Dorm residents take to the air

The Student Tenants Association took to the air Wednesday night with its dorm reform drive on KCPH radio's Friday night program and found an interested audience.

The show aired live for 90 minutes even though it is normally scheduled for 90 minutes. Students called in throughout the program to voice gripes and in some cases to express satisfaction with their present dorm situation.

Student Tenants Association (STA) was represented by Skip Kelley, Jim Abernathy and Jim Devall.

STA's basic issues for dorm reform optional yearly or quarterly housing licenses for dorm residents and a choice in the matter of visiting hours with the possibility of 24-hour visiting. Rules and regulations which reflect the variety of lifestyles among dorm residents are also in issue.

STA also wants to establish an appeals board composed of at least 10 percent dorm residents to hear students who have a legitimate need to get out of dorm contracts.

Robert Bostrom, director of housing, was also a subject of discussion. Bostrom is considered a villain by many dorm residents since he enforces administration policy but other dorm residents see him as merely a part of the system doing his job.

Kelley said he had talked to students about Bostrom and heard both good and bad comments, but he denied any personal vendetta against Bostrom or anyone else on STA's part.

Phone calls on the air from dorm residents revealed they have specific gripes and they (Continued on page 1)

There are no equal application of the law in this country,” Linda Jenness told an attentive audience Wednesday night.

“The laws are neither made for the citizens of this country, but to protect the private property and wealth of the tiny group of people who control the society.”

Jenness said the government maintains control of the people by two means—repression and deception.

“And if you challenge their authority,” she said, “they’ll squash you.”

“Women,” she continued, “have been maintained, however, that the authority is being challenged.

Women,” she said, “have been led to believe that they are inferior, not worth much on the job market, must raise children — and haven’t the right to have an abortion if they want one — and they are too divided, too petty, and hate each other too much to ever get together.”

“But they are getting together,” she continued, “and they don’t believe in the law and the myths or the government’s authority to tell them.”

Jenness cited the development and growth of “the Raiz Union” as another challenge to the capitalist government. “For years the people were told to vote for the democrats,” she said. “But now they are realizing that have to fight for their own, organize for their own, and vote for their own.”

“Women, blacks, browns, students, and gay individuals must build massive movements,” Mrs. Jenness said. “Women, blacks, browns, students, and gay individuals must build massive movements,” Mrs. Jenness said. “And these movements must be built outside the Democratic and Republican parties.”

“Both parties are capitalistic and want to maintain the status quo,” she said, “and are equally responsible for Vietnam, Atica, and other problems facing this country.”

BLACK QUEEN

Six compete for reign

Launching the observance of Black Heritage Week on this campus is a queen pageant, scheduled for this Sunday at 7 p.m. in the college theater.

Six candidates are competing for the role of reigning queen over the eight days of special activities. They are Joyce Griffin, a 19-year-old business administration major; Sandra Oten, a 19-year-old business administration major; Hope Williams, a 19-year-old business administration major; and Glenda Barron, a 19-year-old business administration major.

The girls will be judged on their talents, questions pertaining to black heritage, and a fashion show in which they model clothes of their own making.

The public is invited and the admission is 75 cents.

Teachers with degrees out on a limb for jobs

The aspect of teaching high school in California was presented in a talk sponsored by the Math Club. The talk was presented by a teacher at Cabrillo High School in Lompoc. The speech was presented for the benefit of students who are planning to go into teaching.

The talk centered around the opportunities, fringe benefits and retirement plans of this state. It was followed by a discussion of certain problems in the Lompoc school district, and the math curriculum.

Shiers said that part of the reason there is a surplus of teachers in this state is the large classrooms found here as opposed to those in other states and that there are more children than there need to be.

He also said that because of the tight finances in education, many districts will hire less qualified people.

According to Shiers, those who have earned their masters degrees are entitled to receive from $1500 to $2000 additional salary from the beginning. He feels that "you can price yourself right out of a job" and that it is almost better to get the job first and then the degree.

Dorm residents are ready to take action in some instances.

One caller urging to Benson wanted to know, "Where does the tech shop?" Another caller expressed disappointment over the results of last year's protests saying, "Nothing really got done, is this going to happen again?"

STA said there was a possibility of a class action suit to force results. Participating students would place their rent in a trust fund until the case was decided by the courts, although STA does not want it to go that far.

Skate tonight

A roller-skating party in Morro Bay will be sponsored by Inter-varsity Christian Fellowship. Everyone is invited to come, with transportation being provided at the college Administration building at 10 p.m. The cost will be $1.

(Notes: The College Drama Committee's presentation of two one-act plays was reviewed Wednesday night during the final dress rehearsal.

"The Bald Soprano" and "The American Dream" opened last night in the college theater. Tonight and Saturday night curtain time is 8 p.m.

Tickets for admission are $1 for residents and $1 for the general public.

A Revolution is going on right here in the college theater.

Student directors have slapped the revolution right through the college gates in the subtle form of two one-act plays.

Deborah Warren is responsible for the first revolutionary action—the stage presentation of Eugene Ionesco's play, "The Bald Soprano." All object of the absurd theater, Miss Warren's presentation of "Bald Soprano" at first glance is a production which has appalling incongruities, both obvious and technical.

During the play which is set in London suburbs, not a trace of British accent was uttered. In Paul Van Rota's characterization of M. Martin, the middle-class London suburban would have been more appropriate a John Wayne movie. His grinning was sleazy and his dialect was definitely Western twang.

Another seemingly goes over the top, Carolyn—Hewitt's costume.

Revolution sweeps to the performance of Ionesco's "Bald Soprano."

The result is better or worse, the act.

Hewitt played the almost pristine Mrs. Martin, one more creation of London Suburbia. However, when she appeared on stage, her executive included red lipstick, a dingy, ragged top, a black short skirt and a matching jacket.

Indeed, these are not our typical expectations of a London-based play, and Van Rota adds to the confusion. "This is terrible. And right here's my home in the London suburbs!" Miss Hewitt achieved a most successful performance in her portrayal of Mrs. Martin. She discovered more of this character throughout the play, even in Mrs. Martin's consistent moments. Miss Hewitt's true color remains true-character to her interpretation.

Fred Culp chose to exaggerate each of the Fischel's idiosyncrasies. Consequently, the Fischel emerges as a paradoxical character. Culp managed to maintain the grotesque character's humaneness with his understanding of the role.

Another deliberately exaggerated character was Mary, the maid. One of Culp's best ideas ever.

Huskies edge grapplers

One winning streak was snapped and another elongated as the Mustang grapplers dropped the first meet of their four-school road trip to Washington, 18-16, in Seattle Wednesday night.

It was a bitter loss for the Mustang wrestlers and coach Vaughn Hitchcock to absorb. It ended a seven-match victory string that began at home following the two losses in Oklahoma. And, if it seems possible, the meet was closer than indicated.

The margin of victory was realized on a disqualification in the match at 132. Former Mustang Allyn Cooke 12-1 dropped the first meet of their dual meet competition. In January they defeated Iowa State 17-18 in Iowa, Poly in 5-2, their only other losses coming in the Oklahoma meet.

State Thursday and the results were not in at press time. Tonight they travel to Eugene to meet the University of Oregon, and conclude their trip in Corvalis against Oregon State.

These two squads met earlier in the year, with Poly taking the honors, 18-17. Hitchcock feels that a second victory will come considerably harder, following three tough matches.

CU games area news

The games area and the College Union will be the site of many activities in the near future. Among these activities planned is a nine-ball tournament sponsored by R.A.T. Committee, to be held Saturday Feb. 12 during the day. For more details and entry blanks go to the Games Area Desk in the lower level of the College Union.

For all the practicing your-eye's can find, the R.A.T. Committee is sponsoring a 9-ye contest to be held Feb. 24 during College Hour.

A message to all who joined or want to join the newly formed table tennis club that includes girls, tous classification trials will be held Tuesday Feb. 8 and Wednesday Feb. 9 from 7-9 p.m. in C.U. if you want to be judged please come on one of these nights. Girls will be classified separately. The group on classified anyone can elevate to a higher group.

The men's tournament will take on Rancho Bowl, San Maria tomorrow night in the CIU.

20 teams play in early game

The San Luis Obispo City Recreation Department will send 20 elementary school basketball teams to compete prior to the Mustang—University of San Diego game tomorrow night in the Gymnasium.

The program will take the place of the four game that was cancelled because USD has no freshman team.

The teams are made up of boys in the fourth, fifth, and sixth grades from the following schools: C.L. Smith, Quintana, Teach, Mission, Pacheco, Hawthorne, Franklin, and Los Ranchos.

Coaches of the teams are volunteers from an introductory to recreation class taught here.

The program will start at 6;30 with ten games, one every eight minutes.

Rodeo tonight

The Cal Poly Rodeo Club will sponsor an intramural rodeo tonight at the Collett Arena. The rodeo team members and individuals will be competing in bareback riding, saddle bronc riding, bull riding, calf roping, and team roping.

The girls will be participating in girl tying, breakaway roping, and barrel racing. There will be a 5:00 donation as the gate and a dance afterwards at the IDES Hall.
