Kosygin meets Canadians, hits U.S. strategies

by NICHOLAS DANIOFF

Ottawa (UPI)—Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, tightly garbed by Canadian and Soviet police, began a series of meetings on Oct. 16 with Canadian parliamentary leaders after strongly criticizing U.S. economic policies as war-inspired and disruptive to world trade.

His introduction to a meeting with a House of Commons committee touched on a situation in which the Soviet leader has already shown awareness—Canada's currently strained relations with the United States. Committee leaders gave Kosygin a copy of their special of U.S.-Canada relations.

In contrast, Canadian officials made an announcement that reflected warming Canada-Russia relations. They announced that Kosygin would formally sign an agreement on exchanges between the two nations on cultural, scientific and technical matters. Agreement in principle had been reached during Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau's visit to Russia earlier this year.

Kosygin criticized the nuclear arms race, U.S. economic policies on other nations Tuesday.

Leach is grand marshal

A retired department head who served the campus for 41 years will lead this year's Homecoming parade down Higuera Street.

Richard I. Leach, who established a record for the longest tenure of any faculty member here, has been named grand marshal of the procession beginning from Truchas at 10 a.m., Sunday, Oct. 30. He headed the Poultry Industries Department from 1950 until last spring.

Although the department was one of the smallest on the campus ten years ago, it has more than doubled in the past two years.

The Poultry Club itself has been active in all campus-wide events of the college and for many years operated a "test" service to transport returning graduates to various parts of the campus during Homecoming.

The fall final day turned out to be a successful one for the Poultry Science Association.

In addition to the parade on Oct. 30, Cal Poly Homecoming activities for 1971 will also include a noon luncheon for the Homecoming queen and her court, a football game between the Cal Poly Mustangs and the California State College at Long Beach Party-Niners at 1:30 p.m., two concerts by the Temptations and Four Tops at the Matador, a football game between the Mustangs and the Bearcats at the Tar Springs Ranch near Arroyo Grande for campus Graduates for the years 1948-68, and a football game between the Mustangs and the Bearcats at the Tar Springs Ranch near Arroyo Grande for campus Graduates for the years 1948-68.

COUNCILMEN EXPLAIN

Peace proposal passed—why?

Seventy-two hours after their unanimous decision to support a resolution urging immediate withdrawal of U.S. troops from Indochina, four San Luis Obispo city councilmen appear to have widely differing reasons for supporting the Peace Coalition resolution stated, "withdrawal of all troops immediately." "I introduced my proposal because it reflected my sincere feelings on the war," he said. "I am sincerely opposed to the war."

My proposal was simply an improvement over the Peace Coalition's. I published their resolution and presented it, but they didn't accept it."

"I was disgusted by the audience. I was also fascinated by them. I had the words in my proposal but they didn't like my words."

T. Keith Gurnee career, Graham said: "That is beside the point. That [his political career] wasn't the reason I voted for the resolution."

Mayo Kenneth Schwartzs said that the proposal itself answers the question of why he voted for it and that he has no idea on how his yes vote will affect his political career.

Councilman T. Keith Gurnee said that the resolution represented, for him personally, the sum total of seven years of his life concerned with ending the conflict in Indochina.

"New local government is starting to take part in the anti-war movement," he said. "It's a good indication to the public. It certainly won't end the war but it shows the people that their government is, at least at various levels, being more responsive to the best interest of the people."

"As far as my political career is concerned, I don't care I was elected to the office and I presume people have confidence in my judgment. I don't care what it does to my career. I'll speak out as much as I see to try and make changes as I can."

Program for N. Viet relief plan halted

The VSA has received word from American Red Cross authorities in Washington, D.C., that they will not be able to forward donations to the flood victims because of government restrictions which forbid contact with the enemy. Nguyen said that the VSA has contacted the International Red Cross in Switzerland and the American Friends International Rescue Committee in New York, but is still waiting for an answer from both organizations. A favorable reply will begin the donation drive.

Another proposed plan was to have interested "mustard" cardholders on this campus donate a meal to the cause. This met with defeat when the Foundation refused the plan because of financial matters.

Security hurts learning

Editor:

Quietly, almost imperceptibly the avenues to knowledge become constricted on this campus. Now and then a teacher of the student body permits home, think about this: How restriction of their educational effect? Is security necessary for an uncontrollable situation? Or situation?... Read: "Education eight hours per day is not designed to function merely as a calendar or bulletin board. At least one poll has shown many students here do not regularly read newspapers other than Mustang Daily. For that reason, and because MUSTANG DAILY is published five days a week, it is designed to provide students with relevant news outside of the college community. People against all will dwell within the vacuum of their immediate habitats, oblivious to the events of the outside world."

Raiders in action

ED. NOTE: This column is supported by Associated Student Inc. Press. Pete Evans and Vice Pres. Marianne Doshi as a service to students in order to inform the actions of various students-related activities.

The Campus Raiders, a program which we initiated over the summer, is getting under way. Campus Raiders is a much-needed social activity which we support, and other activities related services and areas.

The October 13 anti-war teach-in held all day in the Student Union was not only a large success in itself but heralded a new mood of dedication and action aimed at achieving an immediate end to the Vietnam war and an end to United States intervention in the internal affairs of other nations. People against all will dwell within the vacuum of their immediate habitats, oblivious to the events of the outside world.

Un fortunately you are correct in speaking of a generally "openly filled auditorium." Odland can't think of too many things more important than tests, but apparently many people can. For myself it has been exhilarating to work with people with, straight, "broads", mothers, veterans, and all the rest of the mixed bag that constitutes the ELO Peace Coalition. We will continue. Discouragement costs lives.

Dorm reform

Editor: This is an open letter to John Young. To begin with, I would like to state that I am a student; I live in the residence hall, and I am not as close to cause trouble. I do feel that there is a great need for a reform of some of the rules in the residence halls.

I think the most important reason for working for Dorm Reform is mainly a question of principle. That is, if we are old enough to vote and be "mature and responsible citizens," capable of performing adult acts by using properly accepted channels, then why do we not have more of a voice in running our own lives in the dorms? Granted there is an Interhall Council but if you lived on campus you would find that the Interhall Council does not set a meeting day. I recognize the "richness of our educational system" and that Cal Poly is one of the best colleges in the State. But I feel that there should be room for change in any college system. I don't feel that I or any other student in STA are out to cause trouble. We feel we have a just cause and we are willing to spend the time to see it through.

Washington (UPI)—President Nixon might bypass the American Bar Association in making a choice for Supreme Court justice, the White House suggested Wednesday.

While a committee of the bar was meeting in New York to go over names submitted by the President for possible appointment to two vacancies on the Court, Ronald L. Edgar, Nixon's press secretary, told reporters that others also were being considered.

"There is a possibility that the President may nominate someone from the Supreme Court and it might be determined that consultation with the ABA is not necessary," Edgar told newsmen.

It has been widely reported that Nixon already had decided to make a choice for the two Court vacancies.

France says China must be in U.N.

by BRUCE W. MUNN

United Nations (UPI)—France declared Wednesday that Communist China is indispensable to the United Nations because of its "mass, value, status with peers and keeping up with the crowd; the defiance of authority; the sensual stimulation of smoking marijuana or sniffing glue; the frequency of low frustration tolerance; escapism; and the sense of alienation experienced by many late adolescents today.

When a student in the group suggested that alcohol and tobacco are also drugs which are abused and that they are more dangerous than marijuana, but acceptable in society, Dr. Brown said, "But why have a society in which we have to turn out to depend on something outside to help them cope with their society?"

He said that instead, the society should be helping the individual to cope with the world.

A camera leads a difficult life. I should know. I'm a Minolta Autocord 35mm twin lens reflex camera.

Cameras are subject to all kinds of hassle. People can't seem to keep from picking us up and exploring all our gadgets whenever we happen to be sitting on tables or slung around necks.

Now, how would you like it if right in the middle of your quiet, contemplative dreams, someone picked you up and said, "Gee, what's this attachment for?" Click, whrrr...

So what's the answer? Education. Teach people all about cameras so they will no longer have that insane human quirk, curiosity, as far as the internal workings are concerned.

Helen Kelley, photography instructor, is doing something to help cameras and people to get to know each other better. Those in her basic photography course find that their first assignment is to discover what makes us click.

And that's what this is all about. All the people on these two pages are busy in their first photography lab, making friends with cameras.

Maybe we don't have to lead such difficult lives after all.

You mustn't be afraid to bend a little to get just the right view of an elusive subject.

Criticism over lacking notice of happenings

The lack of publicity of Homecoming events, especially advance notice of the Temptation's Concert, was highlighted by Assemblyman member Brian Dunn at Monday's Homecoming Committee meeting.

Dunn pointed out that the concert is going to be exceptional in many ways and much publicity will be required to draw the 9,000 to 10,000 people necessary to make a profit on the concert. He estimated that the concert would cost $12,000, including the group fee, the rental, and advertising. The concert is unique in that there will be an严格按照 of seating (lawn, lighting, reserve seats and split stalls), Dunn said.

As preparation for Homecoming Committee plans full swing this week, Homecoming Committee Chairman Doug Wallanger, chairman of the Homecoming Committee, is hard at work planning and lining up the activities for this year's Homecoming weekend. The Chosen Few, a San Jose rock group, has played together for the past 9 years in places ranging from San Diego to Key West. Cultural ballet set for tonight

The San Francisco Ballet’s “War and Peace,” will present a cultural happening in the realm of dance in the sports pavilion at Santa Maria’s Allan Hancock College tonight at eight.

The American company, under the direction of Lew Christensen, will present a full dress concert which will include performances of the “American Dance Overture,” “11 Distratto,” “La Favorita”; “W.O.O.”; and “Structures.”

The company will perform classical works and some of the new multimedia ballets.

The ballet, originally called the San Francisco Opera Ballet, was organized in 1937 by three brothers, Harold, brief stopover, and Lew Christensen. Lew Christensen became the director and that same choreographer for the company.

This performance will be the first of the arts and lectures series at Hancock College, according to Chuck Warner, assistant dean of student activities.

Warner said there is a tri-school agreement in effect for the arts and lectures series which means that a student body card from this college, Hancock or Cuesta College will be honored at each school’s arts and lectures series.

Tickets for the formal concert are $3.00 for the general public and $1.50 for students.

Season tickets for the entire arts and lectures series will remain on sale through October 21.

The arts series at Hancock will include the San Francisco Ballet, William F. Buckley, the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra with Zubin Mehta conducting and the Murray Louis Dance Troupe.

Season ticket information may be obtained by calling the Hancock campus box office at WA 81849.

Kissinger, aids arrive in Peking

Peking (UDPA)—President Nixon’s aide Henry Kissinger arrived in Peking Wednesday and landed at Peking airport from Washington. A few minutes later, Kissinger and his aides, accompanied by their Chinese hosts, stepped into a car which had been standing ready for him, and started the long drive toward the hotel.

Because of the distance from the airport to the hotel, Kissinger was not able to see much of the city as he was driven past tens of thousands of residents.

Kissinger and a group of 13 were welcomed by Chou En-lai, China’s acting premier, and other officials.

It was reported that Kissinger was welcomed by the Chinese officials at the Revolutionary Party Committee and that several officials accompanied him on his flight to Peking.

The Kissinger motorcade swept at fast pace along streets closed to other traffic throughout downtown Peking to the guest house in a private suburb where Egyptian President Anwar Sadat stayed during his recent visit.

Revson wins at Seca

Engines screamed and track records fell at the Laguna Seca Can-Am race last weekend.

Peter Revson led nearly the entire race in his new McLaren, staying far ahead of his closest competitor, Jacky Ickx in his white dual-winged Lola. Lap after lap the two machines moved through the other cars in the field.

Other drivers pushed their cars harder and under the continuous pressure being applied by Revson and Ickx until engine brake and suspension failed. One car crashed out of control through a fence and plowed into three parked cars, bursting into flames and sending spectators fleeing in all directions.

Then in the 80th lap of the 10 lap race, Revson’s engine broke, spreading clouds of oil smoke into his wake. He was immediately black-flagged, a signal that he was disqualified and must leave the track. This move would have placed Stewart in the first place position, but Revson ignored the officials’ decision, finishing the race and racing into the winner’s circle.

After much deliberation, the win was awarded to Revson (much to the disappointment of many fans), though he was first.

The off-campus sky diving club is learning to enjoy the thrill of making 8,000 ft. jumps like this. Students are being taught the fundamentals of sky diving by a certified instructor.

Sky divers club meets danger

Sky divers are head over heels over the excitement of jumping from airplanes. San Luis Obispo Sky Divers don’t seem to mind the dangers of the sport, for each weekend they drive to Taft, in Kern County, to make their jumps.

The off-campus group is made up entirely of students from this college, but they welcome anyone, according to Ken Mitchell, safety officer of the club. They are not recognised on campus because of the 1970 airplane crash in which 16 football players from this campus lost their lives. Realising the strong feelings about the crash, the sky divers are not pushing for campus recognition. Despite its hazards, Mitchell said, sky diving is recognised on 100 college and university campuses, including Chico State and UC Davis. It is also offered as a physical education class at Cal State—Hayward and the University of Oregon.

Profs criticize anti-war rally

Berkeley (UPI)—The dean and half the professors at the University of California law school criticized the Berkeley board of education Wednesday for adopting a resolution supporting last weeks anti-Vietnam War moratorium.

The letter, sent by Boalt Hall Dean Edward C. Halbach Jr. and 16 faculty members, said the resolution and later instructions issued by Superintendent Marcus Foster were probably unconstitutional.

Foster sent a memo to teachers saying they should, when applicable and reasonable, present educational activities supporting the board’s position. Many teachers held discussions of the war during the Oct. 13 moratorium.

“While many of us as individuals share this position on ending the war, the board’s resolution and the president’s instructions taken together are an affront to fundamental democratic values and a gross misuse of authority to administer the school system,” the letter said.

“Of at least equal importance, they flagrantly violate the spirit, and probably the letter, of both federal and state constitutions.”

Guatemala will be the focus of today’s 11 a.m. Peace Corps seminar, at Erhart Ag. The public is invited and encouraged to bring a bag lunch and chat following the program.
