Films depict music, war and Angela

Students for New Action Politics (SNAP) is sponsoring a series of films, according to the club's president Raymond DeGroote, that is an effort to "improve awareness of area people." The first film, "In the Year of the Pig," will be shown April 14. It is produced by Emile de Antonio and according to a release that describes the film, is a "swamping historical analysis and judgement against U. S. involvement in Vietnam."

The second film is to screen on the 22nd of April, is "The Devil For the Devil," a sort of "documentary type," DeGroote said, of the Rolling Stones.

The last film to be shown will be "Angela." It will be offered on April 28. It is an interview with black militant Angela Davis by people from Harlem while she was in jail in New York awaiting extradition. Miss Davis currently is in jail facing conspiracy charges in the murder of a San Rafael judge.

DeGroote said that individuals can purchase a $1.50 ticket, which would admit one to all three films, or buy a one dollar ticket before each movie. The films will be shown in the multi-purpose room of the College Union. Doors will open at 7:00 p.m. and the movies will start at 7:10 p.m.

Manson faces another charge

UPI—A Judge Monday rejected defense motions to try to separate two more murder cases in which Charles Manson and his followers are charged.

Superior Court Judge Raymond Chase ruled that Manson, convicted of masterminding the Sharon Tate and LaBianca slayings, and the others would be tried together for the other killings.

Manson, 26; Susan Atkins, 22; Bruce Davis, 27; and Stephen Grogan, 19, will go to trial May 2. The victims in the cases were Gary Hinman, a bop musician, and Donald "Robby" Shee, a ranch hand and part-time stuntman.

Manson and Davis are charged with both slayings, Miss Atkins is accused in the Hinman killing and Grogan in the Shee murder.

Attorneys for Manson and Miss Atkins entered "nurse in jeopardy" pleas in the Hinman case and to a count of conspiracy involving the slaying.

They contended that each has been placed in jeopardy because the Tate trial judge, Charles H. Older, gave that jury instructions buying in the Hinman slaying.

Council accepts center

Another step was taken towards obtaining a community recreation and education facility within the future site of Meadow Park.

Monday night the City Council agreed to donate the use of one acre, located on the corner of Meadow St. and South St., for the establishment of a community center.

The council will be housed in a building purchased from the San Luis Obispo Coastal Unified School District for a price of between $80,000 and $100,000. A contract was made for a community center.

Mr. Maxine Lewia, Grassroots community aide, told the council that total costs and plans for the center will be presented to them upon their completion. She went on to say that total costs would be held at a minimum by the utilization of volunteer help from several groups including architecture students from this college, contractors, and families from the Hawthorne District. The Council held off on appropriating any funds for the project until an estimate of the total costs is presented to them.

Mrs. Lewia said the recreation and education center would first of all to meet city building codes and then they could begin to plan activities for its utilization.

Berkeley voters turned out in record numbers to vote on four city council seats, a mayor and a new structuring of the police department.

Record turnout in Berkeley election

The Coalition, whose platform also includes city-operated day care centers and tax reform aimed at the rich, has to win the four council seats to gain control.

Police Chief Bruce Baker predicted that 80 percent of the city's 30,000 men forces would refuse if the police plan were approved.

Even the method of tabulating the vote became a controversy on the eve of the election. The Coalition protested the counting of ballots by the city's main data processing machine, located in the same building that houses police headquarters.

Mr. Davis said that the vote on the community center would be redetermined and a new vote on the police building, said Coalition spokesman Lee Cee.

After the meeting Mrs. Lewia said, "They gave us our first step towards reconstructing the building and bringing it up to the city-code— a building that anyone would be proud of."

Vandals slaughter 90-year old tree

Who chopped down our Washington Robusta? Students are eager to keep their eyes peeled for an axe and the owner who was in the vicinity of Mustang Stadium and the school's prize Washington Robusta on California St.

Here are the facts: It happened last Tuesday or Wednesday while most of us were gone for the break. It was not done by an amateur. Authorities noted the expertise involved in the axe marks. Please note: it was no rookie. Known to most as a fan palm the tree once stood "77" on the western rim of our campus. Fan was over 90 years old. Students who know more are asked to report information to the Grounds Department. It is true the tree may never grow again. That is true. But a slow must be struck for law and order and other Washington Robustas.

The utility companies keep telling us how new sources for future energy consumption are needed, and of the impending doom of power brown-outs and the such if future power needs are not fulfilled.

We build generators which belch more waste than our project. Hydroelectric dams do not work; they cause flooding of valuable plant which destroys the environment. The same people who bring us the electricity do not care. They destroy the environment. The same people who bring us the electricity should ensure that this valuable resource is not wasted.

Iranians hit home political

Editor:
On March 18 the International Press announced that 31 people had been executed in Iran in the last months. This does not seem to be a drastic step to reduce the number of people in the country. It is obvious to any Aggie moron that you have no qualms about the fact that you are killing people.

We are providing this handy-dandy letter-to-the-editor form. You should clip it and save it for future complaints. You may want to let us have it.

To the Editor:
Your editorial on was greatly inaccurate, biased, inflammatory and just plain rotten.

It is obvious to any Aggie moron that you have no facts on how to use less electricity. While this ad has flaws, It is a good start in creating educated, conservation-minded consumers of our limited power supplies. While this ad, which appeared in the Los Angeles Times, is an important first step, they could have gone further and urged people not to buy the unnecessary appliances, where power-intensive products can work just as well, but does not waste electricity, which in turn requires more power plants which destroy the environment. I sincerely hope that PG & E will join Southern California Edison and do its part to encourage wise use of electricity.

The resources which we use are very limited, and wasteful consumption results in the needless degradation of the environment. The same people who bring us the electricity should demonstrate to us how to conserve it.

Stenner Glen

TO: STUDENTS AT CAL POLY
RE: LIVING AT STENNER GLEN

LOCATION: You will live at the edge of campus just a few minutes walk from classes.

ACCOMMODATIONS: You may have a single or double bedroom/study. All rooms are equipped with an air-conditioned, carpeted, quiet and well furnished, and all suites have refrigerators.

FOOD: You will always have a choice of two or three main dishes at each meal (Including steak at least once a week). You can eat all you want. Service is quick and convenient buffet style in a carpeted dining room.

LIVING STYLE: The community is co-ed and each student's living space is respected as his own. Each person can choose the combination of privacy and involvement that suits his or her needs.

RECREATION: There is a swimming pool, sauna, rec room with billiards and ping pong, color television, weekend trips, parties, dances, movies, concerts, lectures and a lot of disorganized fun.

STAFF: A professional Student Affairs Director and Student Staff are available to assist the residents in using available resources for solving personal or educational problems. Group counseling is usually available in the residence hall. The staff provides program assistance to the community.

COST: The rates for accommodations, the use of all recreational and support services and prepared meals begin at $155.00 a month. You might save a few dollars by living in a dormitory, but you would probably sacrifice some privacy and fun. You could save a few more dollars by living in an apartment, but first consider the hours of cooking, shopping, and cleaning. Why not get the advantages of both and eliminate the problems?

Hazy future for smoke: majority agree to hazard

By Delos Smith

A rapidly increasing proportion of the United States population favors an absolute prohibition on the sale of cigarettes, the chief statistical crusader against smoking said Tuesday.

Between 1966 and 1970 the proportion jumped a spectacular 15 percentage points, from 33 to 48 per cent, according to Dr. Daniel Horn, director of the federal government's National Clearing House for Smoking and Health.

Furthermore, he said, there now is a majority 58 per cent in favor of a ban on all cigarette commercials on television in 1966-70, showing of antismoking commercials, and 88 per cent In proportion jumped a spectacular 15 percentage points, from 33 to 48 per cent, according to Dr. Daniel Horn, director of the federal government's National Clearing House for Smoking and Health.

That is a jump of 10 percentage points since 1966 and it "is remarkable and I'm sure the bulk of the reason was the widespread mericann's to talk about pollution

Capitol conglomeration

Sacramento, the focal point of California legislature, has long been a center for political activism. People have been demonstrating for years in back of the capitol for various causes.

On a recent trip to Sacramento, Editor Frank Alderete and Staffer Micky Hinkle, both armed with cameras, encountered a situation not usual for a state capitol: simultaneous demonstrations, each at the extreme end of the political spectrum, one in front of the capitol, one in back.

In the front of the capitol was a march against unemployment. Several different groups were represented: Communists, Socialists, Farm Workers, Black Panthers and even a representative of a Oakland High School who was there to protest the current job situation.

Not more than one hundred yards away, in the back of the capitol, was the other end of the political maelstrom: the Patriots Victory Committee, calling for a victory in Vietnam and haranguing "them dirty hippie pinkos." The P.V.C., pulled in about 350 people, also had other factions present— the American Legion and several church groups.

Both demonstrations were nation-wide that day. Both were peaceful past the point of the usual heated rhetoric.

Placards were the most graphic expression of political thought. This man, who was upset at the current police situation had his opinion on what to do with them, he was at the front of the capitol...

While these people, sporting several signs, Vietnam War, they were at the back of the had several attitudes about how to solve the capitol.

Some people who were In front of the capitol made a paper mache of Gov. Ronald Reagan and eventually used it in a play that was a satire on government, both state end federal.

After speeches in front of the capitol, which were in English and Spanish, had ended, the people took to the street and marched up the road directly in front of the capitol. No traffic was impaired as two motorcycle-mounted police cleared the way ahead.
Faces of dissent

On either side of the building were those who were a little more expressive, each in their own way, of the day’s activities. While circulating back and forth between the two different demonstrations, it was found that either side made no recognition of the other even being there.

“Power to the people! Power to the people! Power to the people!”

Fraternity recognized

Alpha Epsilon Pi, a social fraternity which encourages male student involvement in the school and community, has become the fourth such organization to be recognized by the college. Approval of the organization’s code and bylaws by Student Affairs Council and Pres. Robert E. Kennedy was necessary before official recognition was possible.

“We seek to provide an atmosphere for men to establish leadership abilities and cooperation in working with others,” Sachs said. The fraternity is involved in sports, exchanges with other fraternities, parties, off-campus fund-raising, and helping each other study, he added.

The fraternity will hold a question and answer rush meeting tonight at 8:00 in Room 511 of the College Union Building. This quarter’s rush will be continuous, Sachs said, and any man interested may come by the fraternity house.

Spikesters home for tri-meet duel

Area fans will have their only chance to see the national champion Mustang track team in action this weekend in a triangular meet on the Mustang's all weather track. The Mustangs are to host Cal Poly Pomona and Cal State, Los Angeles, beginning at 11 A.M.

This meet will give fans to see such standouts as Olympic high jumper Reynaldo Brown and sprinting ace Bobby Turner. Also to be featured will be Mehinder Gill, the Mustang's shot putter and long jumper in his last season of competition.

The Mustang track squad brought home the glory but left the marbles last Saturday, finishing second in a triangular meet to the Titans of Fullerton State, who rolled up 86 points to Poly's 76. San Fernando Valley State was a distant third with 33.

The Mustangs walked off with seven firsts individually but could not muster the depth to erase the nine-point difference. Turner, the Mustang's ace sprinter, won both the 100 and 220 and ran a leg on the victorious 440 relay team. Turner's 9.8 clocking in the 100, although wind-aided, was the fastest so far in the nation.

Gill also picked up two firsts, taking both the long jump and the triple jump, world renown high jumper, captured that event in his first meet as a Mustang. He became eligible at the start of this quarter, completing the NCAA's requirement for a year's residence at the school after transferring.

Jennings, also making his premier appearance after a long basketball season, was second in the triple jump and long jump. Ward Kineman was runner-up in the 130 high hurdles, running a wind-aided 14.4.

The locals picked up seconds in both the 100 and 440, with Lowell Henry taking that spot in the long jump and Warren Bennett in the quarter-mile. John Halsey finished third for the Mustangs for extra points.

Top prospects choosing NBA

The National Basketball Association appears to be winning this year's battle in the early stages by signing the top college prospects. The two top choices preferred the older established leagues to develop their skills.

Austin Carr, the man who led Norte Dame to North All-America honors in 1970, chose the ABA. Carr, 6-7, junior forward, scored 50 points in four games for the New York Nets, who were not selected in the N.B.A. draft.
