‘Shoot rioters on sight’

by KATE WEBB

Saigon (UPI)—President Ngo Dinh Diem ordered police throughout South Vietnam on Wednesday to shoot to kill any demonstrators caught burning cars or committing other acts of violence during protests against his one-man race for re-election Oct. 3.

Diem’s hard-line order was delivered at a meeting of 400 police chiefs gathered in the Saigon suburb of Gia Dinh. It also was published in the semi-official government news agency, Vietnam Press.

Hours before Diem spoke to the police, militant Buddhists formed the second major group to protest the elections and called on General Duong Van “Big” Minh, who is running for re-election, to “renounce all side deals” and run as a “two-man race” against Diem.

Street violence in Saigon abated Wednesday as police intensified their checks of student, veteran and Buddhist headquarters including the An Phu pagoda. The An Phu pagoda is the seat of the militant Buddhist faction and the place where the new committee against the elections was formed in a six-hour meeting Tuesday night.

One car belonging to an American company was reported burned by demonstrators early Wednesday. A terrorist explosion, apparently Communist, injured 34 persons, mostly South Vietnamese soldiers and police, outside an open-air restaurant in the suburb of Phu My.

Thieu, in his crackdown statement, said the policies had been given their orders “to prevent the nation from falling into disorder.”

The president of the National Liberation Front Viet Cong president, Nguyen Huu Tho, Tuesday night sent his “warm regards” to the anti-Thieu demonstrators and political groups.

Though considerable housing has been added to Saigon Obligo, overcrowding is not the main reason for the surplus housing, according to Dean of Men’s Colony, Harriet Hippo.

“It is true that considerable housing has been added,” Chandler continued, “but it is the sum of many small things.” He listed some of the reasons as the closing of the West Facilities at the Men’s Colony, as a result, 90 families of guards and other workers left the area. Another big factor was the failure to replace 61 faculty positions at this college. Increase in the foreign student tuition from 1968 to 1971 caused a drop of 250 in that area and the total enrollment dropped by 80, according to Chandler.

As of Tuesday there were some 700 vacancies in college-type residence halls, according to Dean of Men’s Colony, Harriet Hippo. As a result, 90 families of guards and other workers left the area. 'College should take action'

The editorial in Tuesday's Mustang Daily contained a letter to the editor from a person who signed his correspondence 'Amadeus Boccaccus.' In his letter, concerning waiting in line during registration, this person said he would have crawled into the room at the Paris peace talks if it would help free American prisoners.

Goldwater described as "disgusting" a comment tuesday by kennedy to relatives and friends of POWs that if necessary, I would have crawled into the room" at the Paris peace talks if it would help free American prisoners.

The Goldwater-Kennedy controversy over the Paris peace talks has been a major issue in the campaign for the presidency. Goldwater, a Republican candidate, has sought to portray Kennedy, the Democratic candidate, as soft on communism.

Goldwater contended that Kennedy was trying to exploit the POWs and their families for political gain. "If necessary, I would have crawled into the room at the Paris peace talks if it would help free American prisoners," Goldwater charged. "Kennedy's use of the POWs and their families for a newspaper headline is disgusting."

Kennedy, in a response to Goldwater's charges, defended his actions, saying, "I have many applications now—am waiting for more before making any decisions—get them in soon."
Cavern’ kicks off year

The Cavern, by Jean Anouilh, is slated as the first drama presentation for the fall quarter by the speech department. The play will run Nov. 11-13. The play, interwoven with plots and complement each other, promises to reward theater goers with a most interesting evening of entertainment, according to Robin Lake, speech instructor and director of the play.

A turn-of-the-century tale of murder which takes place in France, the play contains three plots; a struggle between classes, a murdered female cook, and flash backs into why this murder was committed. Couple this with the overriding theme of a playwright trying to compose a play with these variables and the final outcome is four small plays within one.

Barbara Harris will play the lead as the cook and Bruce Wilkinson will add support in his role as the author.

number of thefts on campus is programs very well, according to Chief George Coffield, head of the Campus Security Office which included the problem.

About 200 students have taken advantage of the easy, said Coffield. "We're not looking for money - it's for the students' own protection, and the registration sticker shall take only ten minutes of their time," he explained.

Students may register their bicycles by picking up special registration stickers at the Security Office between 8 and 11 a.m. The serial number, make, and color of the bikes in then filed there.

The problem began when the accounting office here.

A late summer change in ac- counting procedures for the state college system has caused problems for both students and the accounting office here.

"Everything is last minute for us," said Robert J. Miller, ac- counting officer. "We have to apply the same procedures that we have been applying to E.O.P. students to all general government financed students. It really blinds us for a loop. It's a whole new accounting procedure."

The problem began when the Chancellor's office directed the college to pay in advance all of the appropriate bills owed to the college by these students. These expenses include fees, housing, meals and any other items that fall in this category.

The new policy covers all students on federal or state grants and loans.

There was no time to inform students of the change and this created additional problems. Students on the various govern- ment programs were supposed to go through the free-exempt line at registration, but many of them paid their fees as usual at that time.

As a result, many students were upset when they received their checks, because they were not aware of the deductions.

"There was a misun- derstanding in several places," said Ruth Lundquist, accounting clerk. "It means rescheduling everything."

The problem is compounded because the new responsibility was added without additional staffing as a result of the freeze on hiring.

"Without the freeze it is almost impossible to get someone who understands the accounting procedures," Miller said.

Students soon find, sometimes painfully, that the only protection from a rip-off is a good lock and galvanized chain.
Alex Stewart

This year. All students planning to bike lanes, one-way streets, and new lanes

Irresponsible running of stop signs and other violations are not stopped, cyclists will be ticketed.

There is a space problem due to the increasing number of bicycles. Phillips estimated that the number of bicycles has doubled since last year, and one thought about 800 extra spaces were added this summer, there is still a shortage. Phillips said that there is no immediate solution to the problem, and that students would not be penalized for chaining their bicycles to trees and other objects.

In the future there are plans for equipping campus housing facilities with covered bicycle racks such as are being used now at Yosemite Hall.

The students also seem to be having a favorable reaction to the new system. Of a handful of students, both drivers and cyclists, who were asked for their opinion of the new lanes, all found some degree of favor for the new system. Perhaps feelings can be summed up by one student who said "Anything for students."

Sometimes bikes disappear, along with whatever they are chained to. Solution: Nature's Immovable Bike Racks.

A bike is a bike is a bike... Apparently no power and weight limitations have been placed on the bike lanes...yet.

First fall concert Friday

Danny Cox, guitarist and blues singer, will open the concert season at this college when he appears in the Men's Gym at 8 p.m. on Friday, Oct. 1.

Cox was the popular supporting act for the Chamber's Brothers appearance here last April. The talented guitarist and vocalist's appearances are sponsored by the Assembly Committee.

The concert is open to the public. Admission will be $1 for college students and $2 for all others.

The 28-year-old performer, whose home-base is Kansas City, Mo., has played in clubs throughout the nation. Reviewers have praised Cox's ability to take songs everyone else is performing and make them sound like his own personal songs.

The singer, a native of Cincinnati, plays the six-string guitar in a classical manner. Following a Cleveland, Ohio appearance, reviewer P. J. Toth said, "how one man could get so much variation out of a six-string guitar is almost incomprehensible." Toth concluded his review by saying, "I didn't think I could take much more. Cox had me emotionally wrung out."

Cox appears on the Sunflower phonograph label in an album titled "Danny Cox Live at the Family Dog".

Supporting Cox in the concert will be Kajsa Ohman, who appeared at the opening of the Julian A. McPhee College Union on campus last spring, and contemporary satirical comedians Cheech and Chong. Richard Cheech and Tommy Chong's first acts together in Vancouver were straight situation comedy, but they slowly began to change their act.

Cheech and Chong use their ethnic backgrounds, Chicano, and Chinese to full advantage, so the combination of ethnic and dope oriented comedy situations proved to be their area of recognition.

Volunteer army in 1973?

WASHINGTON (UPI)—If the United States goes to all-volunteer armed forces in mid-1973, one out of every four men of military age will have to be recruited for either active or reserve duty.

This would mean about 400,000 men would have to be enlisted each year, Roger T. Kelley, the assistant secretary of defense for manpower and reserve affairs, said this week.

The Pentagon's top manpower official said most of the enlistees would be about 19 years old. He said the number of true volunteers would have to be doubled; "About one out of every four qualified young men of military age will be needed for active or reserve duty," Kelley testified, before a House subcommittee.

If there is going to be a volunteer military force, Kelley said, military pay "must bear a reasonable relationship to civilian pay." He said military life must be satisfying and challenging and "military people and the uniform they wear must be treated with respect."

Soccer opener

The Mustang soccer team plays its first game of the season against Westmont's highly ranked College Division team. The two teams will meet Saturday at 11 a.m. in the college soccer field.

Four of last year's regulars have returned to the squad. They include forwards John Phillips, senior from Santa Barbara, and Yohanna Kobode, a senior from Columbia; and halfback Carmen Figueroa, senior from Los Angeles, and fullback Aravo Colonja, a junior from Colombia, and Kebede were all-league players in 1976.

The Mustangs will not play in a league this fall. As a result only five games have been scheduled to date with Saturday's contest being the only one at home.

One of the brighter new prospects for the team is centerfielder Brad Bartholomay, a senior from Santa Barbara.

Fine arts films slated; 'Blow Up' starts series

"Blow Up," the first in a series of four films sponsored by the college Fine Arts Committee, will be shown Friday at 8 p.m. in Chumaah Auditorium. Following the film showing, a coffee and discussion session is scheduled in the College Union's Bishop Lounge.

Soccer opener

The Mustang soccer team plays its first game of the season against Westmont's highly ranked College Division team. The two teams will meet Saturday at 11 a.m. in the college soccer field.

Four of last year's regulars have returned to the squad. They include forwards John Phillips, senior from Santa Barbara, and Yohanna Kobode, a senior from Columbia; and halfback Carmen Figueroa, senior from Los Angeles, and fullback Aravo Colonja, a junior from Colombia, and Kebede were all-league players in 1976.

The Mustangs will not play in a league this fall. As a result only five games have been scheduled to date with Saturday's contest being the only one at home.
