Mustangs are hopeful for invitation to play in Camellia Bowl game

As the current football season got underway in mid-December, nobody really expected anything spectacular from the Mustangs.

The schedule for 1973 listed some pretty fair football teams who had beaten last year's squad, among whom were Boise State, Hayward State and Fresno State. Sure, talk of the distant Camellia Bowl found its way into some of the speculations, but the Mustangs would have to get by some of the big ones before that could be considered seriously.

Then they did it. Hayward, Montane State and Humboldt all fell by mammmoth scores and the momentum carried them right through a very important game with Boise.

Suddenly, the team that had had "question marks at quarters" and in the defensive secondary" was sitting on a 4-0 record and eyebrows began to raise.

Each week the Mustangs moved up a little bit further in the ratings, and after a tie in Fresno and a win against Northridge, they were an undeniably team boasting a very impressive rating of third in the country on the small college polls.

It was inevitable that followers would then ask, "what now?"

People wanted to know where the team would go at the end of the season, if anywhere, and what the chances were for gaining a berth in the Camellia Bowl.

So "the man who would know" was consulted: the chairman of the West Region College Division Football Advisory Committee—

Rex Grossart.

Grossart's initial comment was not unexpected: "It's impossible to tell a thing at this point."

Nevertheless, he was frank and candid in discussing this school's chances. "The committee has not even met yet," he said, "and probably won't for another couple of weeks. We have 18 schools to consider in the selection of 16 stations plus Hawaii. Right now about all we can do is to take a look-see at what these different teams are doing this year."

"As for your school," he continued, "it is a very strong contender and is right in there with the rest of them. I noticed that you've been kind of (Continued on page 4)

A while back, Kathleen Beasley wrote an editorial attempting to establish Mr. Nixon as the best choice. It is obvious that the charges against both candidates are as important as ever as President Nixon and Sen. George McGovern enter the homestretch of their race to the White House.

The "Choice of the Century"—an assessment coined by Nixon and often repeated by McGovern—rests upon the varied philosophical differences separating the two, and the importance of those differences.

If you contend that you alone have the right to exercise sole domination over your own life, so long as you do not forcibly interfere with the same rights of others, then you may wish to consider the Libertarian Party. Proposition 16

Another initiative on the November ballot, Proposition 16, is similar to Proposition 15 except that it applies to the salaries of California Highway Patrolmen. The proposition would set the salaries of Highway Patrol personnel to the maximum amount paid by any city or county in California for comparable work unless reduced or rejected by a two-thirds vote of the legislature.

According to Ralph J. Schiavone, president of the California Association of Highway Patrolmen, "Your Highway Patrol is supported by funds received from motor vehicle registration and license fees, a part of the Motor Vehicle Fund."

Browse about at the bookfair

The faculty is invited to browse through the bookfair to be held in the El Cerrito Bookstore Lobby today and Friday.

The bookfair has been arranged with the College Marketing Group. The fair will display about 3800 books from such publishers as Cambridge University Press, Penguin, Houghton Mifflin, Macmillan and about 80 others.

The books will be displayed and arranged according to university courses. Many of the titles that you would like to consider for purchase can be sent on a complimentary examination basis.

Bookfair hours are 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. today and 9:00 to 1:30 p.m. Friday.

Magicians reveal tricks

The millions of people that flock to either Disneyland or Walt Disney World each year are exposed to some of the most astounding electronic work ever seen. It seems that each year "How do they do that?" is asked at every ride or attraction.

Two men responsible for many of those questions will be speaking at 7:30 p.m. today in CU 207. David Snyder, Manager of Scientific Systems and Programming and Robert White, from the Concepts Design Department, will speak on the electronics behind the scenes at Disneyland and Walt Disney World. Both men are part of Disney Enterprises.

RETAII STRONG LEADERSHIP

LAW ENFORCEMENT

Still high on the list of critical problems is the increase in crime. Senator Grunsky has supported legislation to control drug abuse, stem the tide of pornography, reduce violent crimes against persons and property and increase the vital high court decisions which have tended to the hands of law enforcement. Senator Grunsky's legislative record strengthening law enforcement and improving the administration of justice, to the right enforcement officials, to the right enforcement agencies which is the political arm of law enforcement officials throughout the State.

UCLA has beaten both USC and Cal this season, the latter by a score of 67-24. They were defeated by Pac-12 JFC 16-19.

Coach John Crivello expressed hopes for a large turnout of local supporters to watch "a lot of good young players in action." The game will take place on a beautiful day with all top players back in action after some previous injuries.

Water poloists at Fresno

With a 1-4 conference record behind them the only thing the Mustangs should be ready mentally as well as physically for this road game with all their top players in action. And that means Cal State Fullerton University.
