Tradition kicks the bucket

Finally, due to lack of interest among students, the tradition of having a graduation ceremony will be without a baccalaureate service. But the Student Senate Week Activities Committee (SWAC) advisor, said the committee couldn't get anybody interested enough to plan a baccalaureate until the time came to print the SWAC calendar.

Another apparent interest in baccalaureate has been wanting in recent years. Many colleges have dropped it although this college has had one for a number of years.

Baccalaureates here have been sparsely attended with graduates and families numbering about thirty so usually. But last year there were 175 attending for over 2000 graduates, said Timone.

A traditional goal of baccalaureate has been to think of the graduates in a better perspective on what's happened.

In the past there has been a real problem gaining excellent speakers. Baccalaureate used to be given in church halls, but recently it's been in church halls. Traditionally held on the Sunday before commencement, the entire service took about an hour and thirty minutes.

Next year baccalaureate will be turned over to religious clubs to bring it back with renewed interest. That will also make planning easier for SWAC.

The disinterest in baccalaureate is indicative of the responses from seniors in becoming involved in senior week. SWAC met since early February to gear up for senior week. An advance appeared in Mustang Daily to get seniors involved in the planning for senior week. The only response was a lack of interest. Only eight or nine people showed up to head up the entire agenda for SWAC. When those people began assuming responsibilities for activities in the senior week, nobody wanted to plan a baccalaureate.

So in the end it just got left out.

Budget blues

by Thomas Sandercock

The main drawback to a student referendum on the budget during the Summer Quarter is the possibility of a vote being handed down from Pres. Kennedy’s office, according to-de-elect Pete Evans.

Evans said there is a possibility of Kennedy exercising his veto power over a referendum on the basis that he may decide a vote during the Summer Quarter, because of minimum enrollments, would not be representative of the student body at large.

Donald Nelson, director of business affairs here and the president’s advisor to the AIS (Administration and Institutional Services) budget, said that the president has never exercised his veto over the AIS budget. “I have no recollection,” Nelson said, “in the 20 years that I have been here, of the president ever exercising his veto over the AIS budget.”

On the referendum question, Dr. Kennedy said, “I would caution students and advisors to consider carefully actions which might be considered hasty and which it turn would create some reaction which itself could lead to nowhere but chaos.”

SAC vote ‘not backslash’

By Joe Martinez

The defeat of the four per cent contingency cut for the 1971-72 budget by the SAC this week was not a result of “election backlash” against the Evans-Oaks administration, according to SAC member Joe Martinez.

Martinez said that the vote against the Evans-Oaks proposal was not, “a personal vendetta, at least not on my part.”

He said that many of the members of the SAC voted down the proposed cut by direct order from their council. He said this was because, “They felt that a further cut could not be made to a budget that had already been closely scrutinized and severely cut by the official committee in their hearings.”

Martinez said that a call was given before ratification of the budget for students to attend SAC meetings, a discussion concerning program funding. The first meeting in the college union was sparsely attended with graduates and families numbering about thirty so usually. The final meeting in the college theater, it was moved from the Student Center because of minimum enrollments, was attended by 200.

“Speaking in terms of mandate, the overwhelming majority of students to the audience defended their budget and asked that their programs not be cut,” said Martinez.

According to Martinez it’s easy to blame SAC for the defeat of needed programs. “The question is what do the students really want. The students who came out to the meeting wanted no budget cuts,” Martinez said.

As for the alleged personality clashes and insensitivity used at the SAC meeting, Martinez said that it was not the case on his part. “Personas used emotions and invoced to back their arguments directed at me,” he said. “I did not get involved with this type of dialogue, but kept to the issues at hand.”

“I don’t like people making the assumption that I have a ‘short temper’ attitude,” Martinez said. “I’ve been consciously guarding against such an attitude.”

On the subject of a referendum on the budget Martinez said that he felt the housing proposal, as presented, has merit and agrees that the budget should be approved by the students for the fall.

The proposed Care Center can move to a planning stage, according to Kennedy, for approval of SAC next year, though Kennedy does not feel the program will be in the budget at the housing proposal.

Letters to the Editor
SAC: voting in individual interests

This letter is written in response to Ralph Grossi's letter of June 3rd and to conversations I have had with other students during the past week.

A correction was phoned into Mustang Daily on Friday, May 28th. The correction, which I was told would appear in Mustang Daily on the following Tuesday, stated, "Bob Parks, Chairman of Finance Committee, was not a member of the Dairly Cattle Judging Team, but he had tried out for a position on the Livestock Judging Team (a position which he did not achieve)."

The point of my previous letter, which I still maintain, is that a conflict of interests exists in some of our A.S.I. committees. Mr. Grossi implied in his letter that Pete and Marianne did not go through proper channels to obtain funds for their programs. The 4 per cent across-the-board cut, as proposed by Ken Bruce, would not give funds to programs that "do not even exist" but merely put additional money into the contingency fund.

According to the Financial Code, Section I: "The purpose of contingency is to provide funds for these activities not budgeted or as unforeseen needs arise. Any group requesting funds from Contingency must meet requirements as set forth in Article VI, Section E of the A.S.I. Financial Code.

Section E states that, any student organization or group, with a recognized code, shall have the privilege to submit a budget to Finance Committee. It also makes specific reference to judging teams, special music groups and the rodeo team. By putting additional funds into contingency, this would give new programs a chance next year (without having to wait until the 1972-73 academic year) to be initiated without a major budget overhaul.

In closing, I am truly sorry that some of my statements in my previous letter appeared "totally inaccurate" but I strongly feel that until members of S.A.C. and Finance Committee remove themselves from their own individual interests, the credibility of student government at Cal Poly will leave a lot to be desired.

"unequivocally" that student body funds collected from mandatory student body fees can not be used to pay an attorney. Kennedy cited Title 5 of the California Administrative Code for the opinion. "It seems to me that the issue of sufficient cuts warrants further study on the proposal and how such service might be obtained without conflict with provisions of Title 5," Kennedy said.

Kennedy said that he had not discussed his ideas with the new officers or anyone else to date. "My major concern is to provide as fair and equitable treatment as best I can to all groups so as to reflect the general interest of as many students as possible."

A referendum vote may also run one of two ways. It may be a vote to initiate a four percent contingency cut or only to further fund the board. Evans will act as chairman of SIC with one representative from each school council comprising the board.

Evans said another important step is to consider for the decision on a referendum the question of "will the referendum be truly the most effective way to bring about a positive change?"

During the summer quarter the Evans-Doshi administration plan to continue work on forming the student housing service in hopes that it may be functioning by the fall quarter. Marianne Doshi said that they plan to put the matter to the SIC for funding. The student tenants association, Mrs. Doshi said, will be setting up training workshops for the summer quarter and recruiting volunteers for the service during registration.

Mrs. Doshi also said that their administration is forming a Task Force for the purpose of planning and evaluating the present structure of the ASI and formulate a program for overall change. "At fall registration," Mrs. Doshi said, "we will ask that all students fill out a prepared survey form as to how they wish to see their funds spent in order to provide a comprehensive survey of student wants for SAC."

Top students honored

Phil Kappa Phi Scholastic Honor Society paid tribute to the top upperclassmen scholars at its annual spring banquet.

In order to be eligible for membership consideration, juniors must attain a 3.4 overall GPA while seniors must present a 3.5 GPA record. Dr. Edward Barker, new Dean of the School of Business and Social Science, who will take on his full duties in August, told the top academicians that "good grades are not enough." A 4.0 record into a computer does not guarantee success. He also noted that "our information explosion is one of the great phenomena of the century which we have difficulty enough in understanding let alone controlling."

The top male and female upper classmen scholars were honored.

Daniel S. Joaquin, a Computer Science major, topped them all by amassing 3.91 GPA after completing 194.4 units while pursuing his BA in English.

"THE FINEST VW SERVICE IN TOWN"
Gill eyes Olympics, then acting by Terry Cooser

With so many records to his credit, it is difficult to pick out the one that is the most significant. However, I think his most recent record, established at the Fresno Relays on May 8 of this year, is the greatest of his career. Mohinder Singh Gill, a 23 year-old business administration major on this campus, made a leap of 55 feet-11 1/2 inches, his longest jump on American soil, and only two feet short of the world record. Gill’s previous best jump came last December in the Asian Games when he soared 53-10.

At the completion of the 1970 track season, Gill, by winning in both the College Division and University Division of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, was rated the top triple jumper in the United States and the number three rated jumper in the world. This year he has set records at the Easter Relays in Santa Barbara and the West Coast Relays at Fresno. Gill hails from Lyalpur, Pakistan to be left his homeland it was still part of India. His father owns a prosperous trucking business and a few acres of land that he and his family farm. Mohinder is one of six children. Mohinder is not only a good athlete, but also a good student. He is a successful athlete. "Dramatics have always been one of my favorite hobbies; also, when an athlete from India does real well in athletics, that athlete’s name becomes a household word. We haven’t had too many good athletes lately so now I am about the only athlete whose name is known all over the country. I have been the most successful athlete from India, in over 20 years."

Getting the discussion back to the present, I asked Mohinder how he liked going to school here and also how he liked this area.

Mat Pica Pi pin kings

Graphic Communications Department's Mat Pica Pi team won the championship of the intramural bowling league in Wednesday night's championship match in the College Union.

Mat Pica Pi, leading by three pins after the second game, captured the victory in the final frames of the third game over Buck Buck. Final score was 211-209.

Tom Parker's 596 series, in- stead of Monday's 575, led Mat Pica Pi, leading by three a 489 17, to upset Buck Buck team waiting for an opening. for the team title. It's a matter of tomorrow at Berkeley. On Simmons said, "I feel that we're taking a break from action, the 9.6 despite misreading the finish line.

Coach Steve Simmons is taking his men down through the final stages before they defend their national title next week. The practices are important since Simmons is simulating the way the national meet is to be run to give his men the feeling of the pressure.

"We are going to run several of our practice sessions this week to see if we can get the team to perform. There is no reason to get the team excited before we go to the nationals," Simmons said. "We'll run preliminaries, semifinals and finals just like they will in the nationals."

While most of the Mustangs are taking a break from action, the "Big Three" of Reynolds Brown, Mohinder Gill and Bobby Turner will be in the Kennedy Games tomorrow at Berkeley. On standby will be the 440-yard relay team waiting for an opening.

"Mohinder is much pleased with Brown's efforts at Modesto. Brown did not have a miss until he had the meet won as his first miss came at 74/4. That was a great series of series of jumps with no misses and over 7.2," Simmons beamed.

A week of rest has been prescribed for the Mustangs' ailing triple jumper Gill who has been bothered by a bruised heel ever since he went 55-1/2 and was accorded the outstanding athlete honor at the West Coast Relays in early May. "He'll feel the heat at Berkeley and he'll jump only if there is no pain. We can't afford to go into the nationals with him ailing," Simmons continued.

Turner hopes to do better tomorrow after running "only" a 6.8 despite misreading the finish line.

Pondering the nationals which will be held June 11 and 12 Simmons said, "I feel that we've had a darkhorse in the competition for the team title. It's a matter of how well our freshmen do in competition. Bennett (Swanson), Kineman (Ward), and Hamer (Dave) will have to perform well and Steine (Mike) and Jennings (Bob) also will have to come through for us.

"We have a solid chance if the five men I've mentioned come through. I feel that we will hit our peak at the national meet. Our training and mental preparation has been key for this meet. We've been pointing for it all season."

"I feel that we have the advantage in that our key people (Brown, Gill and Turner) are seasoned competitors. They've been involved in pressure situations against top competitors all year long," Simmons said.

Pole vaulter Mark Delitchman is now a national threat as a result of his lifetime best of 15-10 last weekend. Only the winner went higher in the 1970 nationals.

Superstar

He answered the two questions in one sentence, "It's good going to school here, and I like the climate here because it is good for living and working out, but money-wise I lost; I could have gotten a bigger scholarship and more fringe benefits elsewhere." Mohinder is well known in the athletic world, but not many people know about his private life. Usually it is no one's business when it comes to someone else's private life. In the case of Mohinder, it is so interesting, and he and his coach don't mind discussing it.

"Mohinder is a very quiet person. Being 23 years old, he hasn't have too much in common with the 18 year old freshmen on the team, but he gets along with everybody. In fact, he is one of the four team captains (the other three are Bobby Turner, John Haley, and Tony Mitchell), but he is pretty much a loner," stated Simmons.

After the 1972 Olympics, you probably will see Mohinder Singh Gill's name in the newspaper. But it won't be on the sports page. In all likelihood, you will be able to keep up on his activities by turning to the drama or movie reviews.
