Tuition decision coming

by KATHLEEN BEASLEY

Foreign students should pay the higher rate of tuition Spring Quarter for their own protection, according to Registrar Gerald Punches.

The advice is the result of the latest information and a modification of a court injunction concerning foreign student tuition.

The injunction, resulting from a suit filed by several foreign students, restrains the state colleges from collecting over $80 per unit or $800 for the academic year in tuition.

According to Punches, the injunction has been focused up to this point on who is eligible to enroll at reduced rates in each quarter. "But the question that has been raised now is: What if California wins?" said Punches.

The answer if "all foreign students who pay a reduced rate of tuition Spring Quarter will have to pay the difference between what they did pay and what they should have paid, according to the register."

"If the State of California wins the case, all foreign students will be required to pay full tuition, at the higher rate, for Spring Quarter, 1975. If the fees are upheld, the student's grades or diploma may be withheld," said Punches.

Any payment over the 800 rate will be regarded as being made "in default," according to a report from Norman Epstein, general counsel for the chancellor.

"A refund will be forthcoming if the fees are paid in protest, provided the student's grades or diploma may be withheld," said Punches. "I think it's impractical to think that they can pay a higher rate to protest their units and diploma."

The date for the trial has been set in early April and a decision is expected before the end of the quarter.

The chancellor's office asked the court to modify the injunction with a resolution of the Board of Trustees made in November, according to Epstein. The modification of the injunction sets up the following criteria for a student to be eligible for reduced tuition:

1) Students who are citizens of a foreign country;
2) Students enrolled in the state colleges during the fall term of the 1971-72 year, or who have been accepted for admission on or before Nov. 3, 1971;
3) Students who are not foreign exchange students (tuition paid by the federal government); and
4) Students who enrolled and remained enrolled as full-time students during the Spring Quarter.

An impressive list of speakers will be on tap at Cal College House today as United Professors of California conducts a four-hour college-community forum in the proposed budget for the state college system. The forum, open to all who are interested, according to organizers, is designed to provide information to students, faculty, staff and the general public regarding aspects of Gov. Ronald Reagan's submitted budget.

Speakers include Art Berman, president of United Professors of California; Bud Hutchinson, executive secretary of the nationwide organization; Civilen Johnson, California State Employees Association representative; and Marianne Dehi, ASI vice president.

Also Rev. Bruce Tjaden of the Campus Christian Center; Michael Wenst, American Association of University Professors representative; Car Wallace, director of the Educational Opportunity Program; James Landreth, director of business affairs at this college; Pete Evans, ASI president; and Sue Powell, consultant to the Joint Legislative Committee on California Master Plan for Higher Education.

Editor: I would like to voice my opposition to the design concepts of a majority group attending your college. I am a student of the present student government, a major; a woman and a housewife and mother. Aside from this, I travel 14 miles every day to school (not to mention the 34 miles back).

My bone of contention is this. Everyday for the past two quarters it has taken me a long time battle for me to try to find a parking place at your college. Anyone that arrives after 11:30 a.m. has the same problem. You may say first come first serve but I say this, who needs a parking space more, the student that drives one mile to school or the student that must drive 4 miles each way.

If I may be that bold, I have a proposal. I have a suggestion to make to the powers that be. It is that no student be issued a parking permit unless they live further than two miles from your campus. This much cheapens mode of transportation and less polluting for all. It also makes daily use many simple, bicycle stalls in the parking roads.

Another object of contention! Your library system is a very good one for the time in which it was developed. These are new times however and certainly the student of today deserves something far more up to date.

There is a special card which is placed in the library for each student at the time of registration. (One of those cards is that little book of infinite cards that you fill out at the time of registration). You are informed if you go in the library you want to check out books that this special card can only be used because this allows you to check out books. The question now is, what happens to the student that does not get his regular 10 card in the meantime? I would like to know. I guess, that he will just have to do without the library resources in the meantime.

Editor: In reply to the Feb. 9 ecology article "Nuclear waste poses problem" by Warner Chabot I would like to offer this rebuttal to some of his remarks. In the article Mr. Chabot makes the statement that Plutonium 239 has a half life of 24,000 years and says the statement that Plutonium 239 has a product so you do not dispose of it. Mr. Chabot overlooked the fact that Plutonium 239 Is not a waste product so you do not dispose of it, but instead reuse the material in other nuclear facilities, hence no disposal problem at all for Plutonium.

However I do agree that disposing of the remaining waste products underground is not the answer. I believe the most intelligent answer proposed thus far is to shoot the wastes into the sun with space vehicles. Mr. Chabot also poses the problem of disposing of the present toxic dumps should the nuclear power become obsolete. Those projections can only be ninguna radiactive in the extremely rare case of an accident involving radiation of the contacting vessel inside. Even then a clean-up crew wearing protective clothing could remove the radiactive material after the accident. So if the nuclear power should become obsolete all this is necessary to remove the "giant phallic" symbol our creative nation is dismantling.

Also to comment on the restrictive position of "ecologists" against nuclear power. Unless the population growth of the world is stopped the demand for electrical energy will double in just ten years. This power will double in the next ten years. This power must be provided by some means, yet ecologists cite the "dangerous" of the nuclear plants in their opposition to them. Nuclear power plants are built to very stringent regulations with a multitude of safety devices. But if somehow all these devices were bypassed as a radioactive chain reaction could occur a chemical explosion would occur before the reaction became critical and the reaction would cease. Then as stated before a clean-up crew could remove the danger. I am not anti-science but if we must have more electrical power and we weight the possible dangers of a nuclear plant against the real dangers of fossil fueled plants, I say the nuclear plant will yield a cleaner energy source. If ecologists wish to prevent all additional electrical power plants they should turn their efforts to stopping the world population growth and do the research for the electrical energy demand for electrical energy.

Tomorrow is cancelled due to lack of interest

Nowadays it is not unusual to hear of low voter turnout in student elections. It is unusual when an election is postponed because of lack of coordination and staffing.

That's a dilemma we are facing right now.

It happened right here Tuesday. Six Student Affairs Council candidates and the rest of the college (we hope) prepared to go to the polls to choose two representatives from two schools. They are still waiting.

What happened? Steve Greenberg, a past Elections Committee chairman and still a member, said that committee suffers from a lack of direction. What a reversal! Too many Indians and no chief. Well, apparently, that led to Tuesday's letdown.

Four polling tables were to have been set up, to run 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Two people were needed to man each table as expressed in the code. At 8:30 a.m., less than five persons had arrived so the whole election was cancelled.

The Elections code stipulates that the ASI Vice President is responsible for chairing the committee or organizing a replacement. Half the academic year is over and Marianne Doubl still has not done so. We can only hope she names a chairman well in advance of the spring ASI elections.

Equally important, an amendment to the Election codes passed by SAC Fall Quarter requires each school council to name one representative to sit on Elections Committees. According to Mrs. Doubl, only one school has complied.

Between the lack of help and leadership, we had an election that didn't come off.

Wednesday we will get another chance. Presumably Elections Committee will have rounded up enough help. Come on now, students, if that committee can manage an election, the least you can do is to vote.

A prominent was here last week to describe a Gollancz of an idea that David had that should be given everyone who reads this. We'll hear more about it later this month, but if you're only registered voters will be able to participate.

Deputy registrar Barbara Laid, who is on hand in the student government office in the College Union MWP from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m., has volunteered to register voters, is getting about three a day.

Want to vote in the local election in April? If you're not registered before Feb. 14, forget it. That's the cut-off date when books close as far as that particular election is concerned. Unless you are registered before April 14, you can't vote in the June Primary elections. The deadline is Sept. 14 for the November general election.

Recommend to all these faculty, students, that you go to the polls. It's your vote. Be ready to be in line to vote in all three elections.

The U.C. campus of Davis has already registered several thousand new voters...what's the matter with this Cow College? Can't we get politicized here?

THE DRAFT and YOU

by BOB TIMONE
and RAMON TRUE

Editor's Note: This is the first edition of a draft column that will appear regularly in Mustang Daily. Each column will furnish information about the Selective Service System and will present, in direct response to student questions, questions should be addressed to the Draft Counselor, Mustang Daily, Graphic Arts Building, Room 609.

The 1971 Congressional Review of the draft law produced many changes but not necessarily much comfort concerning individual draft status. It is the intent of this column to get at this question and provide some accurate and, hopefully, understandable answers to questions arising out of the situation.

Currently one of the most pressing questions being considered by draft councilors concerns the Extended Priority Group. Men often do not understand the circumstances that led to their extended priority positions. Thus, we propose in this column an attempt to explain the situation concerning the subject of the current draft law.

What is the Extended Priority Group and how does one determine whether or not he is a member of this group?

The Extended Priority Group is made up of men, prior to the conclusion of their service in the military, who, during the current year, were classified I-A or I-A-O, held lottery numbers that were read at or before the cut-off, but for a variety of reasons including appeal or reclassification, appeal rights could not be drafted.

Wars don't die; a lingering issue

by T.W. SPEERS

Recently on a local radio program, a state senator from Newport Beach told the listening audience that one should not criticize Pres. Richard Nixon's efforts in Indochina. The war, after all, was nearly over; and that by mid-1973, it would no longer be a political issue.

As voters, we cannot allow ourselves to be led in such a manner. We have to understand that the war is not over, and the implications of the war are not over. If we listen to statements such as these, we have made by Nixon on his starting efforts to end the war, and believe them, then we have been misled.

The war has been winding down, as far as ground troops are concerned. LIPR recently ran an article showing that we had only two brigades remaining, and one air base at Da Nang.

However, those men who have been streaming home are support troops, clerks, machine gunners, as the South Vietnamese take over these functions. Combat troops have been removed, but relatively few. Those who are posted are given large amounts of media coverage to prove Nixon is keeping his word.

The war in the air is going on at a faster rate than previously. We have removed most of our forces from South Vietnam, but all that is done is to rotate them to Thailand or the seventh Fleet, where they carry out the same.

Editor:

Last Friday, the 11th, Mustang Daily printed a letter that put down Linda Janes. Linda would like to air an opposite view and give my interpretation of the Socialista Workers Party's platform.

First, Linda and the SWP do not want to institute the total leadership of this country. They want to turn the people on to the present state of affairs of this country. The SWP want you and I to find out for ourselves that it is truly happening with the administration of America today. They would like to see the common worker govern himself.

Narrow minded ideas prevail

Editor:

In reply to Mr. Holstein's letter concerning Dr. Borlaug, we feel that it is imperative that several misconceptions and errors be exposed and clarify the facts. We are interested to note the logic behind Mr. Holstein's argument. However it was severely narrow minded and was permeated with ignorance. Dr. Borlaug devoted his entire life to the service of man and a alleviation of the problem of hunger throughout the world. No where in his work or writings has Dr. Borlaug encouraged the population explosion. To hold him responsible for the population explosion is obviously an attempt to discredit the remarkable achievements of one dedicated man. As Dr. Borlaug stated in his talk on Friday, which we hope that Mr. Holstein attendend, "There is no greater planet than that of nationalism." Mr. Holstein, we feel that you are guilty of such nationalism. Instead of welcoming such a breakthrough on the war on hunger and the battle against poverty, you wish to thwart it. This may be fine but are you and your negativism prepared to decide which 40 million people are to starve to death?

"There is absolutely no way to know what is in that drug you are taking," this is one of the problems discussed at the Project Focusing of Dr. Howard Kanutomo of the Public Health Dept.; Dr. Rex Morgan representing the Community Mental Health Center; Dr. Billy Mounts representing the campus Health Center; and Dr. Frank Peterson representing the Public Health Dept. "Kids on the street scene can't relate to drug dropping," Mounts said.

Peterson discussed the recent upsurge of PCP thirty days, a 'slightly' tranquilizer that reacts like an upper, and the raise within the last five to six weeks of drug use in the San Luis Obispo area.

"Our society is so drug-oriented that even from a young age we are bombarde with medicines and drugs," Kanutomo said. "Kids are the most vulnerable with use of Nol. dos to wake you up, Compo and Speedpak (or a you sleep), and alcohol as a rub to reduce a fever. What a drug can do to a young person is sobering." Mounts said, "We refer problems to the mental health clinic, but the problem can't be treated locally. Treatment the health center can give in admitting people into the hospital and talking the person down. All treatment is on an individual basis. There were more people brought in who were on drugs last year than any other year."

The doctors discussed legitimate uses of some drugs. "Many drugs are used for medical purposes and do their job," Peterson said. "We would be using to bring someone off a mind-altering drug."

All four doctors did agree that the best way to get help is at first to be with the person of the need and get help. There are two ways to get a "high" without drugs. "First find your group from drugs; if it is to get high, drop your method," Peterson mentioned. "Second, face-to-face with yourself— a technique to get a good feeling. Results from taking drugs can be damaging. Brain damage is the most recurrent problem. The person may also be suicidal and not know it. With drugs you alter perception and yourself. All you're doing is adding to our problems. We have a problem. A mind-bending drug and a damaged brain don't mix."

Treatment can't either be mild or violent. Peterson discussed the use of shock advertising to hitting someone the same treatment that has been advocated the past dozen years. "There is no way to help someone with drug problems other than hitting them. "There is no way to help someone with drug problems other than hitting them," he said. Peterson. "You only live (feel good) in this moment and you make yourself feel good."

"Companies should produce a harmless mind-bending drug that is innocuous but still gives a high," said Peterson.

In a coalition government, the Communists, through a coup or other means, would seize control eventually.

In short, if we leave, the Communists will have South Vietnam anyway. If we stay...well, Arlington will just have to expand, that's all. 40,000 needed for nothing: 1000 men are imprisoned for nothing.

Where does this leave us voters? An election is based on issues. If you hear anyone say that the war is a death issue, I think first about whether or not the war is truly over. For many reading this, it never began. For South Vietnamese, it will never end. But statements reporting the war as "finished" and "no political issue" are too severely hypothetical.

Forensics place third

The Debate Squad added six more awards to its total at the Pacific Debate Invitational this weekend. Competition was provided by 13 colleges in Oregon and Colorado to participate. This school’s speakers traveled a total of 16,000 miles, split between 130 separate trips to places in the country to participate in individual and team rounds. The Air Force Academy took second place and the University of the Pacific took third place in the individual events. The squad also won first place in the team rounds.

Neal Summerhays made a speech on palmistry in senior division competition. He is a freshman electronics major and is currently working on the topic. Last home win for cagers

by MARK COOLEY

It was a nice way to end the home season for seniors Rick Stickelsmier, Randy Geum, Mike Jackson, and Alan Gage. In their final appearance at home as a Mustang cager, the locals came up with a shaky 78-76 win over Cal State Bakersfield to extend their winning streak to six.

As a team the Mustangs showed the marshal strain of Saturday's three-overtime victory over San Fernando Valley State. After jumping off to a quick lead, the home team relaxed enabling the Roadrunners to gain momentum to catch up.

Mike Jackson, improving with each start, contributed 13 points.

Civil rights move forward

by CRAIG A. PALMER

Washington (11/7)—Defending its civil rights record, the White House issued a special report critical of President Nixon's enforcement of civil rights laws.

The report, drafted by the White House staff, listed forward steps in the advancement of blacks in education, justice, welfare, minority business, housing and drug abuse.

The report followed criticism that President Nixon was not vigorously enforcing civil rights laws and was not doing enough to further guarantee the civil liberties of all Americans. To rebut these critics, the report listed these highlights of the administration's civil rights record.

Federal civilian minority employment increased from 300,351 in 196 E to 308,281 in last May, meaning that minority workers held 19.3 per cent of the government nonmilitary jobs. The President has appointed several black ambassadors, increased the number of black military officers of general or flag officer rank from two to seven and increased the number of blacks in government "super-grades" jobs from 83 to nearly 150.

Top bowlers Irene Johansen and Dave Harper will lead the women's and men's bowling teams in the Associate College Union International tournament today, tomorrow, and Saturday at San Jose State College. Miss Johansen, a junior, is averaging 186 while Harper, a senior, is averaging 164. This college is also sending participants in chess, billiards, table tennis, and bridge to the tournament.

Grappers host Fresno

The Fresno State Bulldogs invaded the Men's Gym tonight to test the Mustang wrestlers in the last dual meet of the 1971-72 season. The action began at 7:30 p.m.

The Mustangs will be seeking a 164 dual meet record for the season. A scheduled Saturday meet with UC Riverside was canceled at Riverside's request. Riverside "could not field a representative team due to injuries.

Coach Vaughn Hitzbrough will field an abridged edition of the usual Mustang lineup. Guy Greene and Gary McBride will switch positions, with McBride wresting at 198 and Greene at 188. Frank Bambhart will fill in for weightless Keith Landel, who underwent surgery on his knee this week. Jon Morgan will give brother Larry a chance to avenge his loss to the national's by wrestling at 143. And Allyn Cook will let Denny Johnson take his spot at 188.

Monday, the Mustangs will be called upon to defend their California Collegiate Athletic Association crown in a day-long meet in Fullerton. The lineup will return to normal, unless injuries have not sufficiently healed. All wrestlers will be at their normal weights.

For the upcoming National Collegiate Athletic Association Championships, all the wrestlers with the exception of Mc Bride will drop one weight division. The exact lineup will not be available until the completion of the conference meet.

Joe Higa, who is recovering from a broken hand, may be ready for the CCAA encounter. Landel is looking very doubtful. This will be Hitzbrough's attempt at a 2nd CCAA crown in as many years.
