Draftees receive call numbers

March given first two slots in draft order
by DONALD FINLEY

Washington (UPI)—Giving the day's astronomical forecast a solid ring of authenticity, March 6 and 7 were the first two numbers called Wednesday in the national draft lottery.

Although some officials have said that few—if any—would be likely to be drafted next year, a Places horn for men born in March that appeared Tuesday offered this word of caution: "It would be premature to commit yourself to any venture.

In opening the two-hour drawing, Selective Service Director Curtis W. Tarr noted that the lottery for 1973 was being held much earlier than in the past year as neat as that "young men will be able to make plans and avoid the probability of induction as soon as possible."

When the drawing reached the first two numbers that were called, 166,000 men were drafted In 1969, both the U.S. military and the Selective Service have changed a great deal.

The manpower requirements of the armed services have decreased considerably, and

Mr. Jenness would like to see the 16-year-old vote as a step in draft order

"Stay in the streets. Stay in the movement. Do not vote Republican or Democrat."

This was the advice of Linda Jenness, Socialist Worker's presidential candidate, at a College Union press conference yesterday. The AEU-sponsored speaker appeared on campus during her two-week political campaign through Southern California.

The "mass movements" she referred to are the anti-war, feminist, and minority interests, such as "La Raza Unida," a Chicano organization Although Mrs. Jenness realized California voters cannot vote for her on a slate, she said state citizens can support the Socialist Worker's Party objectives with their involvement in those "street movements."

Mrs. Jenness said her party is now initiating legal suits against 10 states who have called restrictive requirements on public office eligibility. "We are the 18-year-old vote as a step forward," she said, "but the age restrictions on public offices has got to be eliminated."

According to Mrs. Jenness, her party is calling for a constitutional amendment to reduce the age requirements. "The age requirements cannot be called unconstitutional; they are written in the Constitution," the 21-year-old presidential candidate said. "However, we do think it is an undemocratic way to elect officers."

"Changes are not obtained by working through the Democratic or Republican parties," she said. "Change calls for independent action outside the system. Electing a liberal Democrat for president is just as bad as electing a conservative Republican."

The presidential candidate said. "We need an undemocratic way to elect officers."

Political arena open for youthful support

by PAUL EDMON
Editor-in-Chief

The rush is on by students at this college and other youth throughout California to organise support for their first big stab at a place of the election pie.

Their ultimate goal is to have a seat in the nation's presidential race, although the initial step must be made at the Feb. 12 Democratic caucuses. From there delegates will be nominated indirectly in the party's Jan. convention in Miami. Fl.

Reaching the goal is the activity is to select for the Socialists a delegate who will make the county caucuses. Florida is the last state to hold its caucuses, and the results of the state and nationwide elections will determine who will go to Miami.

Caucus rules for this state are set up by the county Socialists, and the college Socialists are working to see that candidates who are acceptable to the majority of county Socialists are chosen.

Ellies will bring big band sound to campus tonight

Don Ellis will bring his intellectual, experimental brand of big-band jazz to the Men's Gym Thursday at 8:30 p.m.

These expecting the surging sound of the '40s swing era will be surprised by the direction of the '40s swing era result that all the instruments in the band will be used on his trumpet and the fact that all the instrument in the band will be exploded.

Ellis has been described as classically trained and big band oriented. The Eastern rhythmic patterns noted in his work result from his study of Eastern Ethnomusicology at UCLA under John Rosenberg.

Ellis's arrangements make use of unusual time structures and tempos that vary within the structure of each number. These structures may seem strange to those used to rack music with a usually unvarying beat.

Ellis has been quoted as saying "It's pretty much my nature to be in the streets. I'm in the streets."

The band includes three drummers, a woodwind quartet, a bass, two trumpets and a piano in addition to Ellis himself who plays tenor saxophone, four valve flugelhorn and the drums.

With his "magic electric trumpet," Ellis can improvise down in the range of a base fiddle, produce all kinds of non-trumpet tones and even play duets with himself.

General admission tickets for the concert are available at the CIU information desk at $3 for students and $5 general. Reserve seats are available at $2.50 and $5. Tickets will also be sold at the door.

Driver's unite

Defensive driver training sessions for this quarter are scheduled for Wednesday from 7 to 9 p.m. and Thursday from 8:15 to 9 p.m. Both sessions will be held in Eng. 125.

Peace begins in heart

Randy's belief concerning human nature is very optimistic, but it does not agree with thousands of years of historical evidence. Since 3600 B.C. there have been more than 15,000 wars, leaving only 39 years of relative peace. During those 39 years the conflict between individuals continued.

We have to face the truth—war starts within man. Because of his own self-centeredness, he cannot get along with his fellow man or with his environment; hence wars, racism, pollution, and oppression.

Two thousand years ago, Jesus of Nazareth offered a plan for love, peace, and freedom that begins where the problem does—in the human heart. He said, "Behold, I stand at the door of your heart and knock; if any man hears my voice and opens the door, I will come in." Jesus' solution works:

Campaign pain

Calif. (UPI)—Rep. Paul H. McCloskey, R-Calif., announced through his campaign manager that he was in debt and needed new contributions to permit payment of door-to-door canvassers and advertising costs for the March 7 primary campaign against Nixon in New Hampshire. The manager, Alvin E. Tofel, made a nationwide direct mail appeal to 3,000 persons for donations, saying lack of money had prevented McCloskey from running a multistate campaign.

Associated Student, Inc. Pres. Pete Evans has a solid organizational structure to insure student involvement in the various operations of this college, but that structure is sorely lacking one vital ingredient—you, the student. Among the themes of last spring's ASI elections was the non-involvement of students in their student government. Well, this year Evans followed through with that part of his promises. But the response has been poor, indeed.

Involvement doesn't necessarily mean sitting on Student-Administrative Council or any other of the several major student boards and committees on campus. It means taking the time to channel your interests, complaints or suggestions into the existing areas. Letters to the editor alone cannot achieve that goal.

Students have a voice, no matter how small, in just about every group of any importance—a fact documented by the number of appointees Evans has made. Most of those appointees gather for a two-hour discussion session with Evans once a week in the offices of the bodies they sit on.

Among the groups which students are represented at are the Academic Senate, Foundation, the Fairness Board (ward and ward), the Academic Council; Tom Speers, Administrative Council; Jerry Bannett, Academic Council; Tom Speers, Administrative Council; Jerry Bannett, Academic Council; and reps: Yves Montand, Associated Students, Inc. Pres.

What they need is the voice of the students do and doesn't mean going along with the proposals of the ASI administration. It means going to the student rep when you have a complaint or a suggestion. Students can be and are heard, if they take the opportunity to do so. That's what the student representatives are doing in the various groups in the first place—giving student opinion a chance to find itself an audience.

The student rep and their group, sometimes between themselves, are greatly limited. They know only their own ideas and opinions along with those of a very few others who contribute occasionally. What they need is the voice of the students.

Two platform issues—derived at the San Jose youth caucus—will be discussed at Cabrillo. They include agriculture and rural development, urban affairs, consumer affairs, economic growth and individual opportunity and education.

Also, national security and peace, health, welfare and the quality of life, taxation, public safety and law enforcement and legislative issues.

A new delegate selection process from California to the Democratic national convention makes possible increased youth participation, which, according to National Youth Caucus officials, is in line with McGovern commission reforms requiring the representation of young people, women, minorities and other groups in proportion to their numbers in the population, numbers in the population.

The law now requires each Democratic Presidential campaign to hold caucuses of their supporters in each Congressional District in the state to propose potential delegates and alternates to be on that candidate’s slate in the state primary. The caucuses will be held throughout the state, and each campaign will designate a registered Democrat to staff theirs in each district over the candidate’s slate in that district.

The names of designated delegates will be forwarded to statewide organizing committees for each candidate, who will make up the final slate of delegates to the convention.

Stoner is hopeful:

Head basketball mentor feels team can still win conference games of the season.

The third key member of the Mustang offense is Monteagle, junior center Bob Jennings. He leads the team in rebounds with a 10.1 average, and he is averaging 13.7 points a game.

Although the Mustangs are only tied for third in the California Collegiate Athletic Association, coach Nolo Stoner is not discouraged.

"Actually the team is playing very well," he said this week. "We could just as easily be 6-4 in the league instead of 5-4. We've lost any slack there may have been in the conference schedule by our 79-77 loss to UC Riverside. We have the ability to win, and I think we can," he added. "The conference race certainly is not over for us. We've made the conference situation more difficult for ourselves, but we're definitely still in the title picture," Stoner commented.

The Stoner men will play two more non-conference games this weekend after beating Westmont College on Tuesday, 80-72. Billy Jackson was the top scorer in the game with 20 points. The Mustangs trailed 10-13 at the half after hitting only 13.3 per cent of their shots, but outshot Westmont in the second half. Center Bob Jennings had 30 points while Jackson and Jennings each had 13 rebounds.

This college will host Chapman College on Friday and the University of San Diego on Saturday. Tip off times will be 8 p.m. Chapman College, an aggressive offensive team with good size, brings a 5-4 record into the game.

The University of San Diego is coming off of a big 85-70 victory over CCAA co-leader San Fernando Valley State last weekend. The key man of that upset was the Toreros' brilliant 6-foot-4-inch sophomore guard Stan Washington, the owner of a team-leading 17.3 scoring average.

Coach Stoner is not dissatisfied with the play of his Mustangs. "We've just got to go a few more shots dropping, that's all. We played Riverside about as even as we've possible to do, but we didn't get any breaks on those last couple of shots by Pinky Williams. He took good shots—but they just didn't drop at the finish," he said.

Williams, a sophomore guard from Washington D.C., has recently become a top scorer. He has averaged 18.2 points in his last six games and carries a 14.9 mark for the season. He's shooting 46.9 per cent from the field and is the leading free throw shooter with a 78.7 per cent efficiency rating.

Jackson continues to lead the conference in scoring and is compiling one of the finest offensive seasons in Cal Poly history. He's averaging 21.9 points a game and can become the all-time Mustang scoring leader if he continues at this same pace for the nine remaining games of the season.

The Stonermen will play two more non-conference games before the conference schedule begins.
