8 demonstrators arrested

"All we are saying is give peace a chance," they sang into the calls they went.

Eight antinuclear demonstrators, five of them students on this campus, were arrested Wednesday in downtown San Luis Obispo on cross-counties ranging from obstructing traffic to disturbing the peace to resisting arrest.

The eight:
Richard Lee Brecher, 25, senior biological sciences major and Raymond DeGroote, 21, junior social science major, arrested at 3 p.m. for obstructing traffic at Garden and Higuera;
Michael N. Steff, 18, Thomas Sanderson, 21, junior journalism major, and John Merrell Coe, 20, arrested at 5:10 p.m. for obstructing traffic in the 90 block of Monterey.
Eugene Warren Clark, 26, sophomore natural resources management major, and Stephen J. Crumley, 24, arrested at 4 p.m. for disturbing the peace and resisting arrest at Oaso and Walnut.
Paul Anthony Cassigliani, 21, junior industrial technology major, arrested at 7 p.m. for disturbing the peace.

All have been bailed out of jail. Bail for Clark and Crumley was $500. Cassigliani’s was $155. All the others paid $15.

The eight were part of a group of two dozen who demonstrated against the war in Indochina—both the Viet Cong and the South Vietnamese—by marching downtown to show disagreement with the Johnson policy.

They marched to Bank of America at Oaso and Niguera and went inside, chanting, "give peace a chance," and accused the bank of being part of the war machine.

The arrests of the eight were made by the city police with the aid of sheriff’s deputies. Officers said those arrested for obstructing traffic were marching back and forth across the streets, stopping in the crosswalks and shouting at the drivers of cars.

The demonstration will appear before the magistrate within ten days.

Yesterday the demonstrators again descended to the downtown area following a campus rally that was held in the College Union plaza. Demonstrators met at Mission Plaza and then proceeded to circle the business area of San Luis Obispo.

About 32 protesters joined the march and proceeded to the Bank of America, Crocker-Ontario Bank and the local Selective Service Board.

The protest was relatively organized. There were no arrests in the second demonstration.

Police club protesters to 'Let's get 'em' cry

By MICHAEL WIDMER

BOSTON (UPI)—Club-swinging police staged a noisy Friday throughout antinuclear demonstrators who tried but failed to shun down a government building.

A three-hour peaceful stand-off between 4,000 antinuclear demonstrators and 1,900 riot-clad police was shattered shortly after noon (EDT) when police—without warning—swept a crowd. They paused briefly, waved their clubs, and went inside, chanting, "give peace a chance," and accused the FBI of destroying the peace.

The first two-phase sweep pushed the demonstrators 40 yards to the JFK Building on one side and more than 100 yards onto City Hall Plaza on another side. The second sweep drove them back even further.

The middle afternoon sweep seemed aimed at clearing the area before federal workers left their jobs for the day. The earlier charge was designed to open the antinuclear ranks so federal workers could enter or leave the 34-story building.

About 70 persons were arrested in the first charge and the total went past 100 after the second assault, police reported.

"Let's get 'em," a policeman yelled, starting the first move against a crowd of 1,000 in front of the building. About two dozen police started the charge and were reinforced by another 60.

"Pollution and ecology are great world's-ling of like motherhood used to be," Dr. Lee Tepley, head of the Oceanographic Group of the Physical Sciences Laboratory at Lockheed, said on campus Wednesday night.

Tepley, head of the Oceanographer Group of the Physical Sciences Laboratory at Lock heed, spent the day on campus as a part of the American Geophysical Union's Visiting Scientists Program. Hosts for his visit were the School of Engineering and Technology and Sigma Xi Club.

Tepley, who is a physicist rather than a marine biologist, showed two underwater films, one untold, and the other "Cloud Over the Coral Reef," which portrayed the dramatic spread of pollution and consequential disintegration of coral reefs off the Hawaiian coast.

The recent increase in dumping of raw sewage into the ocean has stimulated green bubbles and slime, which personally disintegrate many of Hawaii's coral reefs, which were beautiful underwater gardens only three years ago. The coral reefs have been a major attraction for divers and tourists and their destruction is resulting in a sharp blow to the tourist trade.

Although students on this campus can't do much about Hawaii's pollution problems, Tepley stressed that similar problems exist all along the California coastline. He did not specify particular problems.

"Most marine biologists don't feel strongly enough about it (pollution) to do anything about it," Tepley said of his contemporaries. For this reason he appeals to students and the general public through his underwater photography hobby, to take up the fight against pollution. He urges students to pressure the government to enact and enforce effective antipollution laws, and allocate reasonable amounts of money for meaningful research in the area of ocean pollution.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Watch out for the radical minority

Editor:

This is an open letter to President Kennedy and the students of Cal Poly.

Cal Poly is a conservative school, and we should be glad. The radicals may comprise a small minority of possible votes in the AE elections, for example, but you had better believe that they try harder and never miss a chance to vote. It won't be hard for their candidates to grab a plurality, unless each of you cares enough to vote and keep the radical element out of student government.

President Kennedy, I would like to know how you feel about the students who advocate the boycott of classes. This letter isn't meant to give you a hard time, as some people here at Cal Poly are trying to do, but merely to ask you to expel those who want to "shut it down.

Do you not have the power to find out who they are and to expel such people? This type of student, who obviously does not value his education, should be made to leave. There are plenty of applicants begging to take his place in the classroom.

Some students' forgotten

Editor:

I'm tired of you politicians telling us who to kill. I chose the Fort Ord stockade instead of Vietnam in "their" war, and now I'm not going to join your army Lt. Rizzo. Maybe you have never heard my shouts at the peace rallies. I was just one of the faceless crowd that you were so busy radicalizing. My shout was no more war—not yours, Nixon's, not anybody's. NO MORE WAR!

About "frenzied states"

Editor:

I feel that the Mustang Daily did a fine job of reporting the progress that was made in meeting the needs of the Asian students here. The foreign born and American born Asians have been, in a very subtle way, quietly forgotten.

This meeting did open some new channels of communications and now it is up to us to take advantage of this. Before we are recognized by others, we better come together and recognize each other.

A picnic has been planned for next month, and an informal repast will be held off campus on Sunday, May 4, at 8 p.m. For more information, call 564-2386.

FFA goes it

Delegates from 240 chapters in California, Alienation, Future Farmers of America, have gathered on campus for the 43rd annual state convention of the association.

L. R. Pitts, state FFA presi­dent, stated that more than 800 members, parents and guests are expected to attend the con­vention. President of FFA and a former California State President, ad­dressed the opening convention. Other highlights include the "Best Informed Chapter" contest to be conducted by John Sears, producer of nationally tele­vised Agriculture U.S.A. pro­gram, presentation of state FFA awards, and the announcement of proficiency awards.

David D. Hurford of the Sears Foundation addressed the seni­or banquet last night. An additional 1,200 FFA members will participate in the state judging finals to be held here on Saturday, May 8.

Bronco series holds key hopes to diamond playoff

Though the goal of winning the conference championship is about forgotten, the goal of winning at or more games and being chosen for the regional playoffs is very much alive despite Tuesday's double loss.

The baseballers' chance comes today when they tackle Cal Poly Pomona on the Bronco's diamond. Tomorrow the two teams clash in a twin-bill. The three games will play a vital role in the Bronco's final record and chances for a playoff berth.

The qualifications used in picking teams for the regionals seem to describe the Mustangs over all record, depth of pitching and overall depth of the team.

If the diamond men are selected for the regionals, they will have invaluable championship experience behind them from the Valley State doubleheader.

"We think it's very important for our baseball program and our players that we have participated in a championship situation. Once you've been there it is easier to be successful the next time you experience it. Experience breeds confidence."

"Because of this experience we should be a stronger team if we are chosen for the regionals. This is the one thing we have lacked on our ball club—championship experience. I feel it was the deciding factor on Tuesday, especially when we got off to a 5-0 lead in the first game," stated coach Augie Garrido.

One bright spot for the Mustangs against the Matadors was outfielder Steve Freyberg. Not only did he deliver key hits but he also saved runs from being scored with his fielding. He roared one Matador of a home run and threw another out trying to be a double.

Riders seek bigger lead

The Mustang rodeo team, with a 128-point lead on the Western Regional championship of the National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association, will travel to Flagstaff, Ariz., tomorrow and Sunday. This will be the first meet for the riders since their Poly Royal victory.

Coach Bill Belford announced the men's team roster will include Motive Dick, Larry and Tom Ferguson, William Freeman, Jerry Cole and Jim Ingram while Larry Hay will be the alternates.

The women's team will include Queens Gill, Colleen Sims and Mary Zab. Northern Arizona University is hosting the meet.

{Category:Sports} Marks sought

The Mustang track team will send some of the nation's best to the West Coast Relays weekend meet, billed as "where world records are broken." In the high jump, Melvin Dick, Larry and Sharon Gills, Colleen Simas are expected to compete.

The men's team roster will include Melvin Dick, Larry and Sharon Gill, Colleen Simas. The women's team roster will include Sharon Gill, Colleen Simas and Melvin Dick.

Girl thinclads

The seventh annual girls and women's track and field meet sponsored by Block P will be held tomorrow and Sunday. This will be the first meet in its 44th running at Fresno Recreation (CAPHER) will be held tomorrow and Sunday.

The meet, billed as "where world records are broken," is essential to a good high jump skyward and touches his toe to the goalpost crossbar, a mere 10 feet above ground.

"If I started doing it in high school," Brown related. He says his purpose is to "help me keep my leg straight, which is essential to a good high jump."

Girls battle

While the big boys have been practicing, so have the girls. All the bruises and groans will pay off tomorrow night in the Girl's Powderpuff football game.

The game will feature the freshman-sophomore girls seeking to knock over the junior-senior girls. The battle starts at 7 p.m. tomorrow night in Mustang Stadium at a cost of 50 cents to the public and is sponsored by Black P.
