San Luis Obispo County must now deposit 18-year-old voter registrars, according to John W. West, Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. in a letter to county officials on Oct. 30.

According to John W. West, associate dean of the School of Agriculture and Natural Resources, Bunje views the future as not to exceed production volume so as not to exceed production market demands.

Bunje said that those in the field of agriculture and agricultural business must be aware of the internal forces with which they have to deal.

He went on to say that they will have to develop labor laws specifically for agriculture, since agricultural labor poses certain problems not common to industrial labor.

Also he said that agricultural firms and organizations must be competitive with other industries in terms of fringe benefits offered to laborers. He said that new and better sources of financing these firms and organizations must be found.

Bunje concluded by saying that the field of agriculture will need well trained, dynamic, hard working, and flexible young leadership to cope with the constant changes that are being made in this field.

There have been the manager of his association for the past 21 years. This organization represents about 40 percent of the national peach industry. It also exports a sizable amount of canned peaches.

Bunje was sponsored by the Student Council of the School of Agriculture and Natural Resources, which hosts a speaker each Fall and Winter Quarter.

"Thresholds of Agriculture" was the topic spoken on last Wednesday night by Ralph Bunje, General Manager of the California Canning Peach Association. According to John W. West, associate dean of the School of Agriculture and Natural Resources, Bunje tried to indicate to young people in agriculture that their field holds an exciting future.

"It is plain that the clerk may not reject the offers of assistance whether the fee will and reduce. But the fact is that the code does not permit the clerk to turn down qualified volunteers.

"I am saying the奉献 to all qualified citizens since no one may vote in California unless he is first registered; only the opportunity of registering the franchise necessarily entails eliminating to the maximum extent possible all road blocks and obstacles to registration.

Human life has value

Editor:

The Editors of the Student Affairs Council have adopted a resolution calling for the repeal of all abortion laws. What I have to say on this matter I say with a certain amount of genuine regret. It is not my fault that I count several of the sisters as friends, but, more importantly, because abortion laws, especially as they are now constituted, have been the cause of pain and anguish for countless women.

But SAC represents the students, and I believe there are other considerations that must be aired before the students can responsibly approve or disapprove the resolution.

The basic principle in the sisters' argument is that a woman has the right to control over her body and her life. If this is indeed the highest moral principle to be considered, I would agree fully with their practical conclusions. Away with the laws!

There is, however, another principle, and one that will not die easy, no matter how much it is ignored or abused: every human life has an absolute value and it is therefore immoral to exploit a human life as a means to any goal, no matter how noble.

And at this point I can almost hear the exclamation of shock from the sisters: what about the Church?

The law defines human life this way, or that way, and what comparison is there between an inch of fetal tissue and a woman in agony? Just as he is and she is: human.

But SAC represents the students, and I believe there are other considerations that must be aired before the students can responsibly approve or disapprove the resolution.

The truly stunning segment of "Lovel Machine" is the behind the scenes look at the show, the set-up, the planning the shot. They claim that this violates the National Environmental Policy Act to assure that all federal actions, whether or not involving the environment occur only after full and informed consideration of environment, its impact and alternatives...

Press Secretary Ron Ziagler revealed the above argument that the government's investigation had determined that the test would not endanger the environment.

Demonstrating his confidence in the safety of the impending nuclear test, Chairman James R. Schlesinger of the Atomic Energy Commission took his wife and two of his children Thursday in the group that went to Amchitka Island to observe the blast. "We expect this test to go safely," Schlesinger said.

The AID program is starting up.

The AID-United Givers Campaign Drive will begin Nov. 13 and continue through Nov. 22 according to President Robert Kennedy, chairman of the state employee AID drive.

The AID program encompasses all of Southern California and is designed as a fund-raising organization that donates its collected funds to various charitable agencies. The Los Angeles County Chapter of which the United Givers Campaign is a part, will benefit from the AID program. The funds are used to support the college-wide activities such as on-campus meetings of the AID program and the Salvation Army.

President Kennedy said that he is sure that this community service program is the best way to support the local and national cause for a variety of reasons.

In this on-campus meeting, the school admin and department heads will speak to the employees. Each employee will contact 10 employees, disseminate information, explain the program, and distribute and pick up pledge cards.

Orientation meetings have been scheduled to assist the notices. They will be held today at the Dining Hall from 2 to 3 p.m. and from 3 to 4 p.m.

Buckley speech will reflect on disorders

William F. Buckley will reflect on disorders in a speaking engagement at Allan Hancock College Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the Performing Arts Pavilion.

Buckley's career has been long and varied. He was a member of the faculty of Yale University from 1947 through 1981. In 1983 he became the editor of the American Mercury, a position which he resigned in the summer of 1983 to do free-lance writing and lecturing.

In 1960 Buckley founded the National Review, a publication that Playboy Magazine calls "America's only substantial right-of-center political journal."

He became the host of "Firing Line," a weekly show in 1966. Some notable guests on the controversial show have been Dick Gregory, F. Lee Bailey, Norman Mailer, Richard M. Nixon, and Eldridge Cleaver.

Buckley has also authored several books including "God and Man at Yale" and "Governor Listach: A Book of Inspired Political Revelations."

An interview with Buckley in Playboy Magazine said that he has found himself characterized as "an unprincipled, egocentric, intellectual exhibitionist," "the most dangerous undergraduate Yale has seen in years," and "an urban front man for the most primitive and vicious emotions in the land."

Conversely Buckley has also been called"a true liberal in the old, traditional sense of the word," "a brilliant journalist," and, by his friend John Kenneth Galbraith, "the only reactionary I ever met with a sense of humor."

Tickets are now on sale at the campus box office at Hancock College in Santa Maria. Tickets will also be available at the door.

The admission price is $3 for students and $4 for the general public.
Poly hits Vegas trail

The Mustangs will head for Las Vegas tomorrow without the presence of quarterback Steve Beachman to meet the University of Nevada. Cal Poly will enter the second half of their 1971 campaign with a 2-4 win-loss record while the Nevada Rebels show a 3-3 record.

Nevada Rebels show a 3-3 record. 2-4 win-loss record while the Mustangs will play on Astroturf. They had one of their earlier this year despite an 16-14 win over Boise State on the carpet from Monterey, replaced transfer and a freshman. John Bresnahan last week who suffered a bruised intestine. Rollie Garret is the freshman who was Petitas.

Neither of the two has seen much action in the first six games. Each has completed one of two passes, Petitas for 30 yards and Garret's for 18. Petitas has last a total of two yards in five running attempts while Garret has gained 13 yards in eight games.

Coach Joe Harper is weary about the Mustang future. "It remains to be seen what we can do without Beachman," he said. He called Las Vegas "a very talented and physically strong football team. I have been more impressed with their aggressiveness than any other team we have met thus far. They have a couple of good quarterbacks, two receivers, and a lot of big backs."

After being limited to 180 yards in total offense in losses to Northern Arizona (20-7) and Weber State (30-17), the Rebels bounced back with 386 yards to beat New Mexico last week, 66-31. Las Vegas has averaged 168.3 yards a game passing and only 46.9 yards a game rushing for a total offense of 300.8 yards. The Mustangs have generated an average of 193.8 yards rushing and 168.3 yards passing for a total of 383.1 yards a game.

Mustang letterman Rick Renz, the third leading receiver with 20 catches for 286 yards in losses to Monterey, replaced transfer and a freshman. John Bresnahan last week who suffered a bruised intestine. Rollie Garret is the freshman who was Petitas.

Defensively, Poly looks to outside linebacker Tom Duran along with end Tom Chastler and tackle Wayne Robinson. Free safety Rick Wegis, tackle John Miklas, and strong safety Mike Church have also been standouts from the defensive attack.
