Concern on creek conservation

by JOHN HANSPURY

ED. NOTE: The following article deals with the ecological problems in the San Luis Obispo area and three men’s reactions to these problems will be presented in three parts.

San Luis Obispo City Council T. Keith Gurnee proposed a moratorium on city creek development at the Council’s Oct. 3 meeting. It did not come up for a vote.

Instead, Mayor Kenneth E. Schwartz proposed creating a committee that would review applications for grading creek areas and which would alter creek channels. This idea passed unanimously.

Later, at a meeting of Zero Population Growth, Gurnee spoke about another ecological group to be formed which would be concerned with the growth policy of San Luis Obispo and would work with the conservation elements of the community, and also proposed Monday.

A name mentioned as perhaps a member of this committee was Dr. Richard J. Krejza, Biological Sciences instructor here and long-time leader in conservation in this area.

Krejza said he has been working with an ecology committee for two years, whose job was to meet the mayor’s request to give direction to the resolution of the stream problems in San Luis Obispo. The following article deals with the ecological problems in the area and how three men—Gurnee, Schwartz, and Krejza feel about the situation and their views on committees organized to fight against ecological destruction.

T. KEITH GURNEE: The creek committee will be formed in order to review applicants for grading creeks and for approval of the special ballot.

An apparent postponement of an election to change the preferential voting system now employed by the college was made at last night’s meeting of the Student Affairs Council. The suggestion to put off the special election that is needed to eliminate the preferential voting system was made by A&I.

Study shows priests strong

Vatican City (UPI)—Cardinal John K. J. of Philadelphia told the Third International Synod of Bishops Monday a massive study made by the American hierarchy proves the U.S. Roman Catholic priesthood is neither collapsing nor in danger of collapse.

Kard said the 800,000 report indicates 87 of every 100 U.S. priests confirm that celibacy helps them do their work better.

Getting bloody for some rights for the past six days and it’s catching up with them,”

Gauie said.

The fire burned across a 30 mile perimeter surrounding a devastated area of more than 11,000 acres, most of the charred land lying in the Los Padres National Forest. The loss will probably amount to at least 14,000 acres, Gauie said.

“Men are tired. They’ve been getting bloody for some rights for the past six days and it’s catching up with them,” Gauie said.

The fire burned through power lines Sunday, causing electrical failures affecting about 650,000 persons in the area. The Southern California Edison Co. warned that unless the blaze was turned back it would knock out alternate power supplies and cause “a major electric shutdown of indeterminate duration.”

Will equal rights mean women in the service?

Washington, D.C. (UPI)—The chairman and ranking Republicans on the Judiciary Committee have rejected a proposal to amend the Constitution to give women equal rights under the law, or at least, accept qualifying language that would keep them from being drafted.

But supporters of the amendment which has been studied by the House for half a century dismissed their complaints. They predicted the House would approve the required two-thirds vote the amendment they want, and without any qualifications.

Weary fighters calm huge blaze

Summerland, Calif. (UPI)—Pacific Coast communities threatened by a killer brush fire were declared Monday free of danger as weary firefighters attacked the blaze on a new front, backfiring remote interior ridges with incendiary devices shot from helicopters.

The fire has burned into its sixth day still officially out of control, but the U.S. Forest Service said the turning point had been reached and the blaze was being conquered.

“Things are looking good now, real good,” said Forest Service fire team spokesman Jerry Gauie.

The fire earlier threatened oiling homes in Carpinteria, Summerland and other communities just east of Santa Barbara and about 80 miles northeast of Los Angeles.

“The backfires set last night outside Carpinteria worked beautifully; just a textbook example of how backfires are supposed to work. Carpinteria and those other communities along the western flank of the fire are safe now. The backfires have fireproofed that area, even if the wind change,” said Gauie.

Summerland, Calif. (UPI)—Nine sailors who missed the carrier USS Constellation’s departure from San Diego in protest over the return to Vietnam waters have been found guilty of three charges and sentenced to 30 days in corrective custody, the Navy announced.

The nine, who sought sanctuary in a San Diego church but were arrested by federal officials and flown to the ship, were tried in a special proceeding before the House for half a century dismissed their complaints. They predicted the House would approve the required two-thirds vote the amendment they want, and without any qualifications.

Editor:

In answer to Marie Willet's letter in the Mustang Daily of 4 October 71, I would like to say a few words.

I don't know if Mr. Willet lives or resided in the residence halls. If he has, he must not have ever lived with Mommy and Daddy or tried to break any of their rules.

This dark horse likes to mumble

by PAUL EDMON
Editor-in-Chief

Voters tired of the usual jumble of campaign promises and political bickering that accompany elections may soon have the opportunity to support a real "horse of a different color" for President of the United States. Not that this person has all the answers, but he'll be different, nonetheless.

Volunteers in New Hampshire, primarily Dartmouth students, are circulating petitions to have his name placed on the primary ballot and his campaign committee is squarely planning for votes in other states. Yet, the name of this person is totally unknown. What makes him such a strong candidate?

Like every good candidate, Boren has a platform. Here are a few of the points:

1. World peace must and can be achieved. Boren has a plan.

- Unemployment policies will lift out of grave concern to all America. The U.S. Department of Labor must replace its present "jobless" and diligent efforts to halt the rise of unemployment. I propose that the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission be extended to encompass both jobs and factory jobs, with the necessary skill.

2. Education. The health of the people of the nation must be seen where it is, that the school children are feeding into the air, water and soil, subject of course, to the health of the nation.

3. Ecology. The health of the nation to bring to bear American Ingenuity in a bold new effort to be known as Operation Schoolmobile. Daily routes and daily teacher assignments will be orchestrated by multiplication educational complexes.

4. Women's Liberation. At the heart of the campaign is General Motors. A woman's Liberation Movement, I am a supporter of the Women's Liberation Movement. Comments on the Presidential candidate range from "Jim Boren and I went to the same high school, and I know that he is always in orbit," to "with Boren as our president, the nation will move ahead—but I'm not sure in which direction." Also heard was "James H. Boren is trustworthy, loyal, helpful, courteous, kind, obedient, cheerful, thrifty, brave, clean and reverent," however, that comment came from James Stanley Boren, student.

Reapportionment battle lines set

by MIKE SEATON

The law requires reapportionment of the state's Senate, Assembly and Congressional districts every ten years following the Federal census. Battle lines were formed in early September for the major reapportionment battle expected this month. When reviewing reapportionment there are five major goals of a fair reapportionment program: (1) equal population, (2) community of interest, (3) preserving natural boundaries, (4) minority representation, (5) growth areas recognized, and the unwritten goal of not harming incumbent office holders.

The Republicans released their reapportionment plan in early September after the August recess. The Democratic strategy apparently calls for as much delay and secrecy as can possibly be maintained. They apparently want to keep the issue from public attention as long as possible, hoping to push a straight Democratic gerrymander through the legislature by the end of the month. By minimizing the opportunity for public scrutiny of their plan would reduce the immediate outcry over a gerrymander.

The Democrats in the Senate made their plans public last week.

Traditional, at least in elections, the Democrats and minority groups have been close in their overall reapportionment goals. This year's reapportionment may find this alliance strained.

Governor Reagan made it plain several months ago that he would not sign a reapportionment bill which did not give minorities the representation to which they were entitled. On the other hand, demand by the Governor, Senate Democrats took a Northern California district which recorded a population drop in 1970 and have squeezed it into a Latino community In Los Angeles County which also recorded a population loss.

Assembly District 27

This plan robs Orange and Ventura Counties, which had population gains, of seats to which they were entitled and ties them to population-poor lawmakers in Los Angeles County via long "stringbean" districts resembling those of the gerrymandered 1961 reapportionment.

The Democrats could keep their word to the minorities by minor changes in the 27th Senatorial District in Los Angeles, which takes in much of the Chicano community now.

By the Democratic plan another district would stretch from Fresno north and west to Santa Clara County which does not meet many of the reapportionment goals.

In the assembly, where no report has been made public, Democrats apparently will not get group Chicano communities as they can elect their own representatives. The Republican plan, however, established three or more districts which are made by natural boundaries and in which minorities could be elected.

Big battle

A big battle is also brewing over congressional reapportionment being developed by Rep. Phillip Burton (D-S.F.). This plan would give the Democrats virtually assured wins in four of five new districts in California. The Republican plan gives the Democrats only three of the seats. Five "stringbean" districts planned by Burton would stretch from Bakersfield to the city of San Jose. The plan also slices up growth areas of Orange and San Diego counties, as in the Senate.

The sides have been taken in Sacramento. Reagan has said that he will not sign a bill which is not fair to all Californians. We can only watch the situation as it develops, write our legislators and hope that the gerrymandering of 1961 is not repeated. The only one who can lose is you.

SNAP brings social problems to the attention of the students

What is SNAP, other than the initials for Students for New Action Politics?

SNAP is a political organization which was formed by a group of students on this campus in 1968. According to SNAP member Navnit Doshi, the purpose of the organization is to bring social problems to the students and affect them here on campus.

SNAP is concerned with the freedom to choose speakers and with who and what determines whether a speaker is controversial.

Doshi expressed his opinion that SNAP is continually harried by the administration. They (the administration) are afraid we might let out to the students something they (the students) don't already know.

They engage us in a bureaucracy so we have to do all this footwork to no avail, and then they say you can't do this—-you can't do that."

"Dissatisfaction is our issue," continued Doshi, "and we demand correction. Our real needs should be satisfied."

When asked about SNAP's reaction to the SDS, Doshi said they are not affiliated with SDS because they (SDS) are falling apart and their "tactics are too reactionary."

Doshi says that bringing speakers on campus "should be a part of education." "Education means to induce (draw out) from a student—to direct him in what he can do (this capability)," he said.
The longer the race runs, the more people spread out. But the course is big enough to hold everyone who wants a chance to run, run, run.

"On your mark, get set...go!" Two miles of jogging is the only way to spend a Thursday afternoon, especially when you belong to Coach Larry Bridges' Physical Conditioning class. Champing at the bit and raring to go, people feel in at the starting lines.

"A jog-in a day..."

by ROGER VINCENT

Jog for an "A"?
It seems that once around the track isn't good enough anymore, at least not for Larry Bridges' Physical Conditioning class. They, along with a few representatives of the women's classes and four faculty volunteers, participated in a "jog-in" last Thursday afternoon.

The undisputed, if unofficial, winner of the two-mile trek around the airport was Coach Bridges' wife, Cherri, who completed the course in 11:47. After all, she did represent the United States in international cross-country competition in 1968, 1969 and 1970. She's practicing now to make the 1973 team in November.

Next to cross the finish line and official winner was Mike Heesen at 11:52. First for the faculty and also the oldest participant was Dr. James Webb of the PE Department, who turned in an excellent 11:59 and enjoyed it all. Other faculty members participating were Dan Williamson, Economics; Robert Rudland, MEd; and George Lewis, Mathematics.

As might have been expected, the last finishers were the girls trying to earn a good mark from Mrs. Pellaton. It was not all that bad for Janice Hamilton, who said, "I wanted to do it. I like to run."

But then things looked a bit different to Patty Hedden. "I needed to do it for an 'A' period."

Coach Bridges is planning another "jog-in" for Thursday, Oct. 26. This time the course will be two and a half miles, and more scenic. Everyone is invited to join in what Bridges hopes will be a fun, beneficial happening.

For more information contact Larry Bridges at: 546-2230.

Cherri Bridges, wife of the coach, had good reason to come in first. She's been practicing on the sly for just such an event by being in international cross-country competition.

Scientists study snow

BY JOHN BRIDGER

Reno, Nev. (UPI)—A winter in Antarctica digging in the ice and snow may not be your average beach vacation, but for three University of Nevada scientists it’s a long awaited experience. The world may learn a little more about the formation of a snowover during the winter and the future implications which would alter climate change.

Young said this time the men won’t be digging so deeply into the earth and will only be gathering ice from three selected areas of the continent instead of one entire area.

"We want to see if there is any variation in the amount of sliver and ice in the ice as we move inland on the continent," said Young.

responsiveness to the people of the nation.

Boran, a former professor, chief aide to a U.S. senator, and senior foreign service reserve officer, appears to be genuinely concerned about the waste of natural resources as well as the cost of excesses and delays in bureaucracy.

"The time has come for a touch of humor to be used in delineating some of the national issues...and to be used as a constructive tool against the bureaucratic excesses that frustrate both taxpayers and the many dedicated there in the bureaucracy as well.

"I think the people of the nation are tired of the creation of study committees and blue ribbon commissions that are used to evade decisions of matters of importance. There are now more than 80 such study groups in the federal system, and though they may be composed of fine people wanting to do a job, the committees are not designed to accomplish anything.

"The other policy decisions are "lost in action" in a faceless system, or, if finally acted upon, have no relevance to the policy decision."

There you have it, from the horse's mouth. A new breed of people. What a refreshing change!

$10,000 of PERMANENT INSURANCE

for only $12.50 PER YEAR

WHAT IS THIS PLAN? It is a $10,000 Basic Life Insurance Program with premium rates structured to meet the needs of students. Premiums are economically low during the early policy years to facilitate starting a lifetime program. Options are available under the program which allow ultimate coverage to be as much as $50,000.

WHO CAN APPLY? Any high school, college, or graduate student, male or female, age 16 thru age 29. Or hit parent or parent may apply for him.

WHAT ABOUT MILITARY SERVICE? There are no military or aviation re­ strictions of any kind in this plan; if you enter military service, the policy remains in force as long as you (or your parent or guardian) pay the premium.

HOW LONG ARE PREMIUMS PAID? Premiums under the basic program are payable until age 65 at which time the contract is paid-up for $15,000.

WHAT IS THE COST? An annual premium of $25.00 is paid for 4 years or to age 30 whichever is later. Over half of these premiums is credited against the premium due. The result is an initial actual cost of $12.50 per year. Future premiums are indicated in the following table.

The Poly Skindivers are Leading off their yearly activities will be a charter boat to the Santa Barbara Channel Islands Saturday.

The skindivers, a group of students who enjoy skin and scuba diving, have already chartered two boat dives so far this quarter. The cost per dive is $15 for members and $15 for certified non-members, including air.

NAUI sanctioned SCUBA classes are also offered by the club for those interested in becoming certified divers. The club has its own air compressor for an air supply and regular dives are planned to local beaches.

Membership in the Skindivers is $8 for the whole year and new people are needed with ideas and suggestions for dives this quarter and the rest of the year.

All interested people are invited to attend the club meeting tonight in Science North 201 at 7:30.

For further information concerning the club or boat dive, call Chairman Matt Philippe at 543-8041.

The Poly Skindivers are

Leading off their yearly activities will be a charter boat to the Santa Barbara Channel Islands Saturday.

The skindivers, a group of students who enjoy skin and scuba diving, have already chartered two boat dives so far this quarter. The cost per dive is $15 for members and $15 for certified non-members, including air.

NAUI sanctioned SCUBA classes are also offered by the club for those interested in becoming certified divers. The club has its own air compressor for an air supply and regular dives are planned to local beaches.

Membership in the Skindivers is $8 for the whole year and new people are needed with ideas and suggestions for dives this quarter and the rest of the year.

Cross country: no fun?

Cross country is man's oldest sport; people were after food before they were after a meal. It is one of those sports that get fans as excited as a first caveman walked, stumbled, or whatever after a meal. It gets fans about as excited as a hog call, the hog call would probably win out. Cross country is one of those great American past-times. Like soccer and cricket we can thank the Ivy League schools. It was imported for us, mainly by the American compluston for more about 1846, and in the 1870s. The first cross country runner spends his time struggling up and down hills in workouts of eight miles for the coach here, has a theory that his cross country runner must have a sense of aesthetics or at least a yearning for the scenic route. High points on the Mustang course include the wine farm, the rodeo ring, the experimental farms, and the KYBC radio tower.

Steve Simmons, cross country coach here, has a theory that his cross country runner must have a sense of aesthetics or at least a yearning for the scenic route. High points on the Mustang course include the wine farm, the rodeo ring, the experimental farms, and the KYBC radio tower.

"Most of the top cross country people are introverted, the reason being if you run four or five miles you're not going to be the life of the party," Simmons said. Besides being a gluton for punishment and a sterling competitor, a cross country runner must have a sense of aesthetics or at least a yearning for the scenic route. High points on the Mustang course include the wine farm, the rodeo ring, the experimental farms, and the KYBC radio tower.

Give us a bell!

Much like the Kentucky Derby's "Run for the Roses", the Prance-Poly "Battle of the Bell" kicks off this week.

A huge bell, sometimes painted green and gold and sometimes painted red and blue, is exchanged each time there is a new victor in the Mustang-Bulldog football game. The bell has been a fixture for several years. So far, the Mustangs have rightfully held the bell once in the last five years. The seasons have turned full circle round again, and the mighty Mustangs find themselves facing their seemingly inseparable cross-state rival, Prance State.

Perhaps this year, more than any other recent year, we find ourselves asking if it is possible to win the bell back. We have begun the worst win-less record since 1968, 1-4.

True, the first two teams were nationally ranked, and Mumbo and Steve Simmons, the really first mortal team the Mustangs challenged. The Mustangs defeated the Lumberjacks with a tidy score of 38-23.

When the Mustangs traveled to Prance last year, they lost 53-7. The other sport that often takes place between the two schools has been scheduled around this time, and falls under the heading of "pranks". Such activities as bell theft and red 'F's where a cement P should be, are popular intercollegiate contests. Let us hope the real competition stays in the stadium and not on college property.

The Mustangs have been practicing hard in order to defeat the Bulldogs, and it would be quite a shame to undo all their hard work with dangerous or damaging pranks. Our school may be open to pranks, but Prance is coming here this year, so in the words of a famous philosopher, "the time may come when we will have to take the bull (dog) by the tail, and face the situation."
