Appointee says college 'special'

A recently appointed nominee for the State University and Colleges Board of Trustees believes that the college in question is very special.

Roy Brophy said. "There is something very specifically different. The intent and currently the practice has been that Cal Poly is very special." Brophy, a former student in the theater program, described the college as "a bold, new direction for the Board of Trustees.

Brophy said he was selected on a geographic basis as well as his experience and qualifications.

He served as president of the Sacramento State College as well as a partner in a Sacramento land development company.

Brophy said he was happy to be in his new position "on sentimental grounds." "I am a product of the college, my wife is a graduate of Sac State. We're both pleased."

Brophy asked what his reaction to students who think the Board of Trustees should have more minorities and people directly involved in education.

He said the government is a system of representation and that people from different backgrounds are needed to represent different interests.

Brophy asked if he was familiar with the problems of the new position yet, but he would be "open to all sources of input including students."

Ecology defines earth evolution

Editor

Dear Mr. Connell, why is it that you have defined ecology in this godless world? Even your pictures in the article make you appear as some kind of messiah. Why should we (I) be concerned about ecology?

There is no reason or purpose in this world. Eat, drink and make love for tomorrow we die. Tell me one good reason why I should be interested in preserving this world? I am an existentialist and if I had my way I wouldn't have been here in the first place.

We have the explanation of our existence in evolution. Since we are evolving and evolution has brought us to this far let us get on with the process. Preserve the species! Why? Let it evolve to something better. You are always preaching on getting back to natural processes; let the natural process of evolution alone.

This is a vain world. Why look for reason in it or try to create purpose in it? Don't judge me for not being involved. I say we only have a few years, so take all you get out of it. Don't kill with the next guy. So cancel your column and keep your moral judgement to yourself. As one interested in ecology the less you write on paper the more true you save.

Ecology defines humaneness as the lowest state of sin.

I am not asking you to accept the Bible's diagnosis of the cause of homosexuality. I am merely asking that in an effort to be humane we view sick people as being sick, so we can help them.

Let me hasten to explain. I am not saying they are to be abused or cast aside. But the minute they are accepted as normal that ends the effort to help them in the right sense. Suppose a man with a brain tumor convinced us as to accept his squirmings as normal.

We would put off helping him until he died.

Homosexuality ungodly

Editor

From the recent articles on gay students, I got the impression that they are trying to please homosexuality off as some sort of normal human behavior that should be accepted by society. Homosexuality is not a normal, acceptable state of being, but a result of man's rebellion or in-differences towards God. That is, it is an act of sin. It is for this reason that they have an unnatural sexual desire for members of their own sex. For this reason, God gave them over to degrading passions for their own un-changed the natural function for that which is unnatural, and in the same way the man abandoned the natural function of the woman and burned to desire towards one another, men with man committing indecent acts and receiving in this way the due penalty of their error. 1:24-27.

The only true solution to this problem is to turn back to God and begin a relationship with Him by receiving Christ into one’s life.“ If any man is in Christ, he is a new creature: old things have passed away, behold, new things have come.” Cor, 5:17.

God’s offer to homosexuals is a new life of freedom from their enslavement to their unnatural sexual desire, and, an offer of forgiveness for sin and eternal life with God.

Student complaint had deep meaning

As you all know, the Chancellor of the State system, excused me, the State system, delivered the keynote address at the Founder's Day ceremony Tuesday. The keynote address was mostly a diatribe against the Almighty, and about the Master Plan for higher education and how there were too many "hitting their marks." In lieu of Governor Reagan's recent attack on the budget and BOG, it was not the type of address I expected. The ceremony was without disruption until the benediction when ASI Vice-President Marianne Doshi was introduced from the audience by a group of students after having stood for 15 minutes waiting to be recognized. She wanted to ask a question. This was repeated (the moderator of the ceremony ruled over question and continued on the agenda of the ceremony. At this, 79 per cent of the students in attendance walked out, some chanting the classic flat- Kennedy's PR did not have to use. Talk.

Recently, a friend of mine noted that there was a new class of students—under the aegis of the California Rate College Act—enjoying a four year stretch of higher education and how the two systems, delivered the keynote address. On the absurd fact, he laughed and anyone else who was here, spending $8,000 per year for the sheer enjoyment, not just the academic, I said to myself, how we'd like to live and do it all over again. And the women's rings are sentimental, I said to my son, who was in my position, you'd want to go back to being a Cal Poly student again." Our problem is that they've been through their tuition and the question aren't going to stop until we get some answers, change some things drastically; and stop a few other things. The walkout was the product of his inability to function as a fair and impartial chairman. When SAC begins to function as a democratic body rather than a politicized free-for-all, their efficiency will improve immediately.

Doshi 'shocked' reader

Editor:

I read with great interest the article "Kennedy-Doshi Conflict Grows" in Monday's Mustang Daily and am shocked by the stand of ASI Vice-President, Doshi. It is almost unbelievable that as chairman of SAC Mrs. Doshi, without the consultation of SAC, would deliberately ignore the College President's request that any liens be placed upon SAC's agenda...

When one considers the nature of the subject (the rights and responsibilities of groups wishing to bring controversial speakers to campus, and has been one of the most controversial and debated subjects of the academic community) and the fact that Mrs. Doshi campaigned for office on the premise that she was going to increase the students' voice in administrative decisions (here the administration asks for student input, and our "student leaders" through their votes of the President) one can only question her motives in this matter...

After working in and observing student government on this campus for four years, I believe that Mrs. Doshi's statement that Speakers Forum Committee is representative of the student body (frankly, misrepresents the truth. There is no provision for representative membership in the current code governing the operations of the Speakers Forum Committee. At the time that the student body officers, and the activity advisors all pointed out the necessity of either reconstructing the membership requirements of the Speakers Forum Code to make the membership more representative or require SAC approval of speakers...

We are not second-class citizens or children and don't expect to be treated as such any longer. We want change; we want democracy; we want equality; and we want all the "unreasonable" rights that the Declaration of Independence says we should have. Last year, the system made a gross error and gave us the right to vote. The system doesn't like to make the same mistake twice so it's trying to keep us from exercising our new right by making voter registration difficult, complicated, and even ridiculous—just incident to the incident with the San Luis Obispo County Clerk about registrars earlier this year, and trying to make us shut up.

The only thing that's really gone through their tuition and the questions aren't going to stop until we get some answers, change some things drastically; and stop a few other things.

President Kennedy's PR did not have to use. Talk.

Bill, talk.

Yeah.
Hoax author indicted by two grand juries

New York (UPI)—Clifford Irving, who concocted a literary hoax which he successfully sold as the authorized autobiography of billionaire Howard Hughes, was indicted on criminal charges Thursday by two grand juries. Irving's fourth wife, Edith, who admitted using a false name to cash checks totaling $800,000 intended for Hughes, was also indicted by the U.S. and New York County grand juries.

Author researcher Richard Bashink, who had said he was present with Irving during an interview with Hughes, was indicted by the county panel. He was not indicted by the federal grand jury which named him a conspirator but not a defendant, because of his apparent cooperation in its investigation.

The county indictment, which contained 18 charges ranging from forgery to grand larceny, alleged Irving and Bashink embarked on what is perhaps the greatest book hoax in recent times, in the "belief that Howard Hughes was either deceased or either not of sufficient mental or physical capacity to denounce it."

from the production and, the flick is peerless. There are enough vintage shots and advertisements to give a realistic air to the time element of a summer in 1942. Admission to the movie is a bargain. You not only rent a seat, you buy a priceless glimpse into a young boy's maturation. From the title song by Carole King, to the odd balcony scene. From the production end, the flick is peerless.

Death box prompts bill

Legislation designed to prohibit the use of high altitude decompression chambers as a method of disposing of animals by animal shelters in California was recently introduced by Sen. Donald L. Orunsky.

The chamber, commonly known as the euthanasia machine, has come under increasing attack in recent years by organizations which are concerned about the inhumane treatment of animals in many shelters throughout the state.

The machine is designed to induce death in dogs, cats and other small animals by sucking the oxygen out of an air-tight chamber, thereby suffocating the animals inside.

Peeved employees are placed together in the chamber with the sound of a motor described by one animal control officer as "having two straight pipes from a racing engine aimed in each ear, if you can imagine what that sounds like to an animal's sensitive ears."

Orunsky explains that "the more an animal needs oxygen, the quicker he will die. Therefore, the young and sick animals may still be alive as the other violently reacting animals are falling into unconsciousness around them. After all of the animals are believed to be dead, although this is not always certain, they are taken from the machine and disposed of in whatever manner the particular pound uses."

Orunsky considers a simple hypodermic injection to be a better method for disposing of animals, because it puts them to sleep without fear or anxiety. He also advocates the spaying and altering of small domestic animals to avoid the over-population which leads to these actions and in supporting legislation to accomplish this.

Two-way relief offered for pain of used books

The new returning Tele-book Interlink and the established Poly Phase Book Exchange offer new ways to ease the pain of buying and selling used text books.

Tele-book Interlink, now under new management, offers the easy convenience of the telephone as the means of book transactions. According to new owner Tom Dutton, a student wishing to sell a book he wants is referred to the owner of the book exchange, he fills out the necessary papers, leaves his book with Poly Phase and is given a receipt.

If Poly Phase sells the book, 10 percent is taken off the price for the club, and if they cannot sell it there is no charge to the student. If the book is lost or stolen, Poly Phase pays for it.

Tele-book Interlink is now operating for students wishing to register their books. Poly Phase Book Exchange will begin March

MUSTANG CLASSIFIEDS

Fresno here for tennis

The Mustang tennis team will attempt to stretch its winning streak to four this afternoon when it hosts Fresno State College at 3:30 on the Poly court.

The team is off to another good start this year with a record of five wins and four losses. The Mustangs will need hitting strength from Marpie (.384) as well as others when they meet conference-leading San Fernando Valley State today and Saturday.

COACH ED JORDAN doesn't know what to expect from the Bulldogs today. "We're stronger at the top and weaker at the bottom," he said. "Although they only got fourth or fifth at Sacramento State they have overall depth and could beat us at the lower spots," he added.

The Mustangs split with Fresno last year in their two meetings. This will be the final match of the quarter for the locals who will next host Hayward State March 29.
