Highway route creates uproar

by CANDY IRVING

A proposed rerouting of Highway 101 through Obispo would have its ups and downs—disputes are fighting it and the state Highway Commission Is supporting it.

Controversy over the alternate route erupted last spring when the route came up for design considerations. The project's foes suggest that the state's decision was a mistake.

The twin two-lane interchange at Madonna Road would have been bypassed by the two-lane route. A cut-off road was to pass through a saddle between the hill behind the Obispo City government complex and the

Senator—Hanoi will talk

Washington (UPI)—Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., said Tuesday the chief North Vietnamese delegate at the Paris peace talks had even affirmed Hanoi's willingness to release U.S. prisoners of war in exchange for American withdrawal from Vietnam.

McGovern said Xuan Thuy had advised him on Sept. 18 that the senator's interpretation of North Vietnam's position on the release of prisoners was correct.

"If our objective is to achieve release of our prisoners of war, then all or need do is meet the willngness of the other parties to release all U.S. prisoners in exchange for a full U.S. withdrawal," the senator declared.

Brazillian plane crashes

A Brazilian Cruasiro De Hrl Airlined DC-4 crashed and burned Tuesday in the northeastern state of Acre killing all 52 persons aboard, an airline spokesman said.

One of the DC-4's engines failed when the plane took off from Iara Medeiros Airport, according to the airline's office here. The pilot attempted to return to the airport with one engine but the plane crashed.

The plane carried 59 passengers and four crew members. Among the victims was Mgr. Goodeo Gotti, auxiliary bishop of Rio Branco, the Acre state capital.

The plane was on a flight to Rio Branco about 500 miles to the south. The area is near Brazil's western border with Peru and is heavily jungled.

New price cut

Washington (UPI) — The Cost of Living Council ruled Tuesday that retail stores may stop giving coupons and discounts to customers in the form of lower prices.

The council said that a 25-cent discount on a $10 purchase is equivalent to a 1 percent reduction in the price of the goods.

Voting—it's about time

The state supreme court decision allowing students to vote at their college address was the only course of action the seven justices could have reasonably taken.

For years, far too many, those under 21 years of age have struggled to be accepted as adults. Finally, the 18-21 year-old group was admitted into the circle of voters, yet at the eleventh hour it appeared they would be required to vote at the residence of their parents.

But thanks to the Aug. 27 supreme court decision, we can vote where we go to school. That means students at this college, who live in San Luis Obispo. For the first time, we will have a hand in the affairs of the city.

This summer AUI President Pete Evans said it is time for the students here to affect city politics. This seemed to distress some area residents who, weary of student takeover, feel students do not pay taxes and therefore should not share in elections. They believe that students should be required to vote where their parents live.

Fortunately, the privilege of voting is based on one man-one vote, not upon the social or financial status of an individual. The vote of a student living within city boundaries is just as important in local elections as any other resident, taxpayer or otherwise.

In making its decision the state supreme court said "Compelling young people who live apart from their parents to travel in their parent's district to register and vote or else to register and vote as absentee burdens the right to vote." We agree. Moreover, the fallacy of making young men or women vote where their parents live and not in the area directly affec ting them was voiced by the court.

The announcement cleared the final obstacles to full utilization of the 26th amendment—at least in California. Now 11 states have extended voting rights to students where they attend school. We hope the remaining 34 legislatures soon come to their senses and rule on what is clearly the logical path to take.

Groups plan prison protests

New York (UPI) — A collection of anti-war groups Tuesday named nine U.S. prisons from Connecticut to California where demonstrations are planned to protest American and South Vietnamese penal practices.

The demonstrations will be directed against a wide range of abuses but chiefly against the handling of the Atkins prison rebellion, the death of parolees in anti-war pris ta Daniel and Phillip Berrigan and the alleged continued U.S. funding and staffing of South Vietnamese prisons, a spokesman said.

Dr. George Walk, the Nobel-prize winning Harvard biologist who spoke at a news conference announcing sites, said the demonstrations would be peaceful and for the immediate purpose of demanding reform in prison and parole policies.

The largest demonstration is planned at the Federal Correctional Institute in Danbury, Conn., where the two Berrigans are imprisoned.
State holds back benefits; student sues

by RANDY FRY

Once again the state and the student are battling over each other’s rights and priorities. And, as usual, the battle has ended up in court.

Norman Stone, a Journalism student here, decided to fight a decision of the local Department of Human Resources which denied him unemployment benefits. The outcome now rests with the superior court judge who must decide whether or not to approve Stone’s petition to force the state board to show cause for the refusal to award the benefits.

Stone, a cook, was laid off last winter and began collecting his unemployment insurance. Unable to find another job, he enrolled here as a full-time student—subsequently his payments were stopped. The local Department of Human Resources reasoned that since he was a full-time student, he could not be actively seeking new employment. Stone disagreed, claiming that he could still work while a student, but that jobs were non-existent at the time. (Stone now is a full-time student and works a 40-hour week.)

The case then went before a state referee whose job it is to rule on such cases. The referee was presented both sides of the argument, and ruled in favor of Stone. Things did not end there; the state board examined and then returned a decision overturning the referee’s judgement.

Using the only means left under the law, Stone instructed his lawyer, Donald Haynes, to file a petition in San Luis Obispo County Court demanding that the state show cause. And here the matter rests.

This case, says the plaintiff, is important to him not so much to collect the money he feels is due him, but to settle the conflict that it has created. He stated that he feels it’s ridiculous to penalize someone for going to school in times of no work.

“If I know that there’s no work... why can’t I try to better myself by taking classes while I wait for a job?” he asked.

Commenting on the reversal of the favorable decision in his favor, Stone said he felt the blame rested with the Reagan appointed state board, rather than with the referee, a civil servant.

AID LIST

Who will do abortions?

Abortion need no longer worry California students.

Help in legal abortions at the lowest cost is now easily attained by telephone from the Abortion Information Data (AID) Bank in San Francisco.

AID Bank provides callers with names of physicians and hospitals within their vicinity who are willing to perform legal abortions.

AID service began last March by Zero Population Growth Fund, a national population organization. Elin Riggs, AID Bank head, described the service as “a way of helping people find the least expensive legal abortions, while providing an alternative to unnecessary, and at times dangerously time-consuming ‘personal counselling’ approach. If a woman wants to discuss adoption or other alternatives to abortion, we’ll arrange to have aHighlights from the AID Bank include:

- The service keeps records on more than 800 clinics and physicians throughout the U.S. who will perform legal abortion.
- The AID Bank refers directly to doctors.
- The service is confidential and financial status, and number of weeks pregnant. We air-dail a list of doctors, clinics, and counseling agencies nearest the caller, together with information concerning fees and eligibility requirements and a hardback handbook listing different medical procedures.

All communication with callers are confidential. AID Bank requests five dollars from each woman contacting the service to help defray costs. The address for AID Bank is P.O. Box 1848, San Francisco, CA 94118, the phone number (415) 361-8833.

World powers propose new arms control treaty

by JOHN A. CALLCOTT

Geneva (UPI)—The United States, Russia and their NATO and Warsaw Pact allies Tuesday proposed a new arms control treaty to abolish all biological weapons and prohibit any future production for all time.

The treaty was submitted to the 26-nation disarmament conference and was the first proposal made jointly by all NATO and Warsaw Pact nations since the talks began in 1961.

The treaty reflects views of all 26 countries to be adopted. U.S. negotiator James P. Leonard said the treaty reflects everyone's views.

Soviet negotiator Aleksei A. Romanov made the same comment, adding that Moscow agreed to the destruction clause at the request of others.

Although not fully endorsed at the conference by all nations which also want chemical weapons banned, the treaty received general approval as the best compromise possible. It will now go to the United Nations General Assembly with endorsement by the world body expected in the latter half of November.

The treaty will prohibit the development, production and stockpiling of all biological warfare agents and toxins.

Parties to the treaty also agreed to eliminate existing stocks of such weapons within nine months after the treaty goes into effect.

The treaty reflects views of the treaty must be ratified by all countries.

The treaty was submitted to the United Nations Security Council with endorsement by the world body expected in the latter half of November.

Program is really 'HEP'

There are 50 students on this campus who are getting a second chance at a high school diploma. They're finding out it's really HEP.

The High School Equivalency Program (HEP) is a federally-financed attempt to give educational opportunities to children of migratory farm workers. One of the eligibility requirements for the program is that the student must have dropped out of high school.

Salvador Madrigal, director, and Frank Herrera, associate director of the program, explained that the object of the program is to qualify the students for the General Education Diploma. Nationwide, the average time a student in the program takes to obtain his GED is 4.5 months.

The HEP program on this campus is operated under a $21,000 federal grant which provides the youth, a faculty, and administrative staff, pays for board and room, and reimburses the college for use of college facilities.

Herrera, who has been associated with HEP for six months, feels it is "the most satisfying experience in his life." He is proud of 59 graduates from the program at San Diego, 13 are continuing at college.

One of the major emergency problems to hit SIC was the dramatic increase in foreign students' tuition fees. Despite the promises made at registration that would have allowed returning foreign students to finish their education at the existing tuition rate, tuition was raised by $58 per year for all foreign students.

Mrs. Doshi said that knowing many of these students would be financially unable to continue their education, an emergency action committee was formed. Some of their accomplishments included securing living spaces for foreign students in two of the "jungle" dorms, deferring the $80 per quarter fee increase until 30 days before the end of the quarter, relaxed pre-registration and library procedures to provide tuition loans of $50 for each student meeting them, establishment of an emergency loan fund to aid, housing, and children's centers, a Third-World Affairs Action Committee, a Student Social Services Board, which would Initiating new boards and consolidating existing ones "to reflect the change in needs of the students."

Tentative plans for the three large boards are in include a Student Social Services Board, under which would come legal aid, housing, and children's centers, a Third-World Affairs Action Committee, which has been expanded to two and one-half hours starting at 1 p.m.

According to Mrs. Doshi, "there's a change in student government reorganisation. The officers are establishing new boards and consolidating existing ones "to reflect the change in needs of the students."

Contrary to the apprehension that plans for these three boards are still in the tentative stage.

Supreme Court bench to have silk stockings?

Washington, D.C. (UPI) -President Nixon was reported Tuesday to be eager to fill the two Supreme Court vacancies soon after the court begins its fall term next Monday.

After a 90-minute White House meeting, Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott told newsmen that Nixon hopes his nominations "can be expedited so the court can operate at full strength."

He said Nixon indicated he has some candidates under "active consideration" and that his appointments will be submitted to the Senate "just as soon as he can."

Midnight cowboy:

retarded student plane pilot tackles the ride of his life

Okahoma City (UPI) — Leroy Savage had a few drinks before takeoff, and he thought the clock was a dark red and white airplane and took off into the night sky. He pushed his cowboy hat back over his shaggy, sandy hair, and it didn't seem to make much difference. He drove hours of flight training. Savage, 30, scored the Connie 50 single-engine aircraft 2,000 feet high into the darkness and textbooks. Jeff, Savage, received the address and telephone number of the seller, who said he was selling the book. Jeff Whittaker sends a book to the student, and the book is then sold by Jeff's book sales service.

Help on the way

Wright gave recommended solutions, addresses, and phone numbers via radio to help the student land. "We just kept trying to assure them. We were just concerned about their welfare," Wright said. "We didn't tell them we couldn't see them and kept saying we could see them. They were going on and we didn't want him missing around with the switches and screwing up something." The landing was perfect. "He got the plane up in the air and then realized he didn't have enough fuel, so he put the plane down," said John W. Burns, a special FBI agent in charge at Jeff's book sales service.

Supreme Court justice Black buried Tuesday

Washington (UPI) — Hugo L. Black, son of a Clay County Ala., storekeeper who runs a produce store in the Supreme Court, was buried in an unfinished pine coffin Tuesday and enclosed as a legal giant who "had little patience with so-called strict constructionists." President Nixon decided at the last minute to attend the service at Washington Cathedral for Black, who died Saturday at age 88 after a severe stroke. The president the previous day had attended the funeral of John M. Harlan, 72, who retired last week and left the court a negro pilot.

Attica chief says reform to continue
by CLAY F. RICHARDS
Albany, N.Y. (UPI)—State Corrections Commissioner Russell G. Convis, viewing "we're not going backwards," said Tuesday prison reform would continue in New York State despite the five-day Attica state prison revolt which claimed 42 lives.
"It would be less than honest to say that the Attica uprising hasn't slowed progress," Convis said, "but over a period of time—say three years—I am confident we will remove the roadblocks to progress." Convis said reformers would continue in New York State.

"The hardest thing is to set up a temporary facility for the prisoners to segregate them from the rest of the prison population until such a facility is ready," Convis said, adding that the "maximum security facility" in Northfield, N.Y., is "not going backward!"

He said he would resign in three years if more than 10 per cent of the state's 28 institutions with lesser security, rather than the maximum security one at Northfield, was prohibited. While discussing the proper institutions for troublesome prisoners, Convis said they would be the same point of view as current investigations, which are "in the hands of the U.N. General Assembly to endorse the Community's peace negotiating position and condemn U.S. policies in Vietnam.

"There was a report there that Oswald was killed on July 4, but nothing happened. There must have been some plans made for the disturbance. It was reasonably well organised. We found a calendar inside one cell with Sept. 9, the day the riot started, circled. And they were working on a large number of hostages," Convis said.

Nixon outlined no timetable for securing the POWs' freedom, but he received a standing ovation when he finished his remarks—just as he had when he entered the Blair House ballroom where a banquet was just getting underway.

Earlier in the day, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., told the families that their relatives were "voting" in camps because the Nixon administration still had not responded to the Viet Cong's "one proposal to release prisoners in exchange for withdrawal of all U.S. military forces from South Vietnam by the end of this year.

Before the President arrived, the league—largest organization of its kind—adopted a series of resolutions expressing the members' frustration and inability to get the U.S. to make progress in getting the men home.

In his brief speech, Nixon observed that ever since he met with the White House with a group of relatives of POWs and men missing in action MIA, he had decided that resuming the "personal commitment" in a sincere appearance at the second annual convention of the National League of Families of American Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia.

Prisoner release seen as eventual move—Nixon
by DANIEL RAPORT
Washington (UPI)—President Nixon Tuesday told families of American prisoners of war that the United States would "eventually succeed" in winning their release.

The President offered his "personal commitment" in a serene appearance at the second annual convention of the National League of Families of American Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia.

Highway rerouting . . .

earlier controversy six years ago, when objection then centered on keeping it out of the downtown area.

Now bypassing the city as it would and going through a sparsely developed area, the advocates of this proposal are convinced by the state that an improved, cheaper, more practical, efficient and direct route that could be adopted is regarded by the public. The general plan calls for a Highway 1 at a grade separation with the old Highway 1, and at a bridge over the old Highway 1 at a grade separation.

Subsequent commercial development along the other route originally considered—one starting in the area of Los Osos Valley Road at Laguna Lake Park and another through downtown via Broad or Santa Rosa streets or California Boulevard—has probably priced those right-of-way out of reach.

The general plan calls for development of the area from now to low residential density. The peaks along the way—on the dike, over the Railroad, and to Ross—Remain an area virtually unaffected by structures, mostly because rising water up their steep sides would be too costly.

But freeway or no, the area could be regraded and developed if

Viet election vote in House

Washington (UPI) A group of congressmen plan to force a House vote Thursday on a resolution denouncing the election results in South Vietnam.

Rep. Bella Abzug, D-N.Y., said Tuesday she was drafting a House Department bill condemning the result of the South Vietnamese election.
