Food stamps: It was great while it lasted

by Jeanne Wiles
Staff Writer

Unrelated students living together who now receive food stamps, or plan to apply for them, in most cases had better forget it.

Shirley Daugherty, Economic Opportunity Commission (EOC) county director, knows the amendments to the Food Stamp Act of 1964 will affect college students. Students residing or boarding together, if not married, will be eligible to receive food stamps, but dependents of families are not eligible for food stamps, will lose their food stamp privileges.

Amendments to the Food Stamp Act were passed by Congress and signed by President Nixon last year.

The local county welfare supervisor in charge of the local food stamp program was ill, and the number of students who will be affected here was unavailable.

Neither Mrs. Daugherty nor George Sanborn, San Luis Obispo county EOC director, knew exactly when the new law will go into effect. "It goes into effect the number of students who will be affected," Mrs. Daugherty said. Sanborn added dryly, "God knows when it will go into effect."

At present, eligibility for food stamps is determined by the size of the household and its adjusted net income (ANI). Until now, the term "household" has included a group of related or unrelated individuals. Households, as the students are, and students are not considered together who now receive food stamp privileges.

According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) plan to relieve farmers of excess food staples, and at the same time provide help to poor families to buy more food.

Agriculture originated in 1964, the federal food stamp program was part of the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) plan to relieve farmers of excess food staples, and at the same time enable poor families to buy more food.

According to the USDA-published Food Stamp Fact Sheet, the plan basically works this way: An individual applying for the food stamp program, is certified by the Welfare Department, receives an "authorization-to-purchase" card, and applies to the local Welfare office. The County Treasurer's office then issues an "approval-to-purchase" card. The store retailer than deposits the stamps in the bank and is reimbursed with cash.

While the amendments will net many single students receiving cash, and many single students receiving cash, they should be aware of the impending changes to food stamp arrangements to offset possible drastic financial effects when the amendments do not affect married college students who already receive food for the stamps.

The store retailer then deposits the stamps in the bank and is reimbursed with cash. If an individual's ANI is less than $25, he may pay $150 for food stamps, of which $25 is a cash payment, and $125 is a food stamp payment. The store retailer than deposits the stamps in the bank and is reimbursed with cash.

When the amendments will not affect married college students who already receive food for the stamps, the amendments do not affect married college students who already receive food for the stamps. They should be aware of the impending changes to food stamp arrangements to offset possible drastic financial effects when the amendments do not affect married college students who already receive food for the stamps.

Free play at “Bridge”

“The Poet,” an intense poetic drama, will be presented reading style this Saturday, August 14, at 9 p.m. in The Bridge, a downtown coffeehouse at 36 March.

Don Wallis, the play’s author, announced the drama reading that some admission will be charged but donations will be accepted. He said the play explores the despair of a man with an existentialist philosophy.

The cast of five includes Jim Arnold, a former student of this campus, Janice Wise, a student there, Michael McGarry and Ben Derrick, former Cuesta college students and Wallis.

Officers want bylaw response

Editor:
Copies of the following letter were written and sent to Chancellor Duma, Norman Epstein, Mayor Chapman, acting Dean Rittanhouae and President Kennedy. There has been an unusual postponement in response to any kind, since receipt of the bylaws. Sending them to the Chancellor’s Office was deemed necessary by the Administration, and our bylaws proceeded to become lost.

“Gentlemen:
On April 10, 1971 the bylaws for the Student Tenant Association were submitted to administrative channels after dutifully passing all student government bodies. We are now celebrating our fourth month of suspense awaiting a reply to the status of the bylaws.

We recently gave approval to certain changes we felt could be made without any loss to the functions of the organization which we originally conceived. The only explanation we got for the bylaws being submitted through those unusual channels with which we must deal was the “unusual nature” of the organization. However, there was no direct correspondence between those acting upon the potential approval and those responsible for the original document.

We were thoroughly delighted to see the Student Housing Service Code passed and approved by the Cal Poly Administration in less than 14 hours!! We would again like to mention we are entering our fourth month for the STA. Some correspondence about the situation would be greatly appreciated and perhaps an explanation for the delay. Steering Committee and Officers of the Student Tenant Association, Cal Poly, San Luis Obispo. Jim Dwelling, Roger Thompson, Dana Clark, Pete Evans.

That salary will remain un­ changed until after the 1978 election and, unless a change is voted prior to 1978, there will be no possibility of an increase until 1978. At the moment, the average salary for administrators in California and the state colleges has a higher scale of salaries for administrators than the scale for the top elected officials of state government.

Indeed, in the University, a changed salary scale would be a higher scale than the pay rate of the office of Governor.

Child care?

To those who still think of college students as carefree young men and women just barely out of high school, it's difficult to imagine that the establishment of child care centers should become one of the most pressing current campus issues. The more one realizes that this is so in fact, is likely to produce a nervous snicker among middle-age alumni.

The idea is innovative and there are many problems related to it which must be worked out. The more equipment donated or built by volunteers, the more funds volunteered or raised by interested groups, the easier establishment and operation of the program will be. Anyone willing to donate labor, equipment call Mariann Dehi 964-2011. If interested in working on the Ad Hoc Committee, we meet every Tuesday at 11 am in room 217 in the College Union.

Nelson Lakes next stop

Nelson Lakes in the Sierra is the next destination for the Summer Outing Club. The cost for the trip is $8.00 and they will leave at 5 pm tomorrow, August 13.

For those forced to remain in San Luis Obispo this weekend the club has another activity- horseback riding in Avila. Sign-up close at 8 am tomorrow morning. The cost is $3.00.

A vacation program for San Luis Obispo County horses will get underway in two or three weeks, according to a campus veterinarian, Dr. Morton Fetters. The program will safeguard the horses against VEE (Venezuelan equine encephalomyelitis). The mosquito-transmitted disease has been killing horses in Mexico and Texas, but so far not a single case of VEE has been reported in California.

Dr. Fetters said the 80 to 90 horses on campus will be vaccinated along with the rest of the horses in the county.

All horses brought to this college this fall will have to be vaccinated, also. This may cause problems for some students planning on bringing their horses with them and using them a lot, because the horses must be quarantined two weeks before the vaccination.

Two horror flicks to be viewed ‘back-to-back’

Two classic horror films, "Phantom of the Opera" and "House of Frankenstein," will be shown tonight at 8 pm in Chumash Hall. Admission is 50 cents.

Phantom of the Opera stars Nelson Eddy, Claude Rains and Jesse Matthews. It is the story of a singer that was disfigured by his on-stage love, Nelson Eddy, Claude Rains, and J. Carrol Naish. It is a tale of revenge on the man who had caused his disfigurement.

During the past year there were 53 foreign students attending Cal Poly, 18 of whom are expected to return this September; approximately 18 students will be able to afford this new increase, which leaves 35 foreign students who will need partial or total subsidy through loans in order to continue their education.

For the above reasons, we, foreign students, find it necessary to appeal to our fellow students for any assistance (monetary or otherwise) that you can give us.

The International Council and all foreign students currently in the area are meeting in emergency sessions to attempt to resolve this crisis. Our meetings are open to all students, American and foreign, and we welcome all those who wish to attend and assist us.

For further information please contact Pete Evans, president, 964-2011; Raul Muniz, international council chairman, 944-2289; Dr. Richard Vetter, counselor.

"Entertaining Central California from San Luis Obispo...KCPR."

Sound familiar? The people at KCPR, campus radio, hope so. Because they put more work into keeping you listening than their transmitter puts out radio waves. What makes Campus Radio tick—or talk? In the spring, it was a staff of nearly 80 students, some broadcast journalism majors, mostly just people who wanted to learn a little about what radio is like. Most of the newcomers are interested in becoming disc jockeys. This requires a Third Class Radiotelephone license issued by the Federal Communications Commission. The station’s chief engineer may issue a Provisional license if the applicant can’t make it to the testing centers in San Francisco or Los Angeles. Then he begins a training program that includes instruction on the operation of the control board, watching an experienced "jock," and finally he conducts a show of his own under supervision.

But there is much more to KCPR than meets the ear. There are 13 departments for all of the off-the-air work. A music staff spends hundreds of man-hours receiving every record that is received during the week. This means listening to every single and each cut of every album. Only one out of every four singles will be selected for airplay.

Closely related are the news department and those who work on academic programming. Starting this fall, there will be a brief newscast each hour, and a half-hour summary in the evening.

Then there is the thankless job of typing logs. Those are the "instruction sheets" to the D.J.’s, saying what is to be done, when.

Part of the station’s service to the campus is announcement of events for student and faculty organizations. Writing and recording these is the job of the continuity department.

New testing program college class credit

All freshmen entering in September at Bahokfield State and one-third of those entering San Francisco State have applied to take tests through which they can earn college credit prior to their starting classes.

The students earn college credit by passing tests developed through the College Level Examination Program (CLEP). Passing any of five CLEP tests enables the student to receive 15 semester units and is classified as a sophomore. By passing all five tests, the freshman receives 30 semester units and is classified as an upperclassman.

Draft still up in air

Many young men seem to think that the Selective Service Act has permanently expired and that they will probably never receive the letter. "Please report for induction," some also think the entire system has collapsed. They are wrong. They, therefore, may be unintentionally breaking the law by failing to report, if ordered, for their pre-induction physical, by failing to register at any time by not keeping their board informed of their current address. Our local board has been told to continue to register and classify men, and in order for pre-induction physical examinations three young men who may be needed to fill draft calls in the coming months.

Where may the 18-20 year-olds go to vote?

The controversy over where 18-year-old voters may register is set for discussion at the upcoming San Luis Obispo City Council meeting next Monday evening. According to Keith Gurnee, councilman, the issue involves voters between the ages of 18 and 20, who are being required to register in the home of their parents. Students on this campus who fall into this category are unable to vote in San Luis Obispo elections.

"This residence requirement is just an opinion that is being followed by the Attorney General of California, and if we can change his opinion then we can hope to get this requirement changed," Gurnee said.

The Council meets in chambers in the City Hall, 900 Palm Street, 7:00 p.m. The meeting is open to the public.

ASSIST runs ‘A to F’ gamut

Grades from ‘A’ to ‘F’ will be assigned this college’s teachers by a group known as ASSIST (Associated Student’s Survey of Instructor’s Teachings). There will be two meetings today at 11 a.m. and 4 p.m. for people interested in putting out a publication consisting of ASSIST results. It will be in Conference Room 214 of the College Union.

Active P.E. Workshop participants ‘buzz off’

by Malcolm Stone
Staff Writer

After two full weeks of intensive activity, games, teaching, lectures and social events, more than 470 participants will wind up the 16th annual Physical Education Workshop this weekend.

The campus has been a beehive of running, jogging, swimming, tennis, baseball and other physical activities both men and women coaches, teachers and students of P.E. from all over the country.

Statue of the annual Workshop was summed up by Dr. Robert A. Mott, head of the college's physical education department. He has been connected with the event since its inception and has been on the Cal Poly faculty for 36 years.

He said that in the beginning there was very little money for advertising or anything else, but in 1968 the old Brooklyn Dodgers put up some money which helped the men's workshop and helped to give the women's workshop a push.

The college became interested in the program early and it became his assignment. One that he has nurtured well.

He feels the programs have helped to correct the impression that some uninformed people might have of the campus as just a “coed college.”

"It has helped the public relations of the college," he said.

"Public relations wise, the name becomes known throughout the world. It helps you in job placement. People come here in the summer time, coaches and physical education department heads, to hire our graduates."

Since 1968 the men's and women's workshops have been held concurrently.

Dr. Mott said the men's workshop program has worked out pretty well. It allows better use of facilities, and participants in both workshops can benefit from various workshop leaders.

Dr. Mott added that the workshop's reputation has progressed to the point where the State Department sends foreign coaches here to participate. This year there are two people here from Indonesia, and last year Uganda and Nigeria were represented.

Dr. Mott said the workshop participants benefit in several ways.

"They learn the latest techniques in coaching and teaching. They can impart these when they return to their own campuses."

"They learn some of the problems facing coaches. Things are continually changing. If they can't relate and cope they're in for a long, long day. I think that is one of the important things."

"Moonlight bowling coming up"

Results from last week's bowling show The Woodchucks bowling team was first place Monday night, August 2, with a 1,828 pin-score record with Green Bag taking second place with a 1,546 record. On Wednesday night the Hookers were in first place with a 1,173-.record. Wednesday night is a rough, tight league with four teams tied for second place with 1,149 records.

High games for last week were Jerry Clark, 284 and Beverly Cho, 188. High series was bowled by Dave Johnston, 610.

An interesting sidelight will be coming up for the league. Moonlight Bowling will add its special effects for the bowlers and those watching. In Moonlight bowling, the pin deck, pool and telescore lights are the only lights on.

"Soccer free-for-all"

If you have a knack for playing soccer or even if you are uncoordinated with two left feet, you're invited to try the game this Sunday, August 15. At three p.m. on the old track anybody who feels like playing a free-for-all soccer game is welcome to try.

Brown: no. 1 in CCAA

Reynaldo Brown, Cal Poly's premier high jumper, has received another honor as the California Collegiate Athletic Association's "athlete of the year" 1970-71.

Brown, a 29-year-old sophomore, was named "athlete of the year" here last year by Joe Harper, Poly's director of athletics.

Brown helped the Mustangs to a second-place finish in the National Collegiate Athletic Association college division championships and then went on to win the NCAA university division high jump crown.

Brown won 27 individual championships in his specialty and finished second in five other meets. Brown is on the AAU European tour for the summer.
