YOUNG GENERATION

Preparing for new life

Student Community Services (BSC) is looking for volunteers in all majors to participate in the Young Generation program. Under the leadership of people, BSC will visit patients at Ascot Hospital to help patients prepare for their return to society, according to Bill Devia, chairman of BSC.

Applicants are asked to go to the Activities Office (phone: 366-MED) in the College Union for an informal interview. They may contact Devia, Curtis Bertell, head of the Young Generation program, or Bob Bonda, coordinator of BSC.

A group of new volunteers is planned for this Monday at 7 p.m. in CR 304. It is preferred if volunteers complete the interview before attending the meeting, as the meeting for all those interested are welcome.

McGovern's flight calls won't lure the President

Los Angeles (UPI) — President Nixon, increasingly confident of victory, said Wednesday he will not permit Democratic nominee George McGovern to go home for two weeks to lure Nixon out of the campaign trail.

"I would welcome the opportunity of helping bring them up-to-date," said McGovern, air force to the point that the only option open to us is to launch a nuclear war,...our United States is threatened Is to our highest priority includes an engineering building (South Phase I), 81.1 million; faculty student housing, 81.6, library, 81.7.

McCracken, in Washington for the release of a private study of the "proposals by Nixon and his associates," limited his projection to two years, or the end of fiscal 1974. "It would give less than a 10 per cent chance," McCracken said when asked of his opinion of the administration's tax position.

The comparative budget study, published by the American Enterprise Institute, a non-partisan research organization, covered the period 1968-1970. It showed that a 2.9 per cent, a 1.8 per cent inflation rate and used spending figures for programs proposed by the administration would try to re-shuffle the tax load during a second term, they said they would not foresee a net tax increase in the next four years. Talcott labeled ‘phony big-wig’

Editor,

The students at Cal Poly, as constituents of Congressman Burt Talcott, deserve a fair analysis of the confrontation last Friday between Talcott and his political opponent Julian Camacho.

During the summer Camacho challenged Talcott to an open forum to air the Issues; in stronger language a debate. Talcott immediately "retaliated" by publicly stating he would debate anyone, anywhere, anytime. The next day he issued his refusal to debate Camacho; a position he has maintained ever since.

Talcott, being ideologically aligned with the President, is counting on massive funding and a clouding of the issues to win the election. The last thing he wants is coverage and exposure of his stands on the issues.

So Talcott showed up to discretely pass out cigars and shake hands in his campaign bid. His recent Logue Wilderness bill has been exposed by environmentalists as a fraud and even his poor congressional record is not the issue at hand but rather his conduct and that of our student body President. I was unpleasantly surprised to read and hear (KFLY) Talcott and Baggett accuse Camacho of a "planned disruption" and "gross discourtesy" for attempting to give the students some exposure to the issues and differences between the candidates. And set behind Talcott’s back but to his face.

All President Robin Baggett should know about "planned disruptions." Through his position he directed an undisguised planned disruption of an opposition conference that effectively crippled democratic elections here. Come on Robin, quit playing ball with phony big-wigs like Talcott and go to bat for real people that represent the views of students, justice and peace. Field and Stream magazine, the League of Women Voters and other concerned partisan groups have rated Burt Talcott as one of the worst legislators in the nation on the environmentalist issues. His record on other concepts is equally depressing.

No charges for Seale

Chicago (UPI) • Federal authorities said Wednesday they would seek to drop contempt of court charges against Bobby Seale, the Black Panther leader who was bound and gagged in order to preserve order during the "Chicago Seven" trial.

U.S. Attorney James R. Thompson said he would ask that the charges be forgotten rather than reveal transcripts of electronic surveillance in connection with the explosive 1969 trial.

Thompson said it would be "inimical to our national security interests" to reveal the transcripts to the defense.

The U.S. Appeals Court, overturning Seale's four-year sentence on contempt charges and ordering a new trial earlier this year, had ordered that the transcripts be made available to Seale and his lawyers.

The transcripts were originally introduced in the chambers of the Chicago Seven trial to the judge, Julian J. Hoffman. The appeals court ruled that if they were not shown to the defense "then the contempt charges against Seale must be dropped."

Thompson said the action will mean there will be no charges remaining against Seale in connection with the 1969 Democratic National Convention in Chicago.

The binding and gagging of Seale was one of the dramatic high points of the trial of activists on charges of conspiring to incite riots during the convention.

Nobody seems terribly worried about the kind of job he’s capable of doing though. When asked if the offense would change to compensate for the loss of Foley, quarterback Johnett Pettis was quick with an answer: “We won’t make any changes. Glianiak is reliable and we’re not worried about the replacement job he’s going to do. Rick’s actually faster than Foley. Mike may be quicker hitting the hole, but when Rick gets outside he’s really got speed.”

All bankers were students once.

Some of ours still are.

And some I graduated from college. They’re our Student Relations Representatives. And they’re probably the easiest bankers to talk to that you’ve ever met. Because they know exactly what your financial needs as college students are, and what kind of services Bank of America has to fill those needs. Like our low-cost easy-to-use College Plan Checking Account, Student BankAmerica® and Instant Cash, just to name a few.

It makes things so much simpler when your banker is like you.
