was taken to an El Paso undertaker, lest he be overwhelmed by persons wanting to see the body.

Chicago's Daley faces tight race

Mayor Richard J. Daley, leader of the nation's last great city political machine, coasted to the wire Monday while his Republican challenger, Richard Richard E. Friedman, turned on a hard-hitting four-hour series of campaign stops that was to carry the Mayor to victory over Daley's army of precinct workers.

An estimated one million voters will decide Tuesday who will give Daley, 68 and one of the most powerful Democrats in America, an unprecedented fifth consecutive four-year term or replace him with Friedman, 41, a Democrat turned Republican and crusading former head of the Better Government Association.

Friedman, on a marathon four-hour series of campaign stops that was to carry Daley to victory over Daley's army of precinct workers, Daley, was readying for the final 48 hours of his campaign. Friedman's latest poll of pollsters in his Chicago mayoral run.

Mustang baseball grabs 2 victories
by Mark Conley

San Diego State provides the next road block in what is turning out to be one of the finest Mustang seasons. The game is scheduled tomorrow at 3:15 on the Poly diamond.

Once again, Garlic’s diamond men came out on top in a crucial weekend series against San Fernando Valley State, winning two of three games. The Matadors now lead the CCAA championship last year and figured to win the league title this year having much of the same team returning. The one loss the Mustangs to the Matadors was the first in six meetings of the two teams.

It was the big inning that proved to be the turning point of Valley State. The first game saw the Mustangs putting together a five-run second inning that was enough to win. It was not all Mustang bats that did the damage as Valley State committed two errors to give the hosts runs.

Lathan Marsh started off the big inning. Howard Casay walked and Steve McFarland reached on an error that loaded the bases. Marsh and Casay scored when Dave Snow sliced a groundrule double past the left field fence.

It appeared that Matador Dale Morris might get out of the inning at this point as he got the next two Mustangs out. Bill Gary Knuckles grounded a shot that bounced over the shortstop’s shoulder and scored McFarland and Snow. Dave Kline tripped to score Knuckles and the final run. It was the only inning that the Mustangs scored while Valley State got its lone run in the third to make the final score 1-0.

The Mustangs waited until the fourth inning of the second game to explode on a run to a 4-2 lead. Valley State used the long ball in gaining its two runs, the second tying the game momentarily at two apiece before the Mustang’s big fourth.

Snow singled to lead off the fourth but was forced at second by Dennis Wallin. Alan Noble and Knuckles walked to load the bases. Dave Oliver and Marsh followed with singles to drive in one run apiece and leave the bases loaded. The big blow came when McFarland blasted a three-run double to put the finishing touches on a big victory.

Valley State had to shutout the Mustangs in the first game of the twin bill to gain its first victory of the year against the Mustangs. The Mustang league record stands at 6-3, three victories of which have come against the defending national champion Matadors. They have an over all record of 25-7.

This year’s team has already broken one school record for wins in one season, the old mark being 30 wins. But the team figures to win many more as it has 36 games remaining on its schedule.
