Fanny here for ‘weakend’ gig

by Pat Thurston
Staff Writer

Coming in on the tail end of the week this Sunday night will be a Fanny. Or rather a group of four, that comprise Fanny, an all-girl rock band. Sydnye Riggs, July 11, at 8 p.m. will be the beginning of the concert schedule set up by the Summer Program Board.

Although the four “Fannies” made their debut only this months ago at the Whiskey A-Go-Go in Los Angeles they already have two albums on the market, “Fanny” and “Charity”.

The members of Fanny, June, and Jean Millington, Alice de Buh and Nicole Cardy, write and create most of their own music. Although they have not yet had a hit recording to boost their fame, the girls have used their talents to further the success of others in the music industry.

You’ve heard of having eyes on the back of your head—but this is too much. Nevertheless, Fanny, an all-female rock group will be here Sunday to kick off the summer concerts.

Enrollment reaches high

This summer marks the largest enrollment for summer quarter in Cal Poly’s history. With admission closed for the fall many students found summer quarter the only way into Cal Poly.

The enrollment figure shows a 14 percent increase over last year’s 3500. Of the nearly 4100 registered it seems that the returning students outnumber the new students by a three-to-one margin. Three thousand Cal Poly students have enrolled for the warm summer quarter while 1,000 new students are introduced to the campus.

In five of the six schools the seniors hold all other class levels. The exception of the six schools bring the School of Applied Arts with 30 more graduate students than seniors. The juniors are the next largest class level on campus with the sophomores and freshmen numbers about even.

The School of Science and Mathematics showed a 12 percent increase this year as did the School of Agriculture and Natural Resources. On the other side of the scale, however, the School of Engineering and Technology showed a down percent from the 1970 enrollment of 396.

With the total registered for the summer quarter at the 6,400 plus mark, one-third the number of the regular school year, it seems evident that within just a few years the school will be operating on a full scale year round.

Perhaps hardest hit by the budget cut will be the state’s 160,000 employees, as well as faculties of both the state colleges and universities. In the case of UC and state college faculty, this means the second consecutive year without cost-of-living pay increases.

Eliminating salary increases for state employees, putting a lid on budget was still out of balance by $106 million, the Governor’s override money.

According to President Robert Kennedy, this campus will lose 62 teaching positions due to the budget cut. The loss of these positions will not mean that any teachers will be fired, but it will mean the elimination of 62 temporary teaching jobs or decrees not to fill positions that are open due to resignation.

Kennedy expressed his “disappointment” with the governor’s actions, regretful that Reagan saw fit to veto the additions to the budget that state legislature saw fit to include in their version of the budget.

The governor reduced by $27.9 million, funds for support and capital outlay intended for the state college system.

“Tragic” was the reaction of Loren V Smith, manager of the 114,000 member California State Employees Association (CSEA). “What we are fearful of is a widening striker situation. We are asking our people to stay on the job and to work within the system.”

“We intend to galvanize our entire membership into one of the most massive campaigns we’ve ever undertaken to ask the legislature to override.”

Curwin Johnson, head of the crops department and speaking for the local chapter of the CSEA, stated that questionaires had failed since Reagan took office in 1967.

The four girls, all in their early twenties, have widely varied backgrounds. Two are sisters who were born in Manila and raised in Sacramento. Another is an Iowan from a farming family. The fourth is from the nation’s capital.

The concert will be in Chumash Hall of the College Union. Admission for college students is 75 cents; all others, $1.50.

A large audience is expected for this first summer concert so be there early. Tickets are only being sold at the door.
Farm House a new Greek life

Farm Fraternity didn't used to be the going thing on this campus. But they are slowly gaining a foothold—fraternity like no one has ever heard of back East.

Farm House is the second agricultural fraternity to be recognized by ASI. The organization has gained a seat on the Agriculture Council and is beginning to become involved in campus life. They sponsored the bucking barrel ride at the Poly Royal carnival.

Farm House members don't sport Greek heptagonics on their sweaters. Their symbol of protection and brotherhood is found on a coat of arms. Pledging in this fraternity is by invitation only and acceptance is based on useful and constructive service projects for the community, school, and fraternity. Largely for those who have an interest in rural life, this fraternity encourages scholastic as well as personal achievement.

How would you like to receive at least a grade of general education credit before enrolling in a single class? This opportunity is being extended to approximately 1,300 freshmen entering San Francisco State College this Fall. The plan is a pilot aspect of new approaches to higher education that was proposed in January by Chancellor Glenn Dumke. Under the program, freshmen can obtain credit toward early graduation by passing a series of five tests. After passing the tests the freshman would be redesignated as a sophomore.

The tests are titled College-Level Examination Program (CLEP). They are developed by a nationally known testing service and cover these subjects: English composition, social-science-history, humanities, natural science and mathematics. A passing score in any of the subjects gives students academic credits that count toward meeting the college general studies graduation requirements. Students will not be penalized if they fail any of the tests. This school will grant credit for satisfactory test scores but no provisions have been made by this college to administer or score the tests. This will probably occur in one year depending on the success of the experiment at S.F. State.

Streamlining the college curriculum according to Tom Dunigan, Committee chairman of the Educational Productivity Improvement Committee, is only one of many ways of improving the present college system. A staggered three-quarter program in which the student would attend three consecutive quarters and then would be off one quarter is one possibility. Under this plan the college would become truly a year-round institution. It would also be much easier for administrators to predict the plan for staff positions, budgeting and class scheduling.

KCPR now on the air

The campus radio station, KCPR, has announced that it will continue operations throughout the summer quarter. Hours of operation will be limited to mornings and evenings according to Rick Knepp, station manager.

"Musical programming is going to be of a somewhat relaxed nature as a free-form majority will allow the disc-jockey to play whatever music they wish," advised Knepp. Although no firm schedule has been established, the station will sign on at 7 a.m. At 10 they will leave the air until 4 p.m., when "Concert Hall" will be heard Monday through Friday.

Welcome, or anyway, veterans: welcome back.

Somehow, I ended up with 38 type-written lines to tell you the things you usually do in Editorial Number One of college weekly summer publications. My main goal will be to tell you how nice it is to have so many of you here for the first time of your lives, and so-o-o-o-oo many of you here for the last time. But it's 6:15 in the night before you picked up this paper from one of the boxes, and I'm very tired, missed my handball class this afternoon and haven't fed my face since this morning. Anyway, we the staff of Mustang Daily—whoopee, Weekly, would like to take this opportunity to welcome you to or back to California State Polytechnic College—Branch BLO.

Whatever the reason that finds you here—it all goes down to this—you're here and you might as well make the most of it. Our goal, as your mouthpiece for the summer, is to be your mouthpiece for the summer—and from that perspective—to do all we can to make your 10 weeks as enjoyable as we possibly can.

We ask for your contributions—be it club activities, dorm functions, or simply just information concerning what's happening outside of the college. Ask yes, mom and dads, we will try to put into print your progeny's letters to the editor. Hopefully, as space and a sound budget permits, the summer Mustang will attempt to whip into page two, your hometown thoughts and whatever you've got that you want to share with 4099 others.

As we get our gears rolling by quarter's end hope to come out with a sparkling clean paper akin to the New York Times or the San Fran—never mind. We hope to print the news as you deserve to see it. Period. We also hope that you can truly have an enjoyable summer. We ask that once in a while you get your noses out of those books and science labs and hay fields to make it known Summer in SLO. It's going to be a good one, Halieulujah.

The ol’ working scene: bleak but not that bleak

Money—and how to get it—is usually one of the biggest problems facing college students. When scholarships, grants, and loans fail, a job may be the solution to financial ill.

In a time of high unemployment and a deflated economy, a job becomes difficult to find. Add to this the impact of summer job seekers from high school and college, the daily retiring Vietnam veterans and competition for employment becomes stiff.

But insights of this, all is not gloom for the Cal Poly student and his or her spouse. The Campus Placement Office located in Administration 131 could be the answer.

"It is a great service, and you don't have to go running all over," said Eugene A. Rittenhouse, director of placement and financial aid.

"It is a very easy office to get to and people who are looking for work should come here.

Rittenhouse said his office has most of the jobs listed downtown and all of the jobs on campus. All campus departments hire students through the campus placement office, and a check downtown revealed that agencies there very seldom have part-time or odd jobs listed.

Administrant, manager of the local Department of Human Resources, said his office does not get many part-time or short-term job listings.

"High unemployment could cause competition between adults and students," he said.

He also said students tend to pass on part-time jobs to friends. That is if someone knows he is leaving a job he will usually tell his employer and at the same time recommend a friend for the position.

"Basically, young people are getting more adept at looking for work earlier," Mr. Wadstrup said. "They are doing a great job of getting their own jobs." He said his office is also in contact with the campus placement office to arrange interviews between students and employers.

George Shreve, owner of CENO Employment Agency, said most of his placements are female. He said his placements are 90 per cent female students or student wives. Most of them are student wives, he said.

Shreve said very few part-time jobs come into his agency. He said his busiest times are May and June and that just before quarter breaks. The reason is a lot of people quit their jobs so they can go home or on vacation.

Shreve also works with the campus placement office on occasion to fill a particular job and student work.

Rittenhouse said the placement office has filled part-time and odd jobs like secretaries, clerks, accountants, painting, window washing, busboys, and gardeners. He said one of the most interesting calls he has had was for a bean stuffer several years ago.

The procedure for registering for part-time work in the placement office is simple. As you enter the office on the left is a desk where the various jobs are listed by number on yellow five-by-eight cards. They are classified as male, cool, student wives, and miscellaneous.

After selecting a job listing you move to the part-time desk run by Carol Somers who will interview you. If you have the requirements for the job you are given a referral card sent to the employer.

A student can leave a card on this listing his or her skills, and when a listing for that skill comes in the student may be contacted if time allows.

"The hardest job is to get the regular part-time job that just fits the student," Mr. Wadstrup said. "It is the easiest job to get is the plain old odd job."

"We want to encourage the community and the college to call us, because we have students who can do anything. Our job is to get students and employers together."

Said Eugene A. Rittenhouse, director of placement and financial aid: "It is a very easy office to get to and people who are looking for work should come here.

Robert Wadstrup, manager of the Campus Placement Office, has worked long and hard on his 41-page document. He wrote in the preface that "the knowledge that is being written and published." It was obsolete before it was published.

"It is obsolete before it was written and published," Mr. Wadstrup said.

Governor Ronald Reagan's veto cuts deep into the statewide Educational Opportunity Program (EOP) slashing funding from the $4.1 million allocated by the Legislature in 1981. Richard Martinez, co-director of EOP at this school, said his program was hit with only $8,000 allocated for the 1972-1973 academic year. He said 80 freshman students only will receive $100 grants per year from the state.

"This means more National Defense Education Act Loans and federally guaranteed loans, work study, plus any other part-time employment that students can come up with," he said.

According to Martinez, a ten per cent cut in student aid will mean less student assistance in counseling and tutoring, two important aspects to the program. He added that the success of EOP is reflected in the academic success of the students in the program. "The only saving grace we have is the $8,000 from the Associated Students," Martinez said.

Resource/has not received any part-time funding.

Those directly faced with what to do about the problem are, of course, the college's administrators. But it's the students and teachers who have to work with the cuts.

In the days when the report was published, the college was rated as having facilities for approximately 8000 students. Eventually, under direction of the Master Plan for California Higher Education, this college was to level out at just over 13,000 by 1974. Unfortunately, in 1968, Proposition 3, which would have been largely responsible for financing construction of facilities necessary to bring the college to the 12,000 capacity level, was rejected by the state's voters.

The efficiency boys in Sacramento dug for an answer. Their solution, much to the dismay of both teachers and students, provided that more evening and Saturday classes be taught. This would increase classroom capacities by more than 30 per cent.

Presto! A college originally designed for 8000 students now juggles 12,000, without the addition of a single building.

Are you going to school this term? Maybe you've been out of school for a year or more. Maybe you've just settled in the area for the summer. Maybe you have to pick up some extra work to graduate. Or maybe you just have nothing better to do. Whatever your reasons be for being here, you are not alone. There are a great many others in the same situation as you. And they have formed the ASI-sponsored Outings Committee to help each other through the experience.

Students aid schools

Not every student enrolled on this campus goes to school here. Some go to schools in Monterey, Salinas, Paso Robles, Santa Maria and Lompoc. They go to first grade through high school all over the central coast but they're not regressing to childhood. They are student teachers from the Education Department.

The student teachers from this campus spend a semester working for a school in cooperation with a teacher in a particular class. They teach, give tests and help the regular teacher in grading. Once a week, they meet with a resident, instructor from this campus to discuss problems and talk about what they have experienced with fellow student teachers.

The coordinator of the student teaching activities here, Richard Jones, says schools located out of the San Luis Obispo area are benefiting from these students. They can be found in schools as far south as Ventura. This college produces a larger number of teachers each year as the need for their help increases in California communities.

Student gov't in action

It might be summer vacation for many student organizations, but student government is not one of them. The Summer Internship Committee (SIC) takes the place of the regular Student Affairs Council (SAC) and, according to ASI Vice-president Marianne Doshi, SAC has much business this summer that can’t wait until fall.

Comprised of one representative from each council on campus, SIC has the power to act on any measures that arise during Summer Quarter as well as carry-over measures from Spring Quarter.

SIC will meet at 4 p.m. on Tuesdays in CU 230. The meetings are headed by ASI President Pete Evans and are open to any interested member of the student body, faculty or staff.

When the new Evans-Doshi administration took office in May, the three major proposals upon which they had been elected were student legal-aid and housing-aid services, and a child day-care center for the use of mothers attending the college.

The budget approved by SAC the last week of Spring Quarter included no funds for any of the proposals. According to Mrs. Doshi, research is being done this summer on each of the proposed measures.

Mrs. Doshi says that a housing service code has been written and submitted to SAC for discussion and approval. If approved the measure will receive a specific coding number and can then be submitted to SAC in the fall for appropriation of budget funds. A two-thirds majority vote is needed to amend the budget.

According to Mrs. Doshi, basically the measure is designed to provide students with an on-campus housing service to aid them in finding housing, knowing the laws, and providing a tenant code. The service possibly could be staffed with trained volunteers.

An ad hoc committee has been set up by SIC to work up a student legal-aid center proposal to present, according to Mrs. Doshi. She encourages anyone interested in working either on the housing or legal aid service proposals to contact Evans or herself in the CU ASI offices.

A committee has also been set up to gather information for the day-care center proposal. Mrs. Doshi says that six other state colleges have such centers and are in the process of sending resumes on them to this school.

Another hoped-for summer accomplishment of SIC is a revision of the student government bylaws. A committee also has been established to work on this.

Mrs. Doshi emphasizes the importance of attending the Tues. afternoon meetings if you have any new ideas or old complaints to air. If your government is not being run the way you think it should be it’s up to you to do something about it.

Extinct tribe paid honor

by Brian McGlone

Not long ago there lived among the rolling hills, coasts, and valleys of San Luis Obispo a people who were considered the most advanced of any Indian tribe in this state of California. Although they were not a very cohesive tribe, they shared enough common traits and language with their neighboring villages as to be identified as a family of intelligent, industrious and generally peaceful villages that encompassed the area from present day Ventura to the narrow coastline a few miles north of Morro Bay. The people called the "Chumash" no longer exist. They are completely racially extinct. It is near impossible to find a person today who can claim even half blood ties to the Chumash even though at one time there were as many as 8,000 to 10,000 of them living on the central coast. The fact that the people that are extinct is a paradox. They were once the most populous tribe of Indians on the coast of California. Their food supply was as bounteous as the Pacific Ocean that they fished. Their intelligence and mechanical astuteness was above all other peoples in this area in the state of California. After a few years of rule under the Spanish it became apparent to the Chumash that the fate that was in store for them. Their future, in the pursuance of the old ways, was dim. These intelligent people chose genocide rather than a life under the white man's diseases helped accomplish.

Last month the Julian McPhee College Union multi-purpose room was renamed "Chumash Hall" in honor of the vanished people. This three part story will cover some of the unique attributes of the Chumash people. The Chumash first became known to the white man in 1542 when Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo sailed among the Channel Islands and along the Santa Barbara coast. He encountered the southern Chumash and found them to be very friendly. He observed several villages which consisted of many dome-shaped communal houses. The large boat could accommodate 40 to 50 people and were unique in many ways. They were partitioned into rooms which contained various platform bunk-type beds supported by posts. This hotel type arrangement usually housed 6 to 8 families. A common fire was in the middle of the hut for all to use. The present day Mustang Village housing complex is the site of an old Chumash permanent settlement.

These people were the only New World Indians to build planked canoes. Lacking big trees for docks, the Indians split planks from driftwood. The planks were shaped and smoothed by hand. The frameless boats were called at the seven seamen with a natural ashl sniff on all central coast beaches. These fast, light canoes ranged in size from 13 to 25 feet in length and held a crew of from two to 13 fishermen.

The Student Directory has been moved from its old position in the Administration Building to the lobby of the Julian A. McPhee College Union.

New students to the campus this summer should know that there is a campus store where groceries grown by the school’s agriculture department may be purchased.

Located on the north side of the campus, opposite the Math and Home Economics building, Food processing offers poultry goods, dairy goods, flowers, vegetables, and fruits, according to what is in season. Other items to be found are jams, ice creams, frozen foods.

The campus store is open from two in the afternoon to five-forty-five Monday through Friday and ten in the morning until one in the afternoon on Saturday.

Open Forum

The Consulate General of India will be on this campus next Wednesday at 11 a.m. holding an open forum. First in a series of speakers from foreign countries, he will speak and answer questions on any topic that interests you. All students are invited and the forum will be held in the Student Union, Student Council Chambers (Room 220).

Miss Fuentes received a $100 scholarship for her ad. She said John R. Healey, head of the journalism department, “It is especially pleasing, because it is the first time we have entered this contest. It is an indication of the kind of instruction she is getting in the advertising classes.”

Miss Fuentes’ instructor in advertising is Loren Nicholson, head of the advertising department for Mustang Daily.

“I am delighted that Jonnie received this honor,” said John R. Healey, head of the journalism department. “It is especially pleasing, because it is the first time we have entered this contest. It is an indication of the kind of instruction she is getting in the advertising classes.”

The Pacific Conservatory of the Performing Arts, opens its summer season July 7 with “Fiddler on the Roof” in Santa Maria.

It is the only professional-students repertory company of its kind on the West Coast. The conservatory is an outgrowth of Hancock College’s department and consists of 180 professional actors and drama students.

The Pacific Conservatory concept is unique in that it brings the professional directors and artist together with talented students from more than 50 colleges and universities west of the Mississippi River. It requires a work day beginning at 9 a.m. and ending at 11 p.m., seven days a week.

Housing and your rights

Too many people have gotten into situations where they need a lawyer, or have to go to court and don’t really know what their rights are or what to do. The S.F.A., a student chapter of the San Luis Obispo Tenants’ Association realizes the binding situations that people get into, so they are sponsoring eight more forums in the interest of informing people of basic law and legal procedures.

The first forum coming up will be Wednesday, July 14, 7:30 p.m. Speaker will be Jon Jenkins, Deputy District Attorney, who will speak on the formation, performance and breach of contracts.

Forums will be held in rooms 220, C. U. building, and 206, C. U. building.

Strange rumors of a massive gathering filtered through San Luis Obispo the week preceding the fourth of July—open invitation, twenty kegs of beer, live music, free dinner, a lake and more. Distributed flyers explained that Steve and Bill Bryan had planned a Fourth of July celebration to be held at the Carrizo Ranch, located approximately sixty miles from San Luis.

Sunday, the Fourth, brought a new day and new harrasses to the Carrizo Ranch gathering. It seems that many fun-loving party-goers jumped the gun somewhat and showed up Saturday planning to camp out and possibly make the planned one day gig into a three day affair. Open fires and open gates proved to put the owner on a “downer.” The celebration was almost halted by a thoughtless few. Some fast talking kept things open to the public, however, the reported twenty kegs of beer were never released for consumption.

The scene at noon on the Fourth was picturesque. A small lake about half the size of a football stadium nestled between barren hills and rocky slopes was the setting beside which two large hay trucks were in place and the bands began to set up. Three hundred or so people were on hand. This number had doubled by dinner time.

Following some generator problems the music beginning with records started. After the bands "got it together," Mother Ball, Sarah and The Pumphouse Gang provided a variety of sounds.

As the shadows grew longer and the Carrizo Ranch guests grew weary from swimming and extended frisby contests, a pit barbecue was into the making. Packing up after dinner the bands and the participants of this Woodstock-West gathering made their way back to their cars and to civilization.

Local joggers hit the beach

One of the highlights of the Fourth of July weekend was the six-mile beach Fun Run from Morro Bay to Cayucos. The forty-two runners ranged in age from 18 to 64 years old, and were from as far away as Santa Monica, Los Angeles. All forty-two runners covered the full distance, each at his own pace.

The first runner to reach the Cayucos pier was Jeff James of San Luis Obispo and a graduate of this school. His winning time of 23 minutes and 48 seconds improved on last year's fastest time by 16 seconds. Joe Dablll, and Paul Cummings, both of Santa Maria finished second and third with times of 34:06 and 34:35 respectively.

Cheryl Bridges, wife of men's physical education instructor Larry Bridges, finished first of the ladies contingent and with a time of 37:47 which put her in tenth position overall. Another representative of this school in this race was Dean Everett Chandler who runs regularly for conditions.

Trophies were awarded to all finishers. The next six-six Fun Run which will be August first, will start at 11 a.m. behind the boy's gym.

There will be no meetings or dues, but there will be fun, exercise and new friends. Possible future activities would be after-school picnics, historical rides, and cross-country racing. Future rides will be alternately leisurely and non-leisurely. Some destinations include the San Luis Obispo County Airport, Avila, Cal Poly, Montana de Oro, Obispo, Mission Boheme, Pismo, Morro Bay and Lopez Lake.

The next ride will be to the vicinity of the airport on July 17. 1971. Call Larry Souza Sr. at 544-3525 for further information.

Cyclists to tour San Luis area

Bicycle riders of all ages and abilities are invited to ride together on Saturday, July 11.

The ride will begin at 9:00 a.m. at the end of the Old Mission. This first ride will be an leisureary ride around San Luis Mountain. The route will follow these streets: Broad, Foothill, Lee Oss Road, Madonna Road, Hilltop, Marsh and Chorro back to the Mission Plaza.

A sag wagon will be provided for those bicycles which break down on the way.

Rodeo men rank tops

The Cal Poly Rodeo team took top honors at the National Rodeo Team Finals in both team and individual events held June 21-26 around San Luis' Mountain. The team won the National Championship with a score of 252, over second place Santa Maria with 236.

Intramural activity set

Coach Dick Heston, director of intramural activities on this campus, has announced that intramural competition will be held this summer. No definite schedule has been set as yet, but competition will be held in basketball, softball, volleyball, handball, tennis, and others.

The programs will follow along the same lines as it has in the past," said Heston.

He added that interested students should check the bulletin board outside the intramural office in the Main Gym. There will be several leagues, and any tournament you sign up for.

Alphazeta names head

Tony Turkovich, 1970-71 ASI vice president, will serve as chairman of the Cal Delta Chapter of Alpha Zeta, a national honorary and service fraternity for agricultural students. Turkovich is a senior agricultural engineering major. Serving with Turkovich will be Paul Etchechury, censor; Ray Chavers, scribe; and Clint Moffitt, treasurer. Also, Sean O'Brien, chronicler; William DeRood, representative to the student agricultural council; and Phil Robnett, sergeant-at-arms. Leaders in other capacities in the group in 1971-72 will be James Amaral, Herbfork editor; Steve Anderson, newsletter editor; and Howard Sajager, speaker's representative.

Low cost Health Aid

The Health Center is run similar to a private physician's office, but each case being handled individually by a doctor. This summer's lower rate, the regular school rate plus five dollars per quarter, is due to the Health Center. With their being closed, all other facilities, including the laboratory and X-ray service, are open, and if any Stanford requires hospitalization will be transferred to the community hospital.

While their are no automatic treatments doctors will give careful attention to such maladies as colds, allergies, emotional problems and contraception, as well as normal ills. There are special rates for married students and their families also, with the center capable of handling the early phases of pregnancies where needed.

The Health Center is open from 8 to 5 daily with a number posted at the door.

Coffee house is open to public

Thursday night movie doesn't make it! For a little melllow alternative scene try a coffee house. (Yes, Virginia, San Luis Obispo does have one.)

The name of the place is the Bridge, and it's tucked neatly away in a corner of a building next door to an ivy-covered church downtown. 961 Marsh St. to be exact. Across the street from the post office.

Eight months old now, after a one-month rest, the Bridge is reopening at 8 p.m. tonight. It will be open again this Saturday night, and every Thursday and Saturday thereafter, until it can find a place of its own where it can be open up to four nights a week. (If you have any suggestions of a location, give Director Craig Osborne a call at 543-8541.)

The Bridge is a non-profit Christian coffeehouse which was founded last fall by Craig Osborne, as his senior project. It features local entertainment, speakers, and lots of talk.
