Sister George opens season for fall drama

by GARY HINDS

The CU Drama Committee opened the fall season with a play presentation of Factory Adventures, "The Killing of Sister George." The play was staged last night and will be presented at 7:30 tonight and Saturday night in the College Theater. Admission to the play is $1 for students and $2 for non-students.

The drama about a woman's inability to cope with life and her degradation into lesbianism, is generally well acted and well directed production.

The play revolves primarily between two characters, June Rodbridge and Sister George, who is nicknamed Childie.

The drama of the story begins with June, who plays the part of Sister George of Applehurst on BBC radio, loses her job when Sister George is killed in the radio story.

At the day of the Sister's funeral on the radio broadcast drags near, June begins drinking heavily and takes out her frustrations on Childie.

In the climax of the story, Childie leaves with Mrs. Mercy, a BBC radio character, leaving June alone to listen to the broadcast of her funeral.

Sister George is played by Debbie Ware, who performs admirably except for a number of instances in which she spoke too fast and slurred lines. The submissive Childie is played by Nevada Barr.

Mrs. Mercy is played by Mrs. Kuntz and Sister George is played—and overplayed—by Mrs. Robin Lake who virtually turns in a very funny performance.

When you're trying to find a seat in Mustang Stadium Saturday afternoon, look around you. You'll probably find a lot of other people in the same predicament. Seating capacity in Mustang Stadium is approximately 6,000, and a standing room only audience is expected, since the homecoming game will traditionally draw a larger student crowd than most games.

Maybe you won't find a seat for Saturday or this weekend, but help is on the way. Plans for Mustang Stadium project the seating capacity to a maximum of 13,000. Cost for these improvements have been estimated at $1.5 million, said President Robert Kennedy.

A stadium improvement reserve fund from the AIB will furnish $150,000, with the balance coming from a Capital Foundation. The AIB fund reserves $8,000 each year to be used for future improvements of Mustang Stadium, said Roy Gerard, director of AIB business affairs. These contributed funds represent money allocated to stadium improvement fund since the fund began 4 years ago.

Students lose prof vote power

Editor: In the October 31, 1971 issue of the Mustang Daily, Mrs. Dothi and Mr. Evans state: "The need for a lawyer became clear again last week at the Academic Senate Meeting. Howard Rhoads, chairman, passed his judgment on a recent Title V change concerning student representation on the faculty Personnel Review Committee. This student vote was our only "legitimate" voice in faculty firing and tenure procedures. Now, according to Mr. Rhoads, we have none— we cannot even sit with our mouths taped and hands tied behind our back! If ever we needed a lawyer to challenge such arbitrary rulings and fight to regain for students their legal constitutional rights NOW IS THE TIME!"

May I quote from Title V pertaining to this issue, "Section 4071. Consultative (Procedure. It is the policy of the Trustees that faculty be consulted on academic personnel matters. Each college shall develop college-wide procedures whereby only members of the faculty who are assured, and such department chairs and academic administrators as the college procedure shall provide, may participate in any level of consultation in deliberation or vote on recommendations, relating to appointment, retention, tenure or promotion of faculty. The procedures shall provide that those making such recommendations should consider information from other faculty members and any other source, including, but not limited to students. The college-wide procedures shall be consonant with the regulations, policies and procedures of the board of Trustees and the personnel procedures of the Personnel Review Committee."

Speaking for myself, I regret the fact that students are not permitted to participate in the deliberations of the Personal Review Committee. However, the student vote may appear as witness and testify for or against a person whose case the PRC is reviewing.

Y. Lew Makhlouf, Chairman PERSONAL Review Committee

Is Talcott your man? Editor: Let's give the Nobel Peace Prize to Richard M. Nixon. Sound strange? Not really, that's the opinion of our Congressman Hunt Talcott. Would he vote for immediate withdrawal from Vietnam? Of course not. Does that sound like the man that you want to represent you in Washington, D.C.? Why don't you show him this and ask him some questions. Ask him why we have spent 186 billion in Vietnam but only around 3.8 billion per year on community development and housing. He should know, he serves on the Appropriations Committee. Ask what we can do to help this country. Maybe the best thing is to work towards defeating this man when he runs for re-election.

Would you question Mr. Talcott if his own brother was killed in Vietnam yesterday? Well, I've got news for you...he was, along with 80,000 other brothers in the war and the Chancers and his own brother... New progress is editor's goal

Alternative, the student literary magazine of this college, will sponsor an off-campus poetry reading Sunday, at 7 p.m. at Aebersold's, 1011 Higuera. Everyone is invited and admission is free.

According to editor Ahmos Zuberi, "Most traditions stand firmly in the way of progress. They are rooted in stale reality and are run by people who would have us believe that change is not a basic human quest. Those traditions deserve to die, deserve to be crushed. But sometimes there is grace and movement in tradition. Such is the case with a recently established Poly tradition: Alternative magazine."

Alternative is a student literary magazine, designed, printed, and sold by students and financed by student funds. It has been through many changes over the years, and continues to move in new directions.

Alternative staff, Camille Ryan, said, "We are trying to add new features to the magazine. We will include a section of poetry and prose from other state colleges. We also received additional funds from the Publisher's Board for prizes; the Board has awarded $50 for the best essay, the best short story and the best artwork. (the latter to be used as a cover design)."

Zuberi and his staff think Alternative is a tradition worth preserving. Students wishing to submit manuscripts to Alternative should send them to: Box 146, College Union. Those wishing to work in the Alternative staff should contact J.J. Publisher, English Department.

Horror movie
Fine Arts Committee will present the film "Freaks" Sunday night at 7:30 and 9:30.

Produced in 1920, the film was censored and cut to represent the horror film of the 1926 Cannes Film Festival Repertory. Tod Browning, director of the film, is said to be "the Edgar Allen Poe of the cinema." Among his other famous works are "Dracula" and "Mark of the Vampire."

The film should be quite suitable for Halloween entertainment. It will be shown in Chumash Hall of the College Union. Admission will be 50 cents.

Mystery conference

What costs $7.50 to attend— is said to be worth every penny of it—and remains a complete mystery until you get there? Leadership Conference— and most everyone who has been to one will tell you it is a pleasant surprise.

The ASI Leadership Conference Committee will stage its first open conference of the year at Lake Cachuma Church Camp on November 5th and 7th. Sign-ups for the conference must be made at the College Union Information Desk by Nov. 1.

According to Gary Vilbauer, chairman of the committee, exactly what goes on at a Leadership Conference must remain a mystery. "We really don't like to say," Vilbauer says, "because the reactions from people are better if they don't know what to expect."

Leadership Conference is said to be "people-oriented," and if you ask some of the people who have attended in the past about it, this is the kind of response you can expect:

"It was really terrific. I didn't want to go, but was talked into it by friends. It ended up being a great experience, it teaches you to talk to people."

"The group situation at the conference lets you get to know yourself a lot better. Everyone should go to one of them."

Unfortunately, there is only room for 80 persons—students or faculty—at the next conference, so those interested in attending should sign up as soon as possible.

Richard I. Leach, grand marshall of this year's Homecoming Parade, has seen a lot of things change at this college. In the 41 years Leach served here as founder and head of the Poultry Department, he has observed growth of the campus and student body, changes in the times, and the coming and going of many notable people.

Leach first came here on a Sunday in October of 1930. When he arrived, he was told he had four classes to teach the next day, and he remembered that, although he wasn't expecting to start working so soon, he taught that Monday.

He recalls there were about 380 students enrolled then, most of them in the junior college part of the institution.

That first fall Leach says Homecoming included a dinner, at the old dining hall (where Crandall Gymnasium now stands) with then-President, Benjamin R. Crandall attending.

Class stuck together

Of that gathering, Leach said "I remember the 1917 class as being very dominant, very 'buddy-buddy.' And through the years they stuck together. In fact, several later became staff members." He mentioned that several of the 1917 alumni will be attending Homecoming this year.

Leach seems to always have been personally interested in his students. Testimony of this includes a picture of his first poultry class in 1930 and pictures in various publications through the years that show him working with students.

Last year five of the poultry majors here were sons of his former students. And Leach seems pleased to say that "many of my friends started out as my students."

Looking back on things the students have done, he remembered a barn dance they once held. They found a set of stairs that would reach up to the mow, but they needed a railing. He said they finally found two pieces of two-by-four that they used. He said they didn't cut the wood because "budgets were tight in those days."

Leach well remembers the hard times of the depression. He said "during the depression it was a pretty desperate time. We often didn't get paychecks, he was given representative nine until the state had the money to pay us."

In 1933, when the junior college was dropped because of a lack of funds, there were only 111 students enrolled. That was the year Julian A. McPhee came. The McPhee years

Leach remembered that "Poly had a turbulent early history. There was always pressure from the outside to close the school down because of budget problems and what some felt was a lack of purpose. But things started to take on focus with McPhee."

Leach has a small poster showing McPhee opening the cornerstone box of the first administration building as it was being torn down in 1938. Built on its place what is now the Business Administration and Economics Building—the one with the Clock Tower.

Another series of photographs Leach has collected shows the campus in various stages of development: at a time when the future Farmers of America came for conventions and set up tents where the Dexter Library now is, when livestock occupied the space where the Computer Science Building now is, returning war veterans lived in "Silver City" trailers, and where the red-brick dorms are new.

500 students

But these are only fragments of the building that has taken place. Leach says that "in early campus planning, the campus objective was a total enrollment of 900. I don't think we ever reached that until after the war. Then, with returning veterans, sights had to be adjusted really fast."

Leach has seen the times change quite a bit in his 41 years here. And as he looked back at them, he related them as if he saw something good in all of them.

College aid increases

Washington (UPI)—Only one Negro college ranks among the 100 leading recipients of federal aid, although U.S. contributions to black colleges increased 16 per cent in the past year.

Howard University, which is almost entirely supported by the federal treasury—was the District of Columbia—which value were predominantly white.

In another weekend report, the Office of Education said that 40 per cent of America's children age 3 to 5 are attending school this fall. Seven years ago only 38 per cent were in school.

"The increasing evidence from research declaring that perhaps as much as 80 per cent of a child's intelligence is developed by age 4 or 5, has galvanized the interest of parents and educators alike in the importance of early childhood learning," Dr. E. W. Commissioneer Sidney P. Marlatt said.

The 10 black colleges receiving the most federal funds last year were:

Howard, $10.5 million; Meharry Medical College, Nashville, $8.7 million; Tuskegee Ala., Institute, $8.4 million; Wilberforce, Ohio, University, $4.4 million; Bishop College, Dallas, $4.2 million; Florida A and M University, Tallahassee, $3.7 million; Norfolk A and T University-Greensboro, $3.1 million; Federal City College, District of Columbia, $8 million.

These schools received 36 per cent of the 1971-72 funds allocated to Negro colleges.

CONVENTION PLANS CROWD ARCHITECT'S CLUB'S AGENDA

by CHEVY MAZUREK

"This year's Associated Chapter of the American Institute of Architects holds many choices for the interested student," said Rich Byfield, a fifth-year architecture student and president of the AIA-ALA.

"The chapter will, as in the past, participate in many levels of the AIA, including national, state and local levels and some community projects."

Byfield said that members have just returned from a national AIA convention in Detroit where the emphasis was placed on professionalism.

At these conventions, several committees are set up to study and make recommendations or recommendations to appropriate AIA committees. They include committees on financial problems, the arts and recreation, a national council and many others.

Ken Bruce, who served on one of these committees as a student representative from this college, announced that applications are still being accepted for the national convention to be held over Thanksgiving at the Hilton Hotel in Washington, D.C.

Bruce said that he found the experience on these committees quite valuable. "Students are treated on an equal footing with professionals. Your opinions mean just as much. It's a great experience."

At the state level, Byfield reports that this chapter was chosen at the state convention in Coronado to represent the architecture students of California at both state and national levels for the coming year.

"At the chapter level," says Byfield, "there exists the Santa Barbara Chapter. They sponsor projects and student participation, but because of the hampered effective exposure for the students to AIA.

This situation will be remedied as the Santa Barbara Chapter, AIA, is to be merged with the national AIA chapters.

The site for the Boys' Club has been chosen at Meadow Park, a local level and intend to include the student chapters in their activities.

This year the student chapter of the AIA plans to get "more involved in community activity, more involved in the environment. "That, after all, is part of what architecture is about," said Byfield.

The project the student AIA is hoping to undertake for the community are plans for a Boys' Club for San Luis Obispo and a Hawthorne District Community Center.

The community center is a project of the San Luis Obispo County Government and the Economic Opportunity Commission. The site, according to Dave Pollock, AIA, co-chairman and chairman of the projects, has been chosen at Meadow Park, soon to be built by Laidlaw.

Pollock said that Meadow Park is to be funded by the city and the construction will soon begin. But the building itself is still in the planning stage and has not yet been funded. Pollock said, "We are looking for anyone interested in helping acquire funds, materials and labor to construct the building."

The site for the Boys' Club has just been approved," said Pollock, "but as yet we have no design. The building. I'd be glad to consider any design submitted for the project."
College bookstore is for benefit of students

BY ROBERTA LEWON

Contrary to many students opinion, the bookstore operates solely for the benefit of the students.

As to where profits go from the books and supplies, Mary Lee Green, manager of El Corral, explains that the store is self-supporting with funds going to the payment of the CU loan. The trustees of the college decide as to how much and where this money is distributed. However, all the profits stay within the CU.

Many students feel that textbooks are priced higher at this college than at others. This is usually not the case. Prices on textbooks are set by the publisher and the same for every store. Mrs. Green explained, though, that some books come from non-regulation publishers and their prices are left to the discretion of the bookstores.

Due to a limited market for many types of books there is no competition among publishers for these books. This keeps their prices high. The bookstores have no double prices. Publishers have to decide from how much to charge for the books.

The bookstore belongs to the Western College Bookstores Association. The members pool their needs and send to various manufacturers for their bids. The lowest one gets the business.

Although it is still too early to judge the effectiveness of this school's program, the people involved are very optimistic. Students who come to San Luis Obispo, Herrera said, already have fairly good motivation so it is a lot for them. "It gave me a second chance when I needed one." Flores thinks HEP is a good program. "It gave me a second chance when I needed one."

The area in which the bookstore profits is in their inmate purchases. This refers to paper, pencils, novelty books and items. These changes in CU activities or times for Homecoming. Alumni are welcome to use the games area of the CU. The crafts area also will be open for student use and alumni inspection.

Rising tuition costs hamper foreign students’ enrollment

by JEANNE WILES

An international student tuition squeeze this year has in two years has accompanied a downward trend in foreign student population at this school.

Tuition was first raised from $1110 to $1780 in 1971-72. That year was followed by a modest increase in 1972-73. This tuition increase was followed by a drastic upcharge of tuition this year.

Coupled with the fact that colleges are becoming increasingly crowded, the foreign student’s chances became pretty slim at the low tuition rate of $350. The tuition rate for non-state resident students increased to $600 per year.

The forelipi student’s tuition has now been raised to this level. Fall Quarter, 1973, the tuition was raised to $600 per year. That year, according to records, there were 488 international students attending this school.

According to college records as reported to the Institute of International Education, 676 foreign students have been coming to this school since right after World War II. Now as the foreign influx came in the 1960’s. Following a state trend, 1969 was the first year for foreign student enrollment here. At that time, there were 228 foreign students in colleges with a foreign student population of over 600.

The number of international students that year was 50. The tuition charge at that time was $350 per year, and it had been since foreign students first started coming.

The budget squeeze

The budget squeeze has been named as the primary culprit in the increase in foreign student rates. Coupled with the fact that colleges are becoming increasingly crowded, the foreign student’s chances became pretty slim at the low tuition rate of $350. The tuition rate for non-state resident students increased to $600.

In Gov. Ronald Reagan’s budget for 1973-74, proposed by the Governor for all non-resident students was raised to $1110 per quarter fee. Coupled with the fact that in addition to the $1110 tuition fee, there’s what gained them. The possibility of deferral of the additional $170 per quarter fee, until after Nov. 11, and loan tuition and fees, each requiring a new contract, and to be due Feb. 1973. Also they found their status as campus job-seekers had been elevated to that of their American brothers, some housing was available in old, campus dorms at $60 per quarter, and if they were married, they were eligible for food stamps.

KCPR expands hours

It's "Freak Night in the City" tonight as campus radio station KCPR begins its 24-hour programming on 91.3 FM. Special programming will start at 7:30 p.m. with Lucille Flettcher's thrilling radio classic "Sorry. Wrong Number," starring Agnes Moorehead.

The evening of horror will continue with Saramoise Collins the vampirre, telling "Tales of Dark Shadows" and concluding the evening with Orson Welles' "War of the Worlds," the 1938 radio drama that shocked the nation.

KCPR, now in its fourth season, originated in 1988 as part of the Speech Department and moved to its location in the Journalism Department in 1969. The operating studio being used now was developed in February of this year as a senior project by journalism students.

Licensed to the college with a 10-watt transmitter, the station receives no financial-allocation from ASI. It is manned by a staff of students from all majors under the advice of Ed Zuchelli, an Instructor in the Journalism Department.

The station serves primarily as an educational training ground, but is dedicated to serving many different tastes in listening. It covers the rock, jazz, and classical sounds and gets into hard rock at night.

Special programs are broadcast throughout the week beginning with "Sunday Parade" on Sunday evenings from 8 to 7. This show presents specially recorded plays or programs of interest to the listener.

On Tuesdays and Thursdays a quiz show "Testing 1, 2, 3..." is aired from 7:30 p.m. to 8 p.m. Contestants call in and answer questions of varying difficulty. If the contestant answers three straight questions correctly, he receives a top prize. If he wishes to stop after any question, he receives a prize of lesser value.

"Study Break," a program designed as a student rap session, proceeds on Wednesday nights at 9:30. Saturday night's programming includes folk music beginning at 9, and requests from the California Mens Colony are played once during the week.

The station also carries a news broadcast every evening and several public service announcements on "City Marques" as a service to the community.

More goes into operating a radio station than ordinarily meets the eye—or the ear—of the average listener. Fourteen departments and positions are coordinated to make KCPR what it is.

There's the programming director who coordinates all programming and the music directors who receive all records at the station and coordinate a music staff in selecting, scheduling, and timing records to be played on the air.

The chief engineer is primarily concerned with the technical operation of the station, while the traffic director coordinates a secretarial pool for typing station logs and working with the program director in scheduling.

Constance Brown
Reflecting the "Friends" optimistic view of the nature of the war, Mrs. Brown said, "I am afraid that we are likely to see this policy changed to a 15-year plan."

Although the ability remains, Epstein said, "if we don't have the ability to perform well in bed, jokes about it, and other things, we will still need to perform well in our other activities on this campus also."

"I am afraid that we are likely to see this policy changed to a 15-year plan," she added. "I believe that the policy of war in Vietnam is partly responsible for this ability to perform well in bed."
From Egypt to Cuesta

A man who sailed 3,200 miles across the Atlantic Ocean in a papyrus raft to prove that Egyptians might have landed in America 40 centuries ago, will speak about his voyage next month at Cuesta College.

Norman Baker, bold navigator, radio-man, and second-in-command to the Norwegian explorer Thor Heyerdahl, will discuss "Primitive Sailing Across the Ocean." In his talk he will describe the two voyages he made with a seven-man crew as well as the planning of the trips and building of the papyrus rafts Ra I and Ra II in Egypt.

The illustrated talk will be held at 8 p.m. on Nov. 10 in the Cuesta College Community Auditorium. Admission is free.

The rest of the discussion centered on the complaint that the queen should be chosen for more than just a pretty face. The group felt that the intelligence of a woman should be taken into consideration as well. They discussed questions which they thought would be more prevalent than the ones asked by the judges and the students.

The second aspect of women's lib on this campus is an experimental course being offered next quarter, titled "Current Issues of Women." The class will be taught by Lorraine Howard, Associate Dean of Women, and will be listed as ED 470.

Dr. Howard understood the needs of the growing number of women at this school and the suggestion that a course be offered which would be addressed to their needs in light of today's social developments.

Liberation

Women unite

by JUNE KRAFFT

Liberated women unite! You are no longer alone in your struggle for freedom.

As the women's liberation movement on this campus expands, so do the possibilities of student involvement. Women's lib enthusiasts can share views at a weekly women's rap session and next quarter will be able to sign up for a course in related issues.

What began a couple of years ago as a small group of dissatisfied women is now organized into a women's discussion group which meets every Thursday in Room 311-D of the College Union between 3 and 4 p.m.

The atmosphere of the meeting is casual, with everyone seated in a circle talking and drinking herbal tea and eating carrot bread. But the informality does not change the fact that the women are gathered there for a very important purpose. They gather to explore the unique problems of women in today's world in relationship to men, especially the men on this campus.

One topic of discussion was the Homecoming queen pageant. With four of the queen candidates present, the group talked about the effects of the pageant on the image of the liberated women. The "stupid" questions that the finalists were asked in the residence halls (What do you think of hot pants?) were pointed out as being an insult to the intelligence of a woman. The women felt that the whole idea of a pageant was based on the assumption that women are in competition for men and recognition of their beauty. They said this wasn't true and suggested that the queen candidates pass the crown from one to another at the pageant to prove that they were all equal.

The rest of the discussion centered on the complaint that the queen should be chosen for more than just a pretty face. The group felt that the intelligence of a woman should be taken into consideration as well. They discussed questions which they thought would be more relevant than the ones asked by the judges and the students.

Meaningful Semester

you'll ever spend... could be the one on World Campus Afloat

Eating Feb. 1972 in Africa and the Orient

Through a unique venture more than 5,000 students from 400 campuses have participated in a semester in this unique program in international education.

WCS will broaden your horizons, increase your understanding... and give you a better chance to make it—meaningful—in this changing world. You'll study at sea with an experienced non-majoritarian faculty, and then during part times on land. To make it meaningful, you'll talk about things that matter how long you stay away, you know a lot about yourself and people of other sorts.

WCS isn't an experience you might want, you don't have to be a student at most college students. Write today for free details.

A new concept in social science

by MARYLIN HARVEY

Doing your own thing for the class is what Social Science 360-X is all about. Awareness of current environmental issues is the main goal assigned to the students in order to interpret the human experience through interdisciplinary approaches like those of social, economic, political and environmental specialists.

The course emphasizes student solving with the help of faculty. Jean Board, instructor for the class, said that the students choose their own projects, which may be done individually or as a group. The projects range from Alexandra R. Hospital visiting, tutoring, and recycling to a study of the function of the Foundation at the Cal Poly campus.

When some of the students in the class were asked about their projects and how they felt about the class, they were willing to share the experiences of their projects and said the class was quite relevant to the times.

Cassance Brown, whose project is visiting conscientious objectionees in the Federal Correctional Institution in Lompoc once a month, said she felt that the other important lessons are, "we are sharing what we're doing.""She's good to be a sympathetic friend from the outside. She feels that the conscientious war objectors are being discriminated against because they are not receiving parole as soon as other warers m. "Dona Wilson felt that the class really helps because the other students help you find pitfalls and loopholes in your procedure. And when you have exchanged experiences about your projects, you have learned something.

When studying the Dean of Students Office to find whether or not the money is being used efficiently, the response was "it is, it makes our lives a lot easier." Barbara Laird is also involved with the functions of the Foundation. She would like to have a student lounge in the Cafeteria or available on campus. Her plans are to have an article in the Soledad Daily and circulate a petition. When asked about the cost of organic foods, she said she would be willing to pay more and less interested students would too.

Other students involved in the class are John Donnelly, who hopes to find more ways for students to be eligible for the Food Stamps Program. Ecology minded Tom Laudberch and two other students are setting up a recycling collection center in this area. The object is for people to do the recycling themselves. It is felt that if people do not, the government will take over the recycling and charge higher taxes.

Larry Koehn goes on interviews with a California parole officer to help the releases find jobs and solve any family problems. Koehn feels this is an important project because he hopes to go into high school counseling.

Tutoring is Mark Harriss project. A math major, he is teaching migrant farm workers' children in the High School Equivalency Program at Tenaya Hall. This program is to help these students enter colleges.

Visitation to Alexandra R. Hospital allow Ken Korrelia and two other students to talk with these patients who will be released within a year. The students take part in recreation and arts and crafts with the patients.

All of the students in the class are totally involved in their projects and feel that the class should be continued. The chances seem bleak.

Board said, "So far, I'm quite pleased with the way the course is going."

However he doesn't think the class will offered again unless more students sign up for it. The student has to be willing to put in a little more work. Social Science 360-X is a three unit course with two lectures and one activity.

Sulfur burning stops smog, aids farmers

San Francisco (UPI)—A sulfur burning machine, resembling a cross between a cement mixer and a steam engine, has given hope to farmers with nutrient-starved soil and officials fighting smog. It burns chunks of processed sulfur at a controlled rate to generate heat and pollute the air without polluting the earth. Sulfur burning stops smog, aids farmers

Parolee eyes new life

Chino, Calif. (UPI)—Dr. Bernard Finch, who has spent the past 13 years in prison for the murder of his socialite wife, will be released today to pick up a new life, it was disclosed Wednesday.

The California Institution for Men said the state Adult Authority had approved freeing the 58-year-old Finch in advance of the previously announced date of Dec. 6. Finch and his flame-haired mistress, Carole Tregoff, were convicted of the July 19, 1960, slaying of Mrs. Barbara Jean Finch after three sensational trials—the first two ending with hung juries.

The superintendent's office at Chino, a minimum security institution, said Finch had asked that they not disclose where he would settle after he is freed.

Finch had been permitted to take two 71 hour furloughs from Chino in the past month to make arrangements for a new job and home.

Miss Tregoff, now 34, was paroled in May, 1969, after 10 years imprisonment. She took a job in a hospital in suburban Los Angeles under another name. She and Finch have not seen one another since the third trial.

Testimony at the trials showed the lovers waited in the driveway of the Finch hilltop home in West Covina until Mrs. Pinch came home late that night.

Halloween hocus-pocus

Presto: pumpkins turn to ‘lanterns’

Halloween comes only once a year and for many children, it is almost as much fun as Christmas. The spirit of this holiday, however, tends to fade after age 12, when people start asking, “aren’t you a little old to be trick-or-treating?”

But this is not true for members of PALS, a campus organization in which college students spend at least one hour a week with a child who needs individual attention. A little Halloween excitement returned in the form of a pumpkin carving contest. Delta Sigma Phi sponsored the contest for 20 of the children from PALS Thursday afternoon. Each child got his own pumpkin to clean and carve and got to keep his creation when the party was over.

The pumpkin carving contest was started through the welfare department and is an annual event. The pumpkins were donated by Jordanos and William’s Brothers markets.

How do you turn a pumpkin into a jack-o’-lantern? “I don’t know!”

Make sure the inside is completely cleaned out. Have to leave lots of room for the candle to burn, you know.

“If you get hold of it just so, and poke right there ... an eye, a nose, or anything else you want to make it.”

“You want to see my jack-o’-lantern? Well, maybe...”

And that’s what a pumpkin-turned-into-a-jack-o’-lantern looks like!

Lutheran pastor Milan Haimovici spent eight years in Romanian jails passing through indescribable tortures. The Communists placed him barefoot on burning coals. He was savagely beaten in the groin and made to empty barrels filled with the human waste of thousands of prisoners with his own hands. However, his faith withstanded all these trials. Even Communist officers as they spoke later about it, were filled with such respect that they took off their hats when speaking about this living saint.

Thousands of Christian prisoners died in Romanian Communist jails. A complete account of their courageous faith and stand for the Lord is contained in the book TORTURED FOR CHRIST, by Rev. Richard Wurmbrand, a bestseller in 25 languages.
Mustangs seek revenge

The Mustangs will attempt to even their season record after they lost to Long Beach State College in the Homecoming special.

They look for their first victory in 18 years over Long Beach, who walked over the Mustangs last year 34-20.

Physically, the Mustangs should enter the game in fairly good condition. Junior Dan Graham, a 235-pound defensive tackle, is expected to return to action. Graham has missed the last two games due to an ankle dislocation suffered in the Humboldt State game.

Tailback Darryl Thompson, who hasn’t played since the season’s opener, was listed as a possibility by coach Joe Harper. Thompson was the leading ground-gainer in the CCAA last year with 1,416 yards and an average of 6.4 yards per carry.

Linebacker Bob Crume is the only player listed as doubtful by the Mustangs. Crume left the Valley State game last week in the second quarter when he injured his knee.

“O.T. yards and six scores,” said Bob Crume in the Mustangs’ power game. The game promises to be one of the most exciting of the season. The Mustangs have played San Diego State and Montana from the Big Sky Conference, his team.

The California Collegiate Athletic Association was burning after this last week, when a smoking hot Mustang team ran away from the dead and flattened San Fernando Valley State, 16-6. From absolutely rock bottom ratings in the CCAA, the newly charged Mustangs passed, ran, blocked and fumbled their way to a third place finish in the overall standings with 3-5 record, and a 1-3 CCAA record.

With Cal State Fullerton-berating in UV’s past, the Mustangs are on the march. Fullerton is in first place in the CCAA race.

The CCAA even bestowed the Offensive and Defensive Player of the Week on two Mustang players. Mike Aimes received honors for five stunning catches that netted 111 yards and a touchdown. For the defense, Terence Chiala was credited for his “super pass breakup” against Valley State, according to the CCAA. Chiala made seven assisted and two unassisted tackles. On two occasions he kept his feet behind the line of scrimmage.

Aimes and Chiala were Cal Poly’s Players of the Week, along with cornerback Gary Favia. Favia picked off the Specialty Team Player of the Week for his fantastic punt return galing of 71 yards. This effort got the ball back on the Mustang 15, and set the tone for a Mustang touchdown.

During an interview earlier this year, Favia explained his ideas on the success of a punt return, “Setting up a return is half the battle. The other half comes down scattered all over the field. You can use a couple of Mustangs passers on your own, you can usually find yourself.”

These days, along with the rest of the Mustangs will hopefully hand the Long Beach State their first defeat in the last four years. History between the two teams.

The last time the Mustangs defeated the Dons was in 1969. For three years previous to that the Mustangs were victors.

Long Beach just defeated U.C. Davis 13-6. The Mustangs’ Homecoming game, last weekend, was postponed because Mustangs intend to keep the Dons from depressing their Homecoming.

The very best of luck, guys.
