Cheer Club is illegal but bubbling with spirits

By FRED YULIN

Although it isn't sanctioned by the University, a new club is on its way to becoming the campus' most favorite organization.

Cheer Club is not another group dedicated to school spirit, but one that encourages the distribution of distilled beverages.

Membership is open to any person providing he has the legal age. Here's how to become a member:

Find a friend who is a member and ask him if you can join. Within seconds, a hundred friends will be placed in front of you. There will be a few names on the sheet, the last of which will be your friend's name. In order for an applicant to become a member, he must buy up to (but not exceeding) $1 of liquor, beer, or wine. The prospective member is required to phone the person who has a status on the list and ask him to buy his own portion of the beverage.

Once the applicant has bought the beer for number one, he is moved to the 25th position on the list. The first person moves off the list while everyone else moves up.

Then it is the responsibility of the fifth person to give a sworn copy to two friends. They in turn will find two more friends each. The process continues (supposedly) to the point where the person who was previously number five on the list moves to number one.

Propaganda of the Cheer Club say that it is possible for one person to obtain 58 bottles of liquor on an original investment of $1.

This isn't the first time that a similar letter the Cheer Club has circulated in the state of California. To combat such a letter, a section of the California Penal Code declares it illegal, an amendment of the Code states:

"Every person who contrives, procures, or assists, or agrees to assist, in the distribution or sale of an endless chain of unending chains is guilty of a misdemeanor. As used in this section, an endless chain means any scheme for the distribution or disposal of property whereby a participant has a valuable consideration for the chain to receive compensation.

Regardless of the legal status, students have joined the plan, according to an individual, like whitesnake.

"My roommate is in on this, he's having trouble getting some other people interested. The guy who got him on the list had 13 bottles," said Fredric Dunker.

One rumor that had been spreading around campus was that the Corv 'N' Route liquor store on Fourth had run out, or was ready to run out of liquor.

A clerk, who wished to remain nameless, said the rumor was untrue. One hear that many people had joined the Cheer Club to be sure that the people at the bottom of the list.

"If you're on top, that's great. These people are OK. But someone is going to end up in the if the long run," said Larry LePhotoLette.

Math instructor Gerald Farrell said anyone who didn't want to join the chain should refrain. A person who did not give his name, said, "Besides being illegal, the student who needed the liquor was screwed. I've done this for those who (continued on page 4)"
Tomorrow night, your representatives on Student Affairs Council are going to take a vote on whether or not to override President John Holley’s veto of the proposed construction of lights for the tennis courts.

This construction was originally proposed by Holley, who has now revised his stand to favor the lights. The top draftsmen are not the only leaders with differing opinions. Installing lights in the tennis courts has become an issue with the administration as well. Though some I talked to who opposed the idea refused to let their names be used, it appears the powers-that-be on campus are in favor of the idea and their understandings have shown not to publicly voice their objections.

According to Dean of Students Everett Chandler, the lights will use 130 kilowatts when operating, governed by a coins operated metering system. The project would cost $17,000, money which is available from the Dorm Revenue Fund. These dollars are provided by bonds held by the Board of Trustees and are considered student funds.

Holley’s contentions that student opinion has not been sufficiently tapped is false. Energy itself has become a luxury in just a few short months, and I question the advisability of spending $17,000 on illuminating tennis courts, courts which may end up being used at night primarily by housepeople.

The student reps need to hear from us, the students. SAC meets in University Union Hall at 7:15 this Wednesday.

Doughnut lady uses lots of love

by JULIE CHARLTON

10 lbs. of flour, 10 lbs. of icing and a lot of love.

That's what it takes to make the dozens of doughnuts consumed every day at Cal Poly. The personal touch of a little lady named Elsie.

After 5 years of days starting at 4 a.m., Elsie Melts, has no complaints. "I love making doughnuts," she said. Behind the cash register in the little corner of the doughnut shop, "it's a lot of work, but it is good to be busy," she said.

And now she's satisfying the appetites of a good many Cal Poly students. The aroma of her freshly baked doughnuts draws students into the shop like the Pied Piper led his mice. But instead of a flute, she lures them in with good homemade cooking.

Elsie's famed apple sauce doughnuts are one of her own recipes. They are by far the students' most popular choice. One third of Elsie's doughnuts better is used to make the apple's specialty. "The apple sauce doughnut is the one I recommend," says Elsie.

There's quite a choice of doughnut delicacies. The student can choose between chocolate and maple, or vanilla and mixed chocolate with nuts or the apple sauce doughnuts. Elsie will try to sell you all of them if you let her. And if you don't shirk, you'll probably give you one just to prove to how good they really are!

But that's how Elsie is. And Elsie loves her job and her customers. "I feel like they're all my grandchildren," she said.

This is the only doughnut shop at which Elsie has ever worked. She loved to cook as a girl and made doughnuts frequently for her family. So when she first came to work at Cal Poly in September of 1963, she worked in the cafeteria.

After working a few months, there was an opening for a doughnut-maker. Elsie asked for the position and got it.

The Mustang Wrestlers return to the home mat tonight against San Jose State University following a fourth-place finish at the University of Arizona tournament over the weekend.

Poly wrestlers garnered six points in their dual and finished behind Oklahoma, Washington and Brigham Young, respectively.

Seven Mustangs placed in the tournament, but Guy Greens, at 115, was the only Mustang to reach the finals. Taking third-place awards were Bruce Lynn, Cliff Match and Keith Leland. Randy Hudson, Raywood Thompson and Grant Arnold finished fourth.

"Placing seven wrestlers above the general strength of the team," Mustang coach Van Waddock commented. "Guy Greens, at 115, was disappointed that we didn't take it all. We were much closer than our fourth-place finish indicates."

All three third-place finishers missed reaching the finals by slim margins, and two of the three non-place winners were expected to be strong contenders.

Mike Wussum, a defending champion, managed to gain only two team points.

There will be some lineup changes for the Mustangs when they meet the Spartans tonight at 6:00. Tom Hagan will wrestle for Leland at 158. Arnold is trying to overcome an illness, and may be replaced by either Sammy King or Ed Lavoisier at 194. Havre Gardner won't wrestle due to a minor leg injury.

Elise is planning to retire next October, but because I dislike my job, but so I can do some traveling. When some of the boys found out I was leaving, they told me I would have to work another year because they had another year to go before graduation."

Two boys walk past the counter on their way to the door. "Have a good weekend, Elise," they say. Elise waves back.
