Mass transit fee proposed at ten cents

One dollar per day may be all a student need pay for one-way transportation to Cal Poly.

At President John Holley made that proposal at the last Student Affairs Council meeting in conjunction with the new city bus system. It is scheduled to begin operation this April.

Holley, who is a member of the San Luis Obispo Mass Transit Committee, said, "I made the proposal to allocate up to $6,000 from city funds to repay the balance of the 8 cents fare." Holley explained that "I want to make sure there's no doubt about the student discount fare being cheaper than driving."

The buses will run every half hour to the University, and the 10 cents will cover the half hour trip.

Total cost of setting up the project will be $4,790. The cost will include bus signs, benches and other equipment.

The city plans to pay for the mass transit operation through the fare and city subsidize. The buses will have two, basic running to the University.

SAC approves typing service

Typewriters may soon be available for student use in the University Union.

A proposal for the Student Affairs Council to sponsor a free student typewriter service in the University Union was presented to SAC last week by Scott Plotkin, Student Affairs Council representative for the School of Business and Social Sciences.

SAC approved the proposal and the purchase of two electric typewriters.

The use and arrangement of a typing service would be under the direction of the typewriter manufacturer.

Funds to operate the typewriter service had been approved by the Student Council and would be paid to the typewriter manufacturer.

Another objection to tactics of SLA

Editor: I just read Thursday and Friday's letters section. I strongly agree with A.C.W. Bethel (elegantly philosophical, and well put) and Ray Oenon.

Mark Boutwell: Do you realize what you are saying? You are condoning the actions of the SLA by comparing those actions to the foul actions of the often foul U.S. government.

Sure, there are a lot of hungry, sick, oppressed, oppressed people around. No matter how much money theyear out of the States, we have been where they started, right? The SLA is striking the effects of the problem. When they arethrough, the problem will still exist.

We need laws if farmworkers are going to be treated fairly, not to work in the food, face of mind need to be changed if minorities are going to be treated equally. Heeves and other money hungry people may have some of their fortunes immorally and illegally, but what is that now? be here, now, Mark. Work for what you want. The SLA has no right to deny Pat Heeves her freedom, and her happiness. You and the SLA have handed some petty people, and yet the proof of that.

I agree with Mr. Boutwell that changes need to be made. These changes, however, must come from the people, and at the point of a gun. I would prefer to make my own decisions, rather than weigh them on the problems of the SLA.

I. Douglas Oerard, construction.

"A man feels there can be no revolution without violence. Then maybe he should take a look at the lives of the great revolutionaries of social change. Non-violence was the doctrine of Martin Luther King, Jesus Christ, Buddha and Mahatma Gandhi."

"For experience convinces me that permanent change can never be the outcome of untruth and violence."

Trees to be uprooted soon

Two Italian stone pine trees, to be uprooted and removed from their natural environment, will serve as practical experience to students in the Ornamental Horticulture's landscape contracting class. Removal and relocation of the trees to another area is in advance planning and is valued at more than $940,000.

Reader rebuts pro-SLA letter

Editor: I am sorry to see that Mr. Mark Boutwell still maintains that the SLA is in response to current arguments. (Feb. 13) me first. In order not to make a mistake.

Mr. Boutwell defends the terrorist tactics of the SLA by making them analogous throughout history. To defend extortion and violence on one hand, and on the other hand condemns it, is to be hypocritical.

The use of physical coercion, to whatever the cause, is an aberration upon individual liberty and is inoperative with American ideals. Changes made through the implementation of violence are not lasting, and cause bitterness. Vietnam is but one proof of this.

I agree with Mr. Boutwell that changes need to be made. These changes, however, must come from the people, and yet the proof of that.

I. Douglas Oerard, construction.

Proposal 9 supported by bike winner

Georges Donasti, was the happy winner of a ten-speed bicycle from a drawing sponsored by the Ecology Action Club.

The purpose of the drawing was to support the People's Lobby Political Reform Initiative of Proposition 9. Donasti, an agricultural business management major, said, "I am amazed at winning a ten-speed for only fifty cents while supporting a good cause like the Political Reform Initiative." Donasti said.

Signatures from over 150,000 Californians support the initiative on the June ballot. Ecology Action spokesman John Freiser said. The initiative is aimed at removing the web of special-interest-money and political reform, "Purposely on cause rather than effect, the initiative deals with campaign limitations and disclosures, the activity of lobbyists, conflict of interest, and ballot pamphlet reform," Freiser said. "In addition the initiative has tough enforcement provisions."

Last quarter the Ecology Action Club obtained over 1500 Cal Poly signatures for the initiative. Copies of the ballot measure are available in Rm. 108 of the University Union.

Congestion leads to stadium repair

Mustang Stadium is going to be reorganized to alleviate congestion problems around rest rooms, concession stands and exits.

The proposed plan would be to move the bleachers, fence line and gates to the curb line to enable people to go off both ends of the bleachers and still not leave the stadium.

There is also a plan to distribute the concession stands in more than one place so stadium traffic will flow more smoothly.

The reason behind these alterations is because there is too much congestion in and around the vicinity of the bleachers. Also with a lack of exits, this congestion is a safety hazard.

The labor for this task would be costly if contracted by an outside company. Thus at half the estimated cost, the Ag Department will be donating equipment and manpower.

Some of the materials already in the stadium can be utilized. Still an estimated $6 plus feet of 10-foot chain fencing will be needed.

New ticket booths are being constructed by some Industrial Technology students for their spring projects.

Once the obstacle of obtaining the fencing is overcome, the construction should get underway and be completed in time for the ’74 football season.

But A&T Business Affairs Director Roy Oerstsn says, “We’re still scrounging.”

Forest hike set

A rare bishop pine grove above Los Osos Valley and the pygmy oak forest in the Los Osos Creek estuary will be the sites of a Sierra Club-sponsored day hike on Saturday, March 5. Hikers should meet at the parking lot of the First National Bank, 1011 Los Osos Valley Road, Los Osos at 8:45 a.m. From there the group will go to the pine grove where lunch will be eaten, and a long-time Los Osos resident, will give a short talk on the grove.

The group will return to their cars to drive to south Morro Bay overlooking the Los Osos Creek estuary for a walk through the pygmy oak forest, which is under study for a preserve.

Hikers will study plants and animals of the area and eat lunch in a meadow along the trail. Kileen Kengel, hike leader, said the hike is “easy” and participants should bring a sack lunch, water, jacket, binoculars, camera and camera film. Further information may be obtained by calling Ms. Kengel, 568-1280, or assistant leader Kll Walling, 753-7716.

Roundhouse can help

The roundhouse, or re-routing station, of the steam locomotive era has been phased out, but its original meaning has returned in a new format. Roundhouse now channels people, not trains, on to the right track.

In its current form, Roundhouse serves as a creative way around the “brick wall” of bureaucracy. A storehouse of information and ingenuity, Roundhouse, located in the University Union, acts as an “ombudsman” agency.

Nancy Weinstein, Roundhouse director said, “It receives high level information—from both university and community sources—but is independent. It can use the knowledge to take short cuts and cut red tape.”

Roundhouse includes an active volunteer staff of over 50 students. Ms. Weinstein explained that Roundhouse incorporates a task force approach.

“Tha staff haa bean trained to work with the offices and the resources available. They can often provide a good deal of information themselves and know where first-hand information is available.

Ms. Weinstein said that, right now, Roundhouse is being used predominantly as a directory service and “that is the height of its possibilities.”

Some other resources at Roundhouse, according to Ms. Weinstein include:

- A community resource directory that lists all “people services” from recycling to psychiatry.
- There are only a few copies of this kind of directory available in the county.
- A complete file of all clubs on campus.
- A general information plan which catalogs student needs ranging from lobby dancers to ski cures.

Roundhouse also has a working familiarity with the Legal Aid Center. It shares office quarters with the center and acts as its answering service.

Batmen split with Sonoma

A baseball team can always split a doubleheader but the Mustangs did it in classic style on Sunday.

After defeating Sonoma State in the first game 13-0, the Poly Batman ran out of gas and were demolished by the northern team 6-1. In the first game the Mustangs scored 11 runs in the first three innings.

Four of those runs came on a grand-slam by Scott Wilson. The Mustang slinger also hit for the season and 17 RBIs. Bean Blake was the winning pitcher for Poly as he collected eight strikeouts.

The second game for the Mustangs started off well enough with two quick runs. But for the remainder of the game the batmen could only manage two singles. With the game tied at 2-2, the Mustangs were forced into extra innings.

Sonoma was prepared to go the extra distance as the visitors scored seven runs in the top of the eighth. The Mustangs came empty-handed in the bottom of the frame and lost 9-2.

After losing the first game it appeared that the Mustangs could not produce enough hits in one inning to push across a few runs. It became obvious in the top of the eighth inning of the second game when Sonoma blew the game apart.

Bud Drinkers, can you figure this out?

Ralph bought a 6-pack of Budweiser and invited four friends over to share it. Ralph, he bought, expected to have two cans to himself, but unfortunately when he returned to the refrigerator for his second, he found it missing. So he asked who took it. Al said, "Joe drank it." Joe said, "Dan drank it." Dan said, "Al drank it." Al asked who took it. Al said, "Joe drank it." Joe said, "Dan drank it." Dan said, "Al drank it." Ralph asked who took it. Al said, "Joe drank it." Joe said, "Dan drank it." Dan said, "Al drank it." Al asked who took it. Al said, "Joe drank it." Joe said, "Dan drank it." Dan said, "Al drank it." Ralph said, "Who really drank it?"

If the first-year men can improve as much as they have done since the start of the season, Poly's track hopes will be bright for the next four years.
