The effect of Gov. Ronald Reagan's proposed State College budget cutbacks will have on this campus will be discussed by Pres. Robert E. Kennedy when he addresses a Senate Finance Committee meeting in Sacramento on Monday, April 13.

Sen. Donald L. Grunsky (R-Watervis), chairman of a subcommittee of the Senate Finance Committee, has invited Dr. Robert E. Kennedy to give his views of the effect the State College support budget will have on campus instructional programs. Kennedy is expected to predict the effect the Governor's budget of $383,800,000 would have on the college's campus educational programs. Reagan has cut $32,400 from the budget request that the state college Board of Trustees made.

Dr. Kennedy explained before he left that the major concerns he hopes to share with the Senators include the need for a faculty salary increase, the impact of position cutbacks, and special program needs. Kennedy related that the Governor's budget will result in the loss of 811 faculty positions at Cal Poly, due to a reduction in the college's staffing formula. Equipment needed for special campus programs, Kennedy added, will not be procured unless the Trustees' budget request is made.

Special emphasis will be placed on the needs of the students in the Economic Opportunity Program. Kennedy explained. He went on to say that he will elaborate on the hardships that foreign students may have to face if planned tuition increases are carried through.

Kennedy said he will point out to the Senators evidence of the achievements of campus E.O.P. students.

Theft hits campus dorm

Two recent thefts in Chase Hall have been reported to the campus Security Office, and in one case, a key was used to gain entry.

One student, who lost a stereo system worth $182, said his was one of three items that had been stolen in the last few days. He said that he left his room locked and returned to find the set gone. The thief apparently having used a key to open the door.

According to George Cockrell, Chief of Security, both cases that had been reported to his office, were "inside jobs." In each case he said, the thief knew the actions of the victims, and had planned the thefts.

Two similar thefts occurred last year in the same area, in a dorm across the street, but according to Cockrell, this does not show a trend.

We've had very few thefts on this campus.

The best safeguards against losses of this kind, says Cockrell, are recording serial numbers of all items and storing the list in a safe place for future reference.

Closely the college gates and lock them. This institution has met its enrollment quota for the 1971-72 academic year.

According to Gerald Holley, registrar, enrollment for Spring met the administration's expectation of 11,700 students. Although this figure is far below the Fall quarter mark of 11,800, it rounds off the average enrollment for the year at 11,700.

Holley stated that this college is required to maintain a student population of 11,700. However, Fall quarter pressures on the state colleges forced this college, and all others, to accept more students than their budgets would allow.

The registrar explained that the college, to support the additional 700 Fall quarter enrollees, had to acquire additional funds to carry the budget over the enrollment hump. Since the state claims to be drained of educational support dollars, the money had to be borrowed from the remaining two quarters of the year, thus necessitating a student cutback for those quarters.

Winter quarter, 1971, the college enrollment reached 11,800, still above the desired 11,700 figure. To keep gasses of red ink off the college's budget, a freeze on admissions for Spring was ordered.

This Spring quarter matriculation total balances both the monetary budget and the enrollment requirements set for this college.

Holley hypothesized that had the Spring enrollment fallen short of its present mark, the college may have been forced into recruiting students.

"Let's say we were a few students less than our budgeted average. Nothing would be done about it. But, if we were drastically low, we would have contacted a few people who had applied. However, this has never happened."

Starting Saturdays (November 22 to December 2)—Indications are that you may begin to feel that you are not getting enough attention from some certain person. This may anger you, but try to be diplomatic about it. Avoid your natural tendency towards bitterness and bluntness and you will end up with what you want in the end.

Capricorn (December 22 to January 19)—Your great organizing abilities may come into play very soon, but watch your moods. You have a tendency to use people and situations to your best advantage, but beware of a Taurus-born individual who may become tired of your treatment and retaliate, causing you to lose even more than you expected to gain.

Aquarius (January 20 to February 18)—Your natural ability to get along with people makes you to virtually float over any difficulties which may confront you in the near future.

Pisces (February 19 to March 20)—Your sensitivity leaves you wide open to hurt from a less sensitive person, but your intuitive powers should be strong enough to protect you and pull you through the situation without too much injury. Be careful not to let someone of this type change your trusting nature.

Cash for good writing

Talent and writing ability may pay off. Six cash prizes will be offered this quarter in a Creative Writing Contest co-sponsored by the English Department and the Publishers' Board.

According to Communicative Arts Chair Jon Ericson, the competition will be divided into two categories: Poetry and Short Story.

The contest is limited to San Luis students on this campus. All entries will automatically be entered into the Alternative Magazine for publication consideration. Poetry is limited to no more than 50 lines of text. Short stories should be limited to a maximum of 35 pages of manuscript.

Easter Special, April 1
A recognized authority on operations research from the U.S. Navy Postgraduate School in Monterey will present two addresses for Dr. and Mrs. and the general public in the College Union Monday, April 19.

Dr. Kees P. Marshall, an associate professor of operations research at the naval school, will speak on "Biostochastic Models" at 10 a.m. in the Engineering Auditorium on campus, and at 1 p.m. in Room 230 of the Julian A. McPhee College Union on "Operations Research." Admission will be free.

His visit is being sponsored by the campus chapter of the Association for Computing Machinery, an organization of some 38 student members.

Biostochastic modeling involves designing a miniature representation to fit certain situations requiring statistical techniques. Bionics say Dr. Marshall's remarks on this subject should be of special interest to those involved in city and regional planning, the computer sciences, industrial engineering, and graduate studies in business administration.

Dr. Marshall earned his bachelor's degree at Imperial College in London, and both his master's and doctor's degrees at the University of California at Berkeley. He is a former member of the technical staff of Bell Telephase Laboratories.

Agony, ecstasy and golf

Golf, one of the richest games around these days, both in money accrued from title winnings and those acquired from the lucrative field of product promotion and endorsements, has an aura all its own.

Tremendous tension builds as men battle for thousands of dollars. A small fortune may rest only a few feet away and the ability to remain calm under extreme pressure is the mark of a golfer in command of his game.

But even the pros have to let it out sometime—and they do. These pictures, taken from the PGA Masters Tournament in Augusta Georgia, which began yesterday, show how some of the pros react to situations associated with the greens.

Gary Player keeps his eyes on the ball as he blasts out of a sand trap.

Hale Irwin gives the crowd a jump after he made this eagle in yesterday's action.

Jack Nicklaus sports a frown as he misses a putt on the seventh hole.

Four-time Masters' winner Arnold Palmer flashes a grin as he drops in a long one.

Bob Murphy can't bear to watch his ball slip past a 10th hole bunker in yesterday's opening round of the Masters Tournament in Augusta, Georgia.
The recent completion of the bowling lanes in the College Union has made possible utilization of the facilities for educational purposes. Classes are held on the lanes Monday-Thursday mornings. The expressions of the students in this class tell the story of the first session.
Atrocity eludes Geneva words

UPI-The Pentagon said today it had given up trying to find ways to try former servicemen for atrocities committed in Vietnam.

Defense Department spokesman Jerry W. Fridheim said joint discussions on the question by the Pentagon and the Department of Justice had ended. He said he understood the chief problem was one of jurisdiction.

The question arose earlier in the week after Robert F. Marasco, a former Green Beret captain, admitted killing a Vietnamese double agent and said the motive was suggested by the CIA.

Class asked about gift

Ideas for this year's Senior Class gift are being sought by the Senior Week Activities Committee (SWAC).

Suggestions should be placed in Box 40 in the Activities Office of the College Union as soon as possible so that preparations can be made for the selection, according to SWAC.

The Senior Class will be polled for the final selection shortly after the All elections in May.

Intramurals

League play for intramural bowling and basketball will begin Monday night, according to Dick Heaton, intramural director.

There also is a meeting for intramural softball on Monday, Heaton said. The meeting will be in the Men's Gym at 4:30.

He also noted that there have been requests for intramural team wrestling. All those interested in parting should contact Coach Nelson.

Name calling contest?

Ah, the college union. Yes, there seems to be a move afoot to provide four rooms in the noble edifice with names. Yes, names.

As of now, the rooms are only known as "903", "904", "905", and "906". The former being a simple four-wall model and the latter three being living areas for distraught students.

In order that these rooms do not spend the rest of their lives nameless and nameless, the College Union Board of Governors, affectionately known as the CUBG, is sponsoring a contest of sorts.

The idea of the give-the-room-a-name contest is to pick one of CUBG's like and they will award you a prize of five dollars in real money. One suggestion that the CUBG made up with is to give the rooms a theme, capture all the prize, and walk away 5 $ richer.

Contest judges have also suggested that individuals visit the rooms to determine their "different views and characters." After all, who would want to be stuck with a name like "903" or "905-06-07-08" for the rest of his life?

Entry blanks for the contest can be picked up in the College Union at the information desk, offices, and at the games desk.

Contestants are warned that all suggestions must be in by April 31, 1971 or they will not be in the running for this college union name-calling contest.

Ag Conference highlights international agriculture

The International Agricultural Conference, a conversation sponsored by the Office of International Education in the School of Agriculture and Natural Resources was held all day Thursday in the College Union.

It was the first time this kind of conference has been held at this college. The morning speaker was Jack W. Ratchbina, vice president of Food Machinery Corporation International of San Jose, who spoke on "Dimensions in International Agriculture." A panel discussion on "The World of International Agriculture" took an overall look at what international agriculture is all about today.

The panel represented points of view from the industry, Peace Corps, foreign agriculture and government assistance to international agricultural programs, according to graduate student Richard Skidmore.

The afternoon session took a look at the role of "Cal Poly in International Agriculture." A panel was selected representing international education in agriculture aid programs for international education in agriculture, the Peace Corps internships programs and government programs as part of the Poly Royal exhibits offered at the ~GU Unit. All students, faculty staff are invited to enter any or all the spring flowers they are nurturing in their gardens or window boxes. The number of flowers any person can enter is unlimited.

Entries may be brought to the OH Unit between 8:00 p.m. and 11:00 p.m. Thursday night and before 9:00 a.m. on Friday morning. Calley case put to wax

The case of Lt. William Calley, the army officer who has been convicted of premeditated murder of 22 Vietnamese civilians, has brought a strong reaction from the American public. Some argue that the case and the events associated are a tragedy, others maintain that it is a disgrace to the army and a travesty of justice. But to Julian Wilson and James Smith, the whole event is worthy enough to be immortalized in song. The lyrics of the record are as follows: (song to Battle Hymn of the Republic)

My name is William Calley
I'm a soldier of this land
I've tried to do my duty
And to gain the upper hand.
But they've made me out a villain
They have stamped me with a brand
As we go marching on.

I've just another soldier from the shores of USA
Forgotten on the battlefield 10,000 miles away
While life goes on u  usual from New York to Santa Fe
Forgotten on the battlefield 10,000 miles away
Pm Just another soldier from the shores of USA
Where all the rules are broken and the only law la
As we go marching on.

I've seen my buddies ambushed on the left and on the right
And their youthful bodies riddled by the bullets of the night
Where all the rules are broken and the only law is might
As we go marching on.

While we are facing V.C. bullets, they are soundinc our retreat
As we go marching on.

When I reach my final campground
In that land beyond the sun
And the great commander asks me:
Did you fight or did you run?
I will stand both straight and tall
Stripped of medals, rank and gun
And this is what I'll say:
Sir, I followed all my orders and I did the best I could.
It's hard to judge the enemy and hard to tell the good.
Yet there is not a man among us would say we have understood.
We took the jungle village exactly like they said.
We responded to their rifle fire with everything we had.
And when the smoke had cleared away, a hundred souls lay dead.
Sir, the soldier who's alive Is the only one can fight.
There Is no other way to wage a war
When the only one In sight that you're sure is not a V.C. Is your buddy on your right.

While we are fighting in the jungle, they were marching in the street
While we are dying In the rice fields, they were helping our defeat

When all the wars are over and the battle's finally won,
Count me only as a soldier who never left his gun.
With the right to serve my country as the only prize I've won.

LONDON UPI — Angered at recurrent oil spills, Parliament passed a law Thursday giving Britain the power to seize or sink foreign ships that threaten to pollute this country's beaches with oil, even if they are in international waters.

The action came as a team of men worked to break up massive oil slicks in the English Channel that may have crippled Liberian tanker Panther. The Panther was freed Sunday after being agreed for five days last week off the southeast coast of England.

British authorities were powerless to intervene in the case of the Panther while tug captains from several countries were arguing over salvage rights. The tanker was just outside Britain's three mile territorial waters.

The new legislation, designed to avoid repetition of such incidents, was given the royal assent and became law just before Parliament recessed for Easter. The legislation calls for fines up to $120,000 on summary conviction and unlimited fines on conviction after indictment. The government said it was not serious in the event of a oil pollution threat the government put to wax.

Anthony Grant, Under-secretary for Environment told Parliament in the event of a oil pollution threat the government first would consult with the owners of the ship and with salvage organizations.

But he said in case of refusal of cooperation, the government would have authority to take "any kind of action whatsoever" about the stricken ship or its cargo, including operations for seizing, sinking or otherwise destroying it.

UPI — Six Californians with round-trip tickets next Wednesday for the capital of Laos, are hoping to offer themselves to North Vietnam representatives as substitutes for an equal number of American POWs.

If all goes well, says the head of the private expedition, at least six servicemen can be released from North Vietnam prisoner camps and use the return tickets to return home.

The civilian campaign to recruit volunteers for the unusual peace mission began four months ago in suburban Monterey Park by Dominic Cimino, father of three daughters and a World War II marine.

Cimino, along with a Methodist minister, a retired fireman from northern California and up to six others believe they might convince the North Vietnamese and wind up in a prison camp for "a year or two at the longest."
