WASHINGTON (UPI) - Press Secretary Richard Nixon, given four more years in the White House by the biggest win of his long political career, put his Cabinet and staff on notice Wednesday that he planned extensive changes for his second term. Press Secretary Ronald L. Segal said the President wants a formal letter of resignation from all department heads, agency directors and other political appointees before the inauguration day, Jan. 20.

Bill heating in his White House sweep, Nixon met for about a half hour with the White House staff and for an hour with the Cabinet before heading for his Key Biscaya, Fla., vacation compound for a long weekend. Segal said Nixon would spend four or five days in Florida conferring with him in his adjoining office on plans for the new administration including a major reorganization of the White House staff and other aspects of the government.

Segal said Nixon views the start of the term as a time to rid the administration of unfriendly elements and bring in "new ideas and new blood." But he added, "the press secretary declined to say who would go and who would stay.

The President went to bed at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday morning after spending an hour on the telephone following his nationally televised victory speech. Segal was "buck-shot" on the calls he had received from his Cabinet in congressional and other elections were on the list. He was back in his office by 8 a.m. Thursday morning.

The governmental shakeup which the President plans to undertake will be in addition to the resignation of some of his key aides that he planned extensively before assuming office.

Off the Record...The new Moody Blues album, Seventh Sojourn, carries a message, as has been typical of past Moody Blues albums. But that doesn't make it any less significant. The messages in the lyrics of this album weigh particularly heavy on the hearts of men in a world filled with pain, sorrow, searching, and war. It's an album which sadly reflects the real questions in many men's minds and groping for those answers. Not every man can express it for himself. Musicians try to say it for them. This is what Seventh Sojourn does.

In words from the album: "I'm just a wandering on the face of this earth... Meeting so many people Who are trying to be free And while I'm traveling I hear many voices "...We're just the singers in a rock and roll band."

Harvey plans to return to Malaysia when he finishes school in June. In the meantime, he's maintained his work with the Peace Corps and VISTA on campus manages to keep him active. "While my studies might not be as interesting as some of the work I've done in the past, the people here are as interesting as those in my past."

The New York Camerata, a three-piece group performing contemporary music in the classical tradition, will perform at 8 p.m. Friday in Chumash Auditorium. Students will be admitted for $1.50 and the general public will pay $3.00. The program is sponsored by the Art Fine Arts Committee. The trio consists of Paula Hatcher on flute, recorder and piano; Charles Jacobson on cello and electric bass, and Glenn Jacobson on piano, harpsichord and table. All three individuals have very impressive credentials in the music field. Hatcher is a classical conductor at the Peabody Conservatory in Baltimore, Forbes studied cello and conducted at the Manhattan School of Music and Jacobson studied at Oberlin Conservatory.

ASSURANCE
Dear Mr. Silva:
I have heard so many stories about rip-offs by jewelers that I find myself very much on the defensive when it comes to buying jewelry. How can a person be sure he is being treated fairly? How can he possibly tell when he's being told the truth?
Mary D.

Dear Mary,
Psychologists will offer some help here. Your own sixth sense will indicate a warning to you if you will heed it. But, in addition to that, there are ways to check on the ethical character of any given piece of business. Ask around! Check with your fellow students, your local bar friends, your professional acquaintances. Checking on professional and ethical qualifications is a prudent thing to be done in many other areas of interest and concern in your life, e.g. when seeking medical or legal help. Why not do the same when seeking a jewelry consultant, especially when you're considering an important purchase.

If you will look in the phone directory you will find a listing of jewelers who are members of the American Gem Society. In any such member store, you will find jewelers who strive to treat you fairly and competently. Their membership in the Society is "your assurance of their reliability and capability."

That's right, UC Riverside's football team is in first place of the California Collegiate Athletic Association (CCAA). UC Riverside? I always thought we played below Cal Poly-Pomona—the school everybody likes to beat up. But Riverside is present at the top with a 4-0 conference record. The Titans have been too good either.

Riverside's first conference victory, 24-18 slip past Pomona—may not have turned many heads but this past weekend's outing was an entirely different story.

Going into a game with Cal State Fullerton an underdog by a considerable margin, Riverside turned the conference tables with a 46-24 surprise win. The Titans of Fullerton were simply caught looking right over the top of their lightly-taken opponent to an important game with Cal Poly, San Luis Obispo. Fullerton shouldn't have been, it probably cost them a shot at the CCAA crown.

A look at the remaining schedule for Riverside and the Mustang football team reveal the possibility of a season finish that could leave a few heads to dispute as to who is the top team in the CCAA. Here are the particulars.

Polo tonight

Tonight at the Men's Pool the Mustang water polo team will be hosting UC Riverside in a conference match at 7 p.m. This will be the Mustangs last of five conference matches before the start of the California Collegiate Athletic Association tournament. The Mustangs have one conference game left with Allan Hancock College before the tournament.

UC Riverside is in what?

by Eric Nolan

Riverside plays one final conference game, with Nor- thridge, while the Mustangs play two, with Fullerton and Pomona. It is conceivable then that both Riverside and this school could finish with a 3-6 conference records. There would be no "deciding game" because the two teams don't play each other. You probably thought this is as it is because it would be such a gross mismatch-like USC playing Cal State.

When Riverside first entered the conference a couple of years ago this may have been the case, but you certainly can't push aside their victory over Fullerton, even if it was a fluke. They have to be better than they were a few years ago.

But a team doesn't just jump into a league and get on schedule that have been made seasons in advance. It has to wait for an open date, and that is what will come into being next year. According to Wayne Wall, CCAA publicity director, Riverside will be on the Mustangs' schedule next year and in following years. As for this season, rest assured that the grind will not steel the title. Season records are not the sole determinant of the conference champion.

Since all the teams don't play each other, coaches in the conference get together at the end of the year and determine the number one team on the basis of the caliber of schedule. Don't sweat UCR—their games this year have been with Whittier, Redlands, Simon Fraser and others.

Besides, there's no way they can beat Northridge Saturday.
