Dorm congress slated

Changes in dorm policies may soon be realized by dorm residents. How many changes will rely upon the amount of student input at this Saturday’s Dorm Congress.

Sponsored by the Student Tenant Association (STA) and Interhalls Council (IHC), the Congress will meet at 10 a.m. in Ag Engineering Agriculture 220.

Discussion during the event could include such policies as 24-hour visitation, confessional signing, dorm contracts, and the sign-in sign-out policy, according to Jim Abernathy, STA chairman.

The congress will last as long as it takes to formulate proposals regarding dormitory reform, Abernathy said.

The Renaissance mind displayed in de Bellis fine arts collection

by GONNI FRANKEL

The Renaissance mind is an intriguing one, as shown in the Prakt V. de Bellis Collection of Italian Fine Arts, now being displayed in the College Union.

The most formidable object in the room is the delicately framed Clementi Piano built in 1816. This instrument has a softer tone than the modern pianos.

If you think music is hard to read now days, you should look at the Massa Defunctorum written in 1460. It is a two-foot tall book with the picture of a man holding a serpent and a fish.

The 24-hour visitation policy may remove the highest approval, since 70 percent of the students signing the questionaires favored the proposal, said Abernathy.

The board would hear grievances about the existing dorm contracts, and would especially be concerned with the change to quarterly contracts.

The Dorm Congress was originally scheduled to take place last Saturday but IHC was notified too late to participate.

Evaluation of deans may be reality soon

Last Tuesday afternoon this college’s Academic Senate, with the help of ASI Prov, Pete Evans, made recommendations that will give the student a bigger voice in how this college is run.

During the meeting held in the College Dining Hall, the senate moved to initiate a faculty evaluation system for instructional deans.

The most important action taken by the senate, as far as students are concerned, is the proposed change in the College Administrative Manual (CAM) to allow two students to serve on the Dean’s Selection Committee.

Evans amended the recommendation to allow one of the students the right to vote.

The hottest issue discussed in the meeting was that of setting up the dean’s evaluation procedure.

In a close vote the senate passed the proposition which, if approved by Kennedy, will allow all regular instructors the chance to evaluate his school’s dean once a year.

Coordinating the Dorm Congress slated for Saturday are STA chairman Jim Abernathy and Jim Dewing.

Must register today to vote

Today is the last day to register according to Deputy Registrar, Thelma Isola. The last day to register is today from 10 a.m. until 1 p.m. in the CU plaza.

Student evaluation is key to 'evil' system of tenure

by PAUL EIDON
Editor-in-Chief

A group of Entrepreneur students have spent consider- able time producing a faculty evaluation program and just as everything seemed to be turned out to be seemingly intermountain series of categories surfaced. The new problems are extremely disappointing to all but a valid faculty evaluation program is not necessarily an institution where the ability and desire of a few individuals can affect the beliefs, goals and values of the faculty. Equally depressing is that a valuable check on the evil system of permanent employment—tenure—may be denied to a secondary position of nonimportance.

ABEST began on the campus this fall as a seven-week project to evaluate faculty members and to publish their results as students, in choosing classes, would have something on paper to go by. Theoretically, faculty would gain in the variety of programs by participating on the board. With faculty participation on the board, individual instructors would be less likely to criticize the program as invalid.

With several departments beginning evaluation programs Winter Quarter, and with several school deans indicating a willingness to direct the same, the faculty evaluations board was formed as a coordinating power over departmentalized evaluations.

Further, participation would be mandatory for faculty review committees would also use the results while considering promotion, reappointment and tenure.

Recently, however, Jim Paterson, a coordinator of the program who along with Hilary Findley and others, has spent hours in planning sessions, was informed through administrative channels that it would be illegal for him to make evaluations mandatory and to publish the results. Even, for the same reason the evaluations results could not be used in initial-level review considerations.

Vote the U.S. out of the war

"Over 4,000,000 Indochinese civilians died of starvation and chore among the people of Vietnam, Laos, and Cambodia, in the year of 1970. This seems, in fact, to be the experience of the peoples of Southeast Asia."

The air war, replacing the ground war, has not brought a reduction of civilian casualties. In fact, when Johnson war, we caused an average of 80,000 civilian casualties a month, now, after Nixon’s peace efforts we are responsible for 100,000 a month and 20,000 a month for the rest of the world in Southeast Asia.

Life as we know it, its complexity in its interplay, its experience, is the key to success. Student evaluation then why aren’t these "experienced" men producing any great words now? A man can be as he wants to be, because if he never does anything with his knowledge and experience then he is worth nothing.

In fact, my concern for American traders is quite daily as my knowledge of "accepted" standards increases.

Rape victims get the shaft

by BARBARA FLYNN

Thousands upon thousands of rapes are reported each year, yet agencies report that they could cover only about 20 percent. Why don't the other 80 percent speak up? It's shyness? Hardly. It is one more reason to fear the criminal, not the victim. It seems the police operate on the assumption that if a man alone is found in a room with a victim, then he must have committed the assault. Statistics could disprove that. The way rape victims are treated now they would probably kill the man and come away with more dignity.

A rape is a traumatic enough experience without the added insult of outrageous interrogation. From the testimony of сотen to too many rape victims, common is that the police are more interested in whether the rape penetrated, dim, and what was done with the victim at all times, than they are in the description of the assailant.

If they are so interested in graphic details why don't they ask a比 they, a boy, a better way to apprehend the criminal and save the victim?

As if that isn't enough, the woman is slandered on the basis of her sex life. If the police are informed of a burglary, do they demand in a depth description of every item the victim has ever purchased? NO. Why is it then that we refuse to believe a rape victim because of her reputation, her justice, not judgment.

Unfortunately, women are judged as insinuating the aggressor. Why do they that--just to be mistrusted by the authorities? Any woman who would do that needs psychiatric help as much as a suspect.

People tend to blame a rape victim saying who woman ru's, with her dress up, than a man on with his pant down.'

That statement encompasses an entire missed opportunity: not a woman generally is raped when she's been seen, nor when she's in open meadow, and two, women are educated not to struggle in order to avoid possible injury or death.

"Lay back and enjoy it, I think the saying goes, but it's not. When a woman says no, she says no, period."

If, by some quirk of fate a woman's story is believed (after she has been insulted, embarrassed, she has submitted to a woman specimen test that can be done with a drop of urine--as long as there is urine where does it get her? Nowhere. Very few rapists are taken into custody, and even fewer sent to pen.

They can always find another victim or a potential, they can always find another victim or a potential, they can always find another victim or a potential, for that matter. This is a woman who is raped when she's in an open meadow, and two, women are educated not to struggle in order to avoid possible injury or death.

Constitutional Procedure and Veto Democratic Action

The purpose of this convention is to nominate new candidates, not to endorse those that have already filed. I asked the chair to strike the question. This is a new procedure; if they are flatly refused without consultation with the entire deering recommending. At this time I might add that to it looks like the majority of the Left-wing love?

Editors--A couple of lines concerning Jim Kroese's write up in Mustang Daily about the cowboys who left the Bobby Seale lecture last Thursday night. Right. It is a damn shame that Mr. Kroese and others (including several members of Speaker's Forum) are in love with Bobby Seale and other left-wing radicals. Further more they lack the common sense to see through Seale's card of lies, especially when they see that the Black Power doesn't shut up white people and policemen. Please Mr. Kroese, don't intimidate us that we are radicals. It is evidence in the numerous jail sentences, charges of murder, and law breaking that Bobby Seale and others are being persecuted.

Chancellor of the California State University and Colleges ap-

The new degree will replace the five year Bachelor of Archi-also been given approval to offer studies leading to the Bachelor of Science Degree in Landscape Architecture.

The three new programs will become effective Fall Quarter,

1972. With the addition of these new degrees, the school will continue to offer the (of Science Degree in Architecture) Engineering, City and Regional Planning, and Construction Engineering.

The five year degree program has been offered since 1944 and for a number of years attempts have been made to change to a four year program. The school program will now conform more closely to other schools which generally offer a four year degree in architecture.

Architecture and environmental programs at this school are the most sought after in the California State Universities and College system, thus more applicants have had to be turned away from the ar-

According to George Naeastine, dean for the School of Archi-

Reagan says our campus is gem of system

Gov. Ronald Reagan met with members of the California

College Republicans in Sacrameento, Monday, where he defended his record of minority hiring and that handling of state finances.

In his opening remarks he complimented this college by saying that he would call it the "jewel of the system."

In regard to minority appointments to the College Board of Trustees, the Governor said he has appointed more members of the minority community to executive and policy making positions than all the governors in the History of California.

"I want people that are knowledgable about land and land investments...evaluation of gifts given college and university systems...and complicated budgets," he said.

When asked about charges of cut in College and University budgets, Reagan replied that the Department of Health and Education has received the highest increases of any agency since he took office.

He added that since 1971 there has been a 17 percent increase in the budget with only a 6 percent increase in enrollment. Up to this year the college and university system have received substantial increase in their budgets.

This year's meeting marks the first time that students from this college met with the Governor to discuss topics of their own choosing.

The meeting was arranged by Assemblyman William Kelchman and State Senator Donald Grundel.

Skilled workers sought

Students skilled in arts and crafts techniques can teach their skills to patients for rehabilitation at Atascadero State Hospital, according to Gary Orchard, coordinator of volunteer services.

Volunteers are being sought to teach in the various fields of ceramics, electronics, graphic communications, lapidary, leather, painting and wood. Another field called remotivation was also established within the program, which would encompass all patients with no artistic skill who would like to have another kind of hobby.

Classes are scheduled in the shops at the psychiatric hospital, located at 10883 El Camino Real, also established within the psychiatric hospital, according to Gary Orchard, coordinator of volunteer services.

"There is already a social organization called the Young Generation Club which was set up to help the patients develop their identities. What is needed now are individuals who will help the patients develop their artistic skills outside of their regular classroom instruction," the volunteer services coordinator said.

Mike Rogers, a graduate student in Industrial Technology one who has worked closely with the hospital, agreed with Orchard's views.

"Of the patients with whom I have personally talked, there is quite a bit of enthusiasm about the program," said Rogers.

Forms explaining the program in more detail are in the shops of being processed and delivered to the heads of the departments in art, graphic communications, child development, home economics, education, industrial arts and journalism, according to Orchard.

The qualifications Orchard listed are a talent in arts and crafts, knowledge in the subject matter and an open mind to human problems.

"Hopefully," he said, "an hour of service a week could be volunteered by an individual on a regular basis."

Ten to 60 patients would be affected by the program with their ages ranging from 18 years up with a median age in the early twenties.

Another field called remotivation was recently introduced at the program with an age range from 18 years up with a median age in the early twenties.

"It is to bring together the women of the whole community," said Miss Flynn.

Although other colleges have initiated similar feminist programs on their campuses, "Women's Heritage Week" and "Ecology Week" are to be held respectively April 17 to 19 and April 22 to 24.

During the week, there will be an art exhibit held in Chumash Hall in which women of the campus and community can display their art works from oil painting to jewelry making to photography.

On April 22, there will be a cultural program entitled "Peas, Woman and Earth" from 8 to 11 p.m. It will feature various female dancers and musicians. There will also be poetry readings with circulating themes around anti-war.

Other activities projected for the week are a rally in the CU Plaza and "Gorilla" or street theater.

The all events are free to the public except for a movie, "Growing Up Female" scheduled for April 20, in CU 508, which is a look into the lives of six women.

A free child care center will also be operated in the CU during the week with Peter Knutsen as director. For any information about the center call him at 848-2746.

Women will explore their roles
by JULIE WOBER
Women from this campus and community will explore their roles as females in society—past, present and future—"Women's Heritage Week" April 17-21.

Several activities revolving around the topic of women will be held during the week to everyone interested, according to Barbara Flynn, a member of Sisters United and co-coordinator for the program.

"We would like," said Miss Flynn, "to educate the public on the contributions and the full implications of women's liberation and its role in society.

Bad name
Melinda Green, also a member of Sisters United and co-coordinator of the program, said another purpose of the program is to bring together the women of the campus to discuss the roles women play in our society and the contributions they have made.

"There are a lot of misconceptions about women's lib and this is one reason for the program," Melinda Green said.

Women are asked to come to give their views on what they think the movement is," she said.

"In the past," she continued, "there were a lot of other sources that have given the movement a bad name by focusing on minor incidents such as the activity of bra burning while there are so many other factors involved with women's lib that are unnoticed and understated."

Melinda Green said.

Although other colleges have initiated similar feminist programs on their campuses, "Women's Heritage Week" and its activities will be unique to this college, Miss Green said.

"In the past there have been such programs as "Black Heritage Week" and "Ecology Week." We only thought to keep our program in tune and in style with the others previously," she continued.

Sisters United, the campus feminist group, is chiefly responsible for the program but not the organization is not recognized by this college, other organizations on campus will be sponsoring the different activities.

Speakers Forum will sponsor three feminist speakers as part of the activities. June Sundstrand, feminist political organizer; Frances Goldschlager, a newspaper columnist and suffragette; and Caille Sundstrand, a welfare rights worker and organizer will all speak on the feminist movement from 7:30 to 11 p.m. on April 11.

Three discussions entitled "Lifestyles for Women," "Women and the Press," and "Women's Abortion and the Public Image" will be held respectively April 17 to 19 at 7:30 p.m., with the first two in CU 306 and the later in CU 508.

During the entire week, there will be an art exhibit held in Chumash Hall in which women from the campus and community can display their art works from oil painting to jewelry making to photography.

On April 22, there will be a cultural program entitled "Women's Heritage Week" and "Ecology Week." We only thought to keep our program in tune and in style with the others previously," she continued.

The coeds are Ann Froetzel of Davis, Penny Parquette of Laguna Niguel and Suzanne Clever of Phoenix, Arizona.

Action pushed to curb noise

Washington (UPI)—The Environmental Protection Agency EPA Wednesday urged speedy enactment of legislation to curb noise, which some experts say is making many Americans deaf, jittery or in some cases physically and mentally ill.

Thomas E. Carroll, assistant EPA administrator for planning and management, said a Senate pollution subcommittee that noise is fast reaching dangerous levels—particularly in urban areas—and that federal action is needed to start quieting things down.

Carroll pushed for action on an administration antinoise bill, which would provide for setting of federal standards for major noise-makers such as construction, transportation and motorized equipment industries and for labeling of consumer products designated to be dangerously noisy.

PE student teachers learn by doing

by JANINE TARTAGLIA

With both feet strapped to the floor, the student teacher faces his first teaching experience with curiosity, apprehension, and a ready dose of Alba-dolera. To avoid this initial fright, the Women's Physical Education Department has set up a program in which majors planning to teach can start instructing as early as their sophomore year.

Rhythmic and Apparatus Gymnastics Methods originated last quarter to give PE majors first-hand experience in instructing classes at the junior high school level. After a successful trial at San Luis Obispo Jr. High, PE 266 established as a forerunner to future dancing and tumbling.

Knowing how to make a stressful encounter on the dance floor, the student teacher will enable the student teacher to reflect exactly what goes on in the classroom and enables the teachers to keep him informed on this experience.

Contrary to working with peers, the student teacher will most likely face gigglers and bubblegum chews. For these reasons, the first three weeks of instruction center around learning how to teach at a younger level: parachute, balance beam, uneven parallels, vaulting, and tumbling.

Thoroughly briefed on teaching techniques, the 24 class members are ready for what probably will be their first teaching enterprise.

Laguna Jr. High School is the site of this quarter's teaching ventures.

For the next five weeks, every Thursday from 1 to 1:30, half of PC 266 does the teaching role while the other half observes.

After each class, the observers critically discuss with the teachers the various problems encountered. The instructors then can improve their teaching methods to curb these problems.

The student teachers are also observed by a video tape machine. This helpful device reflects exactly what goes on in the class and enables the instructors to see themselves in action.

PE 266 provides a gradual approach for future teachers to become acquainted with the class situation. Laguna's students benefit from the individual attention, and the majors become equipped to relate to their needs.

Foothill Plaza
Rodeo tries for eighth straight in Nevada

A Japanese freestyle wrestling team will visit this campus Friday night for an exhibition match with this university's eight man college division champions at 7:30 in the Gym. In the meantime, the Japanese team has been successful in exhibition matches at Memphis, Chattanooga, Birmingham, and Baton Rouge.

The foreign team is composed of many of the world class men who will represent Japan in the Olympics this summer. Since their arrival to the United States on March 31, the team has been kept busy in competition against some of the best wrestlers in the country. The group launched its tour by winning four United States Wrestling Federation (USWF) titles and finishing second in another weight in the USWF national championships at Oklahoma City.

Leading the seven-man team is two-time world champion Yoshio Tajima, who will wrestle at 114 and a half pounds.

The Japanese team will probably have a decided edge on their Mustang opponents in the Olympic style of wrestling, according to Mustang Coach Vaughan Hitchcock. However, the eight men to represent Old College are not accustomed to losing. The group has accumulated 388 victories in 480 matches for this college.

Junior Glenn Anderson, the college division 141-pound champion, has posted an 8-5-1 record in many seasons of competition as a Mustang. He'll wrestle at 114 and a half.

Junior Allyn Cooke will wrestle at 168. He sports a three-year college record of 60-1-1 and redrawing last fall, will draw the 180 and a half-pound assignment. According to Hitchcock, he is the most experienced freestyle wrestler to represent the Mustangs, having competed in the Olympic style since the seventh grade.

Two-time college division runner-up at 134, and also a fifth place finisher in the NCAA University championships last month, junior Larry Morgan posts a 6-8-1 record as a Mustang. Mike Mowry, Oklahoma City's leading two-time world champion, will compete at 186 and a half.

Larry Hall, who completed his eligibility during the 1970 season, will wrestle at 114 and a half. A two-time national champion, Hall compiled a 16-1-1 record in two years at this college and was an alternate on the United States' 1968 Greco-Roman Olympic team.

Congressman gets tax rap

Washington (UPI)—Rep. Cornelius E. Gallagher, D.-H.J., has been indicted by a federal grand jury on charges of evading payment of more than $10,000 in income taxes, it was announced Wednesday. The seven-term congressman also was charged with perjury and conspiracy. Acting Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst said the seven-count indictment was returned Friday in U. S. District Court in Newark, N.J. Arraignment was set for April 11.
