GDP legislator advises students

"Get involved" was the advice given by Poly sophomore Talott to his audience of California College Republicans, Tuesday night.

Talott, in a short, informal address to the Poly organization, urged the students to get involved with politics on a "horizontal level" or on a "vertical level."

According to Talott, horizontal involvement means working for candidates, while vertical involvement is working with one single candidate.

"I think the vertical level is a lot better," he said. "Anyone can and you can learn more about politics," said the former Republican. "After the election, you know someone in Washington will act on your behalf."

After his brief address on politics, Talott opened the floor to questions. He made a plea for the GOP candidates for the new reapportioned 15th district.

Talk concerns Soviet's hail of emigrants

Professor Larry Bedash of the History department at the University of California at Santa Barbara, will lecture on the recent Soviet efforts to prevent intellectuals and other trained individuals from emigrating.

The talk which is being sponsored by the Science and Society Club will be held in the Science building Room B-F, Feb. 11 at 4 p.m.

Prof. Bedash will speak mainly on the Russian scientist Kaplina, who immigrated to Cambridge, Massachusetts around 1981, and worked in Cavendish Laboratory for about 15 years. In the summer of 1984, Kaplina visited his home in Russia. He was then told he could not return to Cambridge. At last time the Cavendish Laboratory was headed by Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer and Dr. Rutherford's unsuccessful efforts to secure Kaplina's release, the various interpretations concerning strategic events, Kaplina's unhappiness in Moscow, and the eventual building of a new research laboratory by Kaplina.

Dr. Bedash chose the 1984 events because they were, "a major scientific, national incident," he explains, "and to show the relationship between science and government at a time when they had little experience dealing with one another."

Dr. Bedash has written Rutherford's biography, and has been published in a number of journals. He is also co-founder of the West Coast History of Science Society and is on the National Board of Directors of BANE.

ACTION is after senior volunteers

Interested in the Peace Corps or in being a VISTA volunteer? Recruiters from the Peace Corps and VISTA will be looking for graduating seniors, from this campus, to volunteer.

An application and information center for the volunteer organizations will be set up in the snack bar each day from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. until this Friday.

A former Peace Corps drafteesched in Granada, who is now majoring in landscape architecture, Don Marquardt, II, will coordinate recruitment activities through the Peace Corps and VISTA may call the Tuna Hall ACTION at 4-8873.

Marquardt said, "The total volunteer experience is important to anyone's personal perspective on career goals and ambitions. One can acquire credit for volunteer work which is accredited to advanced degrees or better government positions."

Agriculture, biology, architecture, math, sciences, liberal arts, and English majors can apply for over 50 of the various categories of job assignments. Beginning this summer, jobs will be available for overseas and United States assignments.

The Peace Corps will begin in the 185th year on March 1, according to Marquardt. Agriculture is the priority program in 18 of the developing nations currently hosting Peace Corps volunteers.

Representing ACTION, the federal volunteer service umbrella agency for the Peace Corps, VISTA, the Peace Corps, and the Peace Corps of America, the Peace Corps, and the Peace Corps of America Foundation, will be Tom Jacobs, a former Peace Corps volunteer, Mrs. Vive Lombrich, who trains Peace Corps volunteers; Mary Longden, a Peace Corps volunteer; and Jerry Johnson, a VISTA health worker.

Peace Corps and VISTA volunteers receive living allowances, medical care, and vacations.

Marquardt reported that 141 Cal Poly seniors applied for Peace Corps and VISTA during 1972.

Hassles and headaches in getting money

by JOHN GORDON

Cal Poly's campus life can be a problem. Ask Otto, a Cal Poly sophomore, who doesn't cash a check at his own bank.

Armed with proper identification and a Fox Ocean from a friend whose bank is in Los Angeles, Otto went into a local bank where he has had an account for a year. The bank assistant reported no more than what he went in with. It seems Otto didn't have enough money in his account to cover the check.

If there were a branch of the bank that Otto had the check from in town, he could most likely have been paid if the check was there. But there wasn't. All that there was left for Otto to do was to deposit the check in his account and wait a week or two to clear it.

It's without reason that students have a hard time cashing checks. Ray Arata, manager of the Fourth Jordon's, explains that he has been losing money because students won't cash unless a purchase has been made. And then the check may be cashed above the dollar amount of the purchase.

The new policy at Jordan's has been put into effect. Otto is now served at Cork's Boutique, which has received more bad checks this year than ever before. Jerry Dunlop, assistant manager of the Fourth Jordan's, said that unless there is a drop-off in the amount of bad checks returned, students may stop their cashing service.

Dunlop explains that although they lose little money on returned checks, and his employees lose a lot of time tracking down writers of those checks, "It's usually not the responsibility of the student," says Dunlop. A little more inconvenience to writer, more to you. A service charge from the bank and a bank check cashing fee from the bank makes the cost add up to nine dollars.

Two forms of identification are required to cancel a check that is probably one being a driver's license. Out-of-town checks should be cashed at the branch of the student's own bank, provided the funds are enough in the account to cover the check.

On-campus cashing service is available at the Cal Poly Foundation Cashier on the University Union for a maximum of $50, and all checks and driver's license are required. Avoid the hassles and headaches in check cashing and save yourself needless worries.

Design center meets in patio

The first general meeting of the Community Design Center, a new university-sponsored group, will be held today in the architecture patio at 11. The program offers five design seminars on expertise in and outside of architecture.

Winter show opens tonight

"A Cry of Players," the Speech Communication Department's winter production, begins a three week run today in the Cal Poly Theatre. Tickets, available at the door, are all general admission and all students.

The story of the William Gillette play will continue tomorrow and Saturday nights. "I am listening" will be played the leading role of Will, the English major; "Lady of the Lake" will be played the role of Will with Anne, also an English major, plays the role of Anne.
It is tempting to dispute factual issues with Mr. Boutwell. I don't think that Mr. Hoarst or his grandfather (who built the family fortune) were involved in the slave trade or that they massacred any Indians or that they committed any other atrocities. Nor do I think that the American worker is today much oppressed by millionaires, or that breaking up large fortunes would do much to alleviate such oppression as does exist in American society. But the facts are, there is a deeper error in Mr. Boutwell's letter, and because it is more tempting, as has produced good results, for there seems to be no basis on which to say one expedient unjust is morally right but another is not.

One wonders if he would approve, as the kidnaping and murder of his own child (I gather that he has children) as part of a scheme to give welfare recipients an extra seventy dollars. If not, because he is a hypocrice. But let us suppose that he is consistent, and agrees that even the happiness of those who love can be eternally sacrificed in order to promote the redistribution of wealth. Likewise, let us suppose that he would approve of his own happiness being sacrificed in this way. This, of course, is fanaticism: the individual counts for nothing, the holy cause counts for everything. The totalitarian systems which are based on such values are not humanitarian, they are fascistic.

This is the consequence in Mr. Boutwell's article of the whole reason for claiming it is all right to sacrifice the happiness of some. How could it be otherwise? Mr. Hoarst's letter makes it clear that they are inconsistent. Mr. Boutwell: to do us to claim the world is better places for human beings. But of what worth is a society which makes it wrong for capitalists to redistribute wealth, even a small one, I suppose, to do so would benefit the next generation, but I still think it would be moral. And why should ho care about the morality of these acts? (I think it is more tempting, as has produced good results, for there seems to be no basis on which to say one expedient unjust is morally right but another is not.)

One wonders if he would approve of, say, the kidnaping and murder of his own child (I gather that he has children) as part of a scheme to give welfare recipients an extra seventy dollars. If not, because he is a hypocrice. But let us suppose that he is consistent, and agrees that even the happiness of those who love can be eternally sacrificed in order to promote the redistribution of wealth. Likewise, let us suppose that he would approve of his own happiness being sacrificed in this way. This, of course, is fanaticism: the individual counts for nothing, the holy cause counts for everything. The totalitarian systems which are based on such values are not humanitarian, they are fascistic.

This is the consequence in Mr. Boutwell's article of the whole reason for claiming it is all right to sacrifice the happiness of some. How could it be otherwise? Mr. Hoarst's letter makes it clear that they are inconsistent. Mr. Boutwell: to do us to claim the world is better places for human beings. But of what worth is a society which makes it wrong for capitalists to redistribute wealth, even a small one, I suppose, to do so would benefit the next generation, but I still think it would be moral. And why should ho care about the morality of these acts? (I think it is more tempting, as has produced good results, for there seems to be no basis on which to say one expedient unjust is morally right but another is not.)

One wonders if he would approve of, say, the kidnaping and murder of his own child (I gather that he has children) as part of a scheme to give welfare recipients an extra seventy dollars. If not, because he is a hypocrice. But let us suppose that he is consistent, and agrees that even the happiness of those who love can be eternally sacrificed in order to promote the redistribution of wealth. Likewise, let us suppose that he would approve of his own happiness being sacrificed in this way. This, of course, is fanaticism: the individual counts for nothing, the holy cause counts for everything. The totalitarian systems which are based on such values are not humanitarian, they are fascistic.

This is the consequence in Mr. Boutwell's article of the whole reason for claiming it is all right to sacrifice the happiness of some. How could it be otherwise? Mr. Hoarst's letter makes it clear that they are inconsistent. Mr. Boutwell: to do us to claim the world is better places for human beings. But of what worth is a society which makes it wrong for capitalists to redistribute wealth, even a small one, I suppose, to do so would benefit the next generation, but I still think it would be moral. And why should ho care about the morality of these acts? (I think it is more tempting, as has produced good results, for there seems to be no basis on which to say one expedient unjust is morally right but another is not.)

One wonders if he would approve of, say, the kidnaping and murder of his own child (I gather that he has children) as part of a scheme to give welfare recipients an extra seventy dollars. If not, because he is a hypocrice. But let us suppose that he is consistent, and agrees that even the happiness of those who love can be eternally sacrificed in order to promote the redistribution of wealth. Likewise, let us suppose that he would approve of his own happiness being sacrificed in this way. This, of course, is fanaticism: the individual counts for nothing, the holy cause counts for everything. The totalitarian systems which are based on such values are not humanitarian, they are fascistic.
Do Greek Letters Bother You?

Then we won’t use ours because they’re not important. Why aren’t the Greek names important? Because to us, the BUSINESSES matter—only LEADERSHIP matters. Why aren’t there national principles?

We provide services to our campus. To the community. To the nation. We provide services that include:

- Volunteering to support people in need
- Providing assistance for disadvantaged children
- Staffing at the recycling center

Find out more:

Come to UCLA 410 at 7:30 pm tonight or call Frank Bailey, President 644-3468
Danny Shaw, Membership Chairman 644-3363

ALPHA PHI OMEGA

BP CIGAR

Given where prices have gone, we decided to go back to something a little less sophisticated without sacrificing quality. Resultingly, we’ve widened the battery life by two inches, put in only one draft flap, and a No. 6 zipper, and generally simplified the construction.

Filling: 32 oz. prime goose down.
As a result, Total Weight: 60 oz.
Left: 8 Temp. Rating: 10° Fahrenheit

Cranks Survey Mountaineering

Price: 644-9476
971 Sante Rosa St., San Luis Obispo

IN CONTROL—Bruce Lynn shows the moves that gained him a pin in his match with Fresno State's Nick Quitene. The 165-pound wrestler has scored one of the Mustang wrestling team's regular-season victories by winning. The Poly grapplers were 14-15 winners over Fresno State and the Mustangs seem to be ready for the NCAA finals. Fullerton State will host the championships on March 1 and 2.

If the Mustangs, in particular Bruce Lynn, Keith Leland and Guy Green, continue to wrestle as they did against Fresno State another national championship does not seem too far away. Against Fresno State Lynn had his third pin in a row. In the CCAA tournament the junior wrestler had two pins. Lynn had an easy pin as he scored a take-down with 38 seconds left in the first period of his match. Keith Leland had an easy time with Jim Berg as the Mustang wrestler won his match 1-0. Last year Berg defeated an injured Leland. The Poly grappler went on to place second in the NCAA college division finals.

Coach Vaughan Hitchcock says that Lynn and Leland have wrestled well all year but now, as they are reaching their peak, they are reaching their peak. Lynn shows the moves that gained him a pin in his match with Fresno State's Nick Quitene. They are reaching their peak. They are reaching their peak.

The coach terms Lynn as an aggressive wrestler who possesses fantastic style and conditioning. The 165-pound wrestler is also the pin-leader for the Mustangs. Guy Green moved up from his usual weight-class of 185 and won by a pin in the 185-weight-class.

One of the best matches of the night was Leon Iannarello's best with Fresno State's Jeff Gurry. The senior is the best wrestler the Bulldogs had to offer and the Mustang freshman gave him some battle. Although Iannarello lost the match 10-6, Hitchcock believes that the Poly wrestler exhibited the kind of wrestling that could make him a possible pin-winner in the NCAA meet at Fullerton.

The coach says that the freshman has withstood the pressures of being the no. 1 185-pounder on the defending national champions. Even though the freshman's record stands at 13-16-6, Hitchcock says that individual season records really don't mean that much when it comes to the nationals.

Grapplers win big

by FRED YULIN

The Mustang wrestling team ended the regular season Tuesday night and it did it in the typical manner—by winning.

The Poly grapplers were 14-15 winners over Fresno State and the Mustangs seem to be ready for the NCAA finals. Fullerton State will host the championships on March 1 and 2.

If the Mustangs, in particular Bruce Lynn, Keith Leland and Guy Green, continue to wrestle as they did against Fresno State another national championship does not seem too far away.

Against Fresno State Lynn had his third pin in a row. In the CCAA tournament the junior wrestler had two pins. Lynn had an easy pin as he scored a take-down with 38 seconds left in the first period of his match. Keith Leland had an easy time with Jim Berg as the Mustang wrestler won his match 1-0. Last year Berg defeated an injured Leland. The Poly grappler went on to place second in the NCAA college division finals.

Coach Vaughan Hitchcock says that Lynn and Leland have wrestled well all year but now, as they are reaching their peak, they are reaching their peak.
Wrestling . . .

(continued from page 1)

Hinchcock adds that innvarati had become more popular as the season progressed.

Randy Hudson did not compete for the second straight match as injuries prevailed. The heavyweight wrestler will compete at Fullerton at full strength.

"We need a whole lot of expérience before the conference tournament," said the coach. last quarter. It seems that the Daily report has some of the best teams in the nation in the last few months.

The Mustangs have faced Oregon State twice, Oklahoma State and Iowa State; all division i schools. As the only wrestling power in the state of California, Hinchcock has scheduled the toughest teams in the nation.

Last quarter the Mustang coaches said it would take until mid-season for his squad to jell.
Well, it appears that the team has done more than that.
The Mustangs have just won their reval straight OUA title and are now looking forward to the nationals.

Hinchcock says that none of his mentors have shown some of the best wrestlers in the nation.

Our School

Student mat tourney nears

An intramural wrestling tournament will be held Monday in the Men's Gym.
The tournament is open to all men and will follow the standard weight classes for regular wrestling.

The tournament begins at 7:00 p.m. and a $5 entry fee will be asked of competitors.
Sign-ups are now being taken in the Men's Gym in Dick Houston's office.

MID STATE
Electronic Supply
Inc.

Have you tried our batteries? They're fresh. We carry brands and in small quantities. Try our batteries.

Have you seen the SONY Cassette Recorders at Mid-State? They've built-in microphones and has automatic shut-off to save batteries. You can even set the recorder to turn off automatically.

If you want to combine AM • PM Radio with a cassette recorder you want the SONY CR-1000 - unbeatable at $8.99. These are just a few of the SONY cassette recorders at Mid-State.

Of course, if you are repairing or building anything electronic, Mid-State has thousands and thousands of the parts you need - at wholesale prices.

OPEN TUES THRU SAT.

1441 Monterey
543-2770