Paternal influence more than just good ol' advice

For new student Cheryl Cline it's a brand new campus, but for her father, Jack, who is returning after 15 years, who would believe this is the same Poly of 1958-59?

California Polytechnic State University, circa 1958: still the same old college. As for the student population, a completely different matter. It has been replaced by three-story architecture. Buildings like the University Union, Student Recreation Center, and the Science North Building are just plans at the time.

Thirty-nine year old Jack Cline is back to pick up his master's degree in physical education. The one country and track coach at Arroyo Grande High School in the Loma Linda campus graduated in 1930 with a degree in elementary education. At his high school, the varsity boys were just four to five years old.

For Cheryl and most other new entering students, her view-point of Poly has changed. The next four to five years is fairly one-dimensional; the girls what it was and where it's going.

But for Jack Cline, he sees this college through dimensional glasses.

Kresja and Blake seek exposure

With county elections scheduled to come November, the two candidates campaigning for the seat of supervisor for San Luis Obispo County are eager to acquaint the community with their views. Both of them see their duties as responsible for how to acquire public familiarity.

A letter written by Kimbora Banks, San Luis Obispo City Councilman and candidate for the supervisor's position, was received by his opponent. Dr. Richard Kresja, on Tuesday. The councilman challenged the professor of biological sciences at the college to a series of open campaigns.

"The 'learn-by-doing' process is today, but in his department, the 'preaching of public business,' opponent's promotion. In fact, It was exactly what I based my invitation to him upon.

The biology instructor received the greatest number of votes during the county supervisor election. A run off election scheduled in November is expected to be the decision-maker.

Cold Blood concert Friday

Cold Blood, a nine-man San Francisco rock group, will perform here tomorrow night at 8 p.m. in Chumash Hall.

The group has its roots in the Fillmore West, now defunct, and has the reputation of one that rose to fame at Fillmore West.

According to Cold Blood arranger, Raul Manise, their musical style is designed to "paint a wide spectrum of musical colors for the palate of the audience.""We were set out to student teach without the help of theory classes," said Cline, explaining that Julian McPherson, college president from 1933-1956, was the administrator who initiated the process.

"We were set out to student teach without the help of theory courses then," said Cline, "and when we came back we were taught the theory courses that we had just taught. I think we're getting away from that now, due to the largeness of the major.

Parting, such sweet sorrow

You know, it's funny how old song lyrics tend to haunt you at the oddest times. But now that the Summer Quarter is coming to an end this tune keeps coming to mind.

"Everything good is bad and everything bad is good." That's it lost out all the way. l have nined out the bad, and some days everything bad is good. In my life also soap and the beloved printers were not always perfect.

The next Mustang you read will be the Daily in the capable hands of Kathleen Beasley, who needs no other introduction other than editor-in-chief. Kathy is hard at work on her first issue which should be great.

QUEST COLUMN

Dinner story lacks objectivity

Last week's Mustang daily carried a staff column by Tony Santos about a dinner "on the hill." Unfortunately, someone neglected to run an objective news story along with the writer's opinion. To give readers a chance to form their own opinions.

The news story possibly would have read as follows:

Cal Poly President Robert Kennedy indicated Monday night he is still willing to talk about annexation of the campus out of the city as long as there is a "dollar and cent" equation for the university.

The topic was brought up, along with faculty evaluations and instructionally related programs, by ASI President Robin Baggett during a dinner hosted by Kennedy and his wife at Poly House for campus administrators and student leaders.

Kennedy said the mayor emphasizes that the university campus should be moving from the city to the campus, adding that it might be time to approach the annexation problem again.

I wrote back that I am ready and willing to talk about annexation whenever he is, but I wonder in the city's voters are ready to have 2,000 students added to the city's voting lists.

Baggett said he is interested in a merger between city and campus in hopes that new revenue could be used on projects such as a new and larger stadium. (Annexation would add over 80,000 a year to the city's share of state funds, half of which would go to Cal Poly under Kennedy's main condition for the merger.)

The next move is up to the city, according to Kennedy, since they have never responded to his proposal of dividing the gained revenue between the campus and city.

Discussing faculty evaluation by students, Baggett and the main goal of the students is to improve the quality of education.

"We can see the bad and good points the administration can't see, because we're the ones being taught," said Baggett. "If we evaluate the faculty will it be used in some system by the administration?"

Kennedy answered a committee is reviewing the pilot programs each of the seven schools of the university designed, hoping to establish guidelines for information that should be included in the evaluations. Programs are slated to begin Fall Quarter.

We need to know how students find the teaching in the classroom," said Kennedy.

He said two goals of the program are self-improvement of the teachers and use by administrators for evaluating the faculty and hiring, promotion, and termination decisions.

"That's why the students have to go to do it very carefully, honestly and sincerely," Kennedy said.

Student control, however, is the factor that trustees are trying to eliminate from the intercollegiate related programs, Kennedy pointed out.

A solution to the problem that would be to support the programs from the state's general fund. Legislators may block this solution unless students and administrators lobby together, Kennedy said.

"We're fighting against the same enemy," he said. "Lack of money."

End of news story.

I must say last week's writer that the topics and discussion was not something to rush home and write mom about. Those of us who take an interest in student government have been talking about these same issues for some time, saying much the same things.

But if the discussion was boring to the students who were present at the dinner, let's put the blame where it rightfully belongs. And it isn't in Kennedy's lap.

The dinner was a Baggett and Johnson idea, suggested by them to Kennedy. Because of this, Kennedy asked the two what they had planned for discussion. Baggett rattled off a list of topics, adding that anyone could bring up a subject if they wanted to.

Budgeting help to aid students

The summer Denny Johnson has started many new programs for the students at Cal Poly. Let it be known that we are heading to slow down with our growth in providing services in students in our term in life. Is ready for a new program? Student Financial Counseling. We feel that the most prominent problem that the student faces during college is lack of finances. And not to stop college money is probably one of the biggest issues in life. This is the planning to set up a primary council on all financial matters that could ever assist students. Advice from professors will be given in the areas of loans, grants, scholarships, investments, ways to become financially sound, ways to budgeting, etc. As we see it, it will cover all areas. The council will work and advise students in a confidential manner. Income, and, and ability to pay aspects will be kept confidential to any those involved in the matters are confidential.

The soon-to-be off-campus of the Financial Counseling, and yet another service to students, is Student Job Coordination. Please hear our cry for help. We do need more student support. These super programs are for you. —ROBIN BAGGETT

What is Roundhouse

Editor:

For the benefit of those students who still are not sure exactly what Roundhouse Services is, or does, let me explain briefly.

Roundhouse is not a student lounge in Poly Cavern, a club for future railroad engineers, or a new coffee house in the Colleges Union. Roundhouse is a telephone and a desk located in A.S.I. Vice-President Denny Johnson's office and most importantly student volunteers who want to help out other students who have questions about Cal Poly and the Santa Clara County community.

What kind of questions do we help studentsanswer? Where can I get draft counseling? Where is the Legal Aid? Do I have to pay for my insurance? Who sells underwater scooters or skateboard in town? Where do I get a student ID? Where can I get a job? Where do I register for classes? Where do I find the registrar office? How does Roundhouse know all the answers? We don't — but, I'll call around and find out for you, which will save you time and money. We'll call around and find out for you, which will save you time and money.

Now that you know a little more about Roundhouse, give us a call at 544-2011, and see that we really are interested in helping you on the right track. Or, stop in at C2117, pick up one of our cards with the trail tracks on the front, a calendar on the back and handy phone numbers inside, AND, while you're there, free wall maps of the suburb of San Luis. Ask us about the new Legal Aid Service, Housing Service, Food Service, and the other services that we are interested in helping you "on the right track". Or, stop in at C2117, pick up one of our cards with the trail tracks on the front, a calendar on the back and handy phone numbers inside, AND, while you're there, free wall maps of the suburb of San Luis.

Registration

The Registrar has announced that all undergraduate students who were now here for the current Summer Quarter are eligible to register as new students again for the Fall Quarter. This statement superseded the definition of "new students" which has been published in the fall quarter class schedule.

New Miehle press arrives

A new Miehle Favorite 15 off-set press was added to the graphic communications department this week. The Miehle was made in West Germany and cost $21,000.

"We have needed this press for a long time and it will be a great assistance to us in our advanced lithography class," said Steve Santos, instructor of Graphic Communications.

Besides being used in the advanced lithography class the press will also aid in some outside production.

Season ticket renewal due

Former Mustang football season ticket holders were reminded today that they have until 4:30 p.m. Tuesday to exercise their option on the same seats for the 1972 season. It is not necessary for the season ticket holders to do this in person," Dave Oldfield, Associated Students ticket manager announced. "People can call the ASI office at 546-2411 and advise us that they want the same tickets this fall. Then all they have to do is follow up the call with a check."

Oldfield advised that "there still are plenty of excellent seat locations remaining."

Coach Joe Harper's Mustangs will be campaigning for a fourth straight conference championship and a possible bid to the Camellia Bowl this fall. Home opponents will be Cal State Hayward on September 18, Montana State September 22, Cal State Humboldt September 29, Boise State October 7 and the homecoming game with Cal State Northridge on October 21. All at the Northridge game are night engagements.

Season tickets are priced at $17.50 for the general public and $7.50 for students. Checks should be made payable to the Associated Students, Cal Poly ASI offices are in the College Union.
