200 year-old Murray Adobe gets a second chance at life next month

The city council voted to restore the historical structure and preserve what was made of water, mud, straw and stone in the 1100's. The project had been stalled for over 2,000 years, and then 200 years ago, the Adobe was purchased by a new owner who had the foresight to purchase the property in order to preserve some of the historical heritage.

The Murray Adobe, which had been abandoned for over 1,000 years, was finally brought back to life. The owners of the Adobe had decided to sell it to a developer who wanted to build a new house on the site. However, the city council intervened and decided to purchase the property in order to preserve it for future generations.

TheAdobe was restored and put on display, and now visitors can see the history of this unique structure. The city council is working to ensure that the Adobe remains a part of the cultural heritage of the community for many years to come.

STAFF COMMENT
Legislators are moved by gas

by Carol Chadwick, Managing Editor

against eight large OIL company engineers charging they had fixed the market to run the independent dealers out, held a monopoly on the refineries and in general, caused the oil and gas shortages. Perhaps it is time to recall that:

LAST WEDNESDAY a complaint was filed with the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) accusing some major OIL companies.

Finally, last Tuesday a complaint was filed with the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) accusing some major OIL companies.

In the same town? Wouldn’t one or two be sufficient?

STANDARD: Well, so many Shell, Mobil, and others in each town, we thought it best not to upset the applecart, at that point in time.

ERVING: (Huffing and puffing) Mr. Texaco, what happened to Mini-Serve?

TEXACO: Out of business, sir.

ERVING: and Terrible Herbst?

TEXACO: Out of business...

ERVING: What about Best and Fast Gas and how about Low Best?

TEXACO: All out of business...

ERVING: Gentlemen, I maintain that is where all of you are going to find yourselves if the public is not served within your real capacity.

ERVING: Out of business...

ERVING: and Terrible Herbst...

TEXACO: I'm just following the clock as at least one of your stations is open to sell gas?

TEXACO: I'm just following orders, at this point in time.

Law sets ‘dry’ campus rule

by Bob Terrill

Alcohol can cause a lot of trouble on this campus. For a multitude of reasons and circumstances involving alcohol, a student or staff member is subject to suspension or expulsion from school or misdemeanor charge.

The California Legislature has set the tone for abstinence on the campus, in the Business and Professions (B&P) Code, section 66063: “Every person who possesses, consumes, sells, or delivers to any other person, any alcoholic beverage in or on any public school house or any of the grounds thereof is guilty of a misdemeanor.”

Expulsion, suspension, placement on probation, or a lesser sanction may result from students violating a directive of the president of any of the California State University, Colleges. Authority for this comes from the California Administrative Code, Title 5, Subchapter 9, Article 1, section 41301.

In reading the B&P, the question arises, “Is a state university a public school house?” The administration is interpreting the statute as applying this university, according to Dean Chandler. The administration has asked the counsel to the chancellor of the CSUC for a legal opinion on this subject and is awaiting a reply.

All Attorney Richard Carsel said the statutes indicate a legislative intent to apply the B&P cited above to the entire California Public School System (except for the University of California system which is covered under a different code).

In addition Carsel said there is a legislative history of prohibiting alcoholic beverages in and around schools.

The portion of the law prohibiting alcohol on campus is quoted from West’s Annotated California Code, Business and Professions, section 66061: “Every person who possesses, consumes, sells, or delivers in any other person, any alcoholic beverage in or on any public school house or any of the grounds thereof is guilty of a misdemeanor.”

Another way of looking at this alcohol question: “We feel that we should not promote it on campus. And promoting can be by condoning,” said Dean Chandler.

The administration is studying the possibility of conducting an education program related to alcohol abuse, according to Dean Chandler.

Alcoholics Anonymous is one of the programs you can attend if you have a problem,” said Dean Chandler.

Going beyond this, Dean Chandler cites the large number of problems associated with drinking alcohol. He said a significant number of teenage students on this campus are undergoing counseling for alcoholism.

“Alcohol statistics indicate that in a substantial proportion of accidents resulting in death, drivers were under the influence of alcohol.”

The administration feels the campus has the problem, Young adults above the age of 21 also are not immune to alcohol abuse, according to Dean Chandler.

“Every student on this campus is properly licensed. We feel students under 21 are not the place to drink, according to Dean Chandler. Students who think of quality first think first of Ross Jewelers

Adobe rebirth...

In 1970, when the Murray Adobe was still covered with billboard and tarpaper, Schworths said, "It is of tremendous historical value, it would be unfortunate if we were to cause it to be removed." He envisioned rather than a "quasi-museum, we could make more of a "living museum."

The adobe, now standing between the mission and the creek, will soon be restored and begin its life again, with a new generation of humans.

The Murray Adobe has played an important role in the development of San Luis Obispo and will be able to relax in the light of dignity and respect.
