The Sweeps Talent Award for displays in the second annual Poly Royal was won second place honors in the Sweeps competition as well as the theme prize for its exhibit, "The Lead of the Pencil". The way votes are gathered, processed and distributed. The display included student publications and tours conducted by students dressed in different characters throughout the department.

The chemistry exhibit was the most original prize. It included a magic show. The winning exhibits went to the College for its showings of new techniques from the School of Communications and Humanities.

Frick keynotes

FFA convention

Handicapped given help by new center

A service center to centralise and alleviate the problems of disabled students on campus was being organised this quarter. Awaiting approval by the Associated Students, Inc., the organisation's nucleus by the Associated Students of America for disabled and non-disabled students are working to see that the center will meet the needs of handicapped students.

According to Robert Bonds, Student Service coordinator, the students are focusing mainly on the removal of architectural barriers.

"Things that most people take for granted present problems to disabled students," he said. Bonds pointed out that the library book stacks are almost impossible to reach by wheelchair. And drinking fountains and phones in various places around campus are too high for those in wheelchairs to reach. "Disabled students deserve a fair and equal chance to obtain knowledge," Bonds said.

"For most people, economics is the major barrier to that goal. But it's only part of the problem for the disabled. They must also contend with an environment that is not structured for them," he said.

According to Bonds, the center will primarily try to reach freshman, sophomore and junior students.

"Hopefully, they will realise what can be done and will help bring about changes. It's not the disabled organisation and their campus," he added.

Any student interested in helping should drop by Room 117 in the University Union or call Bonds at 556-6400.

Platforms due in Mustang mailbox today

Students running for ASI offices must submit platform statements to Mustang Daily editor's mailbox by Wednesday, May 11. All students who have received the following statements included in the following: The Mustang Daily requests that candidates who did not get their pictures taken at last Wednesday's meeting should come to Graphic Arts 809 between 1 and 2 p.m. today to pose for pictures to accompany their campaign statements.

Photographs of the following candidates will be published in the Mustang Daily next week. Thanks you for your cooperation.

Clowning around

Patty Gause (facing camera) and Jacky Martin go through one of their routines during the dance auditions show presented by the Women's P.E. department. The demonstration was given during both days of Poly Royal.

JUIT LOOKIN'—taking in Poly Royal are (from left to right):

Neftan Troutner, Andy Troutner and Michael Howland. The three youngsters seem entranced with the latest exhibit, neglecting their fraternity balloons.

Budget hearings for two groups who were cut entirely from the proposed 1974-75 ASI budget will be handled by the Student Affairs Council.

The Student Affairs Council, also known as the S.A.C., will handle the budget hearings for the period from the end of Winter Quarter to the end of Spring Quarter. The budget will be handled by the Student Affairs Council, also known as the S.A.C., will handle the budget hearings for the period from the end of Winter Quarter to the end of Spring Quarter. The budget will be handled by the Student Affairs Council, also known as the S.A.C., will handle the budget hearings for the period from the end of Winter Quarter to the end of Spring Quarter.
EDITORIAL

Women's P.E. still playing 'second fiddle'

The plight of the women's physical education and athletic programs at this university has recently become the center of concern for student government officials here. On March 14 the investigative report by Allen Harvey was published on the inequities of the P.E. and athletic programs here. The two-unit series (which was reprinted in the Poly Royal edition) brought to light inequalities in budget allocations, staff and facilities existing between the men's and women's programs. Action was initiated first by A/I President John Holley, who established an ad hoc committee on women's opportunities. The committee was instructed to report to the Student Affairs Council on the quality of women-oriented facilities on campus. In addition, a tentative agreement was reached to allocate $400,000 worth of patchwork on the dilapidated Crandall Gym. The efforts by Holley and the ad hoc committee are all well and good for the members of the women's P.E. and athletic programs, which have played a distant second fiddle to programs for men throughout this university's history. Yet, more recently it becomes apparent that little has changed—women are still getting the budgetary backhand upon them.

When budget requests were presented to the Finance Committee recently, the women's athletic association received a $800 increase over their budget from last year. This figure, however, includes the extra $800 earned by the women in gate receipts. So, the actual A/I subsidy was increased by only $800. Meanwhile, a tightening of men's athletic belt would result in the disappearance of water polo, cross country and golf from the men's intercollegiate budget. Each loss in the men's program apparently were intolerable. Holley and the Student Executive Cabinet simply appeal to the contingency fund and came out with the $8,000 needed to keep at least water polo and cross country on the program. It is indeed interesting to note that these two sports appeared at the bottom of the priority list drawn up according to the priority budgeting system established by Finance Committee Chairman Mike Motrill. Retention of these sports was necessary, but the Mustang Daily has learned, in order to have the required number of sports necessary to compete in the California Collegiate Athletic Association.

This raises the question why money is so easy to come by when it is the men's programs that are threatened. Mirroring admitted being unhappy with the ad hoc cabinet's decision to pull funds from the contingency fund. It was purely the decision of the cabinet. While Holley publicly expressed concern for the inequities forced upon the women's athletic program and facilities, his tactics behind the executive cabinet's chamber doors were characterized with duplicity that is inconsistent with responsible student government.

This university can no longer tolerate the veiled discrimination that exists here. Legislation, in the form of Title IX of the Education Amendments Act, has been created to correct this organization which enabled these inequities to continue. The evidence is on this campus. Holley and the ad hoc committee here will be forced to deal with these inequities of the P.E. and athletic programs on this campus, through the pressures of student government or the Federal government. Hopefully, the legislature will not become inactive.

Martha A. haste
Managing Editor

Vacant seats on committee

For five new members of the Finance Committee need to be filled, it was announced last Wednesday night by Chairman George Delange. The vacant seats on Finance Committee are from the schools of Architecture and Environmental Design, Communicative Arts and Humanities, Science and Mathematics, Agriculture and Natural Resources Management, and Business and Social Sciences.

Interviews of interested students for these appointive positions will begin in two weeks during Finance Committee's regular meetings.
A committee that understands people

HUG—something you do on a cold winter night, right? Well, maybe, but not in this case. HUG, or the Committee for Human Understanding and Growth, is the new name of the previously known Human Relations Committee. Its motto might be, "We're here to help," according to Jerry Grimm, committee chairman, since one of the goals is to help other campus organizations diagnose internal problems and to help them build unity and group understanding. This is done by observing the groups in action and finding weaknesses which may not be apparent to them.

Grimm expressed the feeling that too few groups know about this service and thus haven't taken advantage of it. Any group wishing HUG's help may contact either Leslie Griffin or Randy Donahue, advisors to the group, in the Activities Planning Center, Room 311, of the University Union.

The committee is planning a beach retreat at Point loma on May 3 and 4. The purpose will be to create an even better understanding of group functioning and awareness. Officers for next quarter will be elected and plans for a summer conference will be formulated. Although the retreat is for committee members only, the summer workshop will be open to anyone.

Persons interested in learning more about the committee and its activities are invited to attend a meeting, Thursday, at 11 a.m. in University Union Room 311-312.

A committee that understands people...
BEATS TOP FIELD

Net ‘king’ takes tourney

since the tourney began over 75 years ago.

The only man who has beaten Lambert this year.

Bobbi Cantwell, one of the hottest college players in the nation.

Thursdays, winning all six of his matches.

that a Poly player has ever done.

The senior from Arroyo Grande.

the tourney begen over 75 years ago.

the match begins this weekend.

will face the University of California at Riverside.

Will SAC let the golf team play through?

Our Officer Selection Officers are looking for a few good college men—maybe 3 out of 100—who will make good Marine officers. If you’re one of them, we’ll give you a chance to prove it during summer training at Quantico, Virginia.

Our program is the Platoon Leaders Class, PLC. With ground, air and sea options. You might even qualify for up to $2,700 to help you through college.

But if money is all you’re looking for, don’t waste your time.

leadership, if you want it, work for it. If you’ve got it, show us. It’s one hell of a challenge. But we’re looking for one hell of a man.

The Mustangs took an early lead in the first round as they swept all the matches in last week’s round-robin at Northridge.

Lambert’s brother Pete also played in the tourney and did well, according to Jorgenson.

Pete opened his play by beating Don Chinn of Pomona, 8-4, 6-1. He then defeated his next two.

Lambert defeated, in split sets, two of the hottest college players in the western United States.

His next match was against Tom Smith from Cal State Long Beach, the only man who has beaten Lambert this year.

Pete opened his play by beating Don Chinn of Pomona, 8-4, 6-1. He then defeated his next two opponents before losing to Kurt Nelson of Cal State Long Beach, 6-7, 6-4.

Though Pete easily dominated play in the first round, Jorgenson is not taking anything for granted.

‘The CCAA race is still wide open as we must continue to win to remain on top.’

The competition will begin on Thursday at 3 p.m. with Poly matching up with Cal State Fullerton on the home courts.

Cal State Bakerfield will take on Cal State Northridge at two p.m.

The competition begins early at Northridge Matadors will face the University of California at Riverside at 7 p.m. on Saturday with Poly going at 1 p.m. on Sunday with Poly going against Northridge and Bakerfield against Riverside.

though Poly easily dominated play in the first round, Jorgenson is not taking anything for granted.

‘The CCAA race is still wide open as we must continue to win to remain on top.’

The competition will begin on Thursday at 3 p.m. with Poly matching up with Cal State Fullerton on the home courts.

Cal State Bakerfield will take on Cal State Northridge at two p.m.

The competition begins early at Northridge Matadors will face the University of California at Riverside at 7 p.m. on Saturday with Poly going at 1 p.m. on Sunday with Poly going against Northridge and Bakerfield against Riverside.

Will SAC let the golf team play through?

The Mustang golf team will take on SAC tonight. The golfers will not be able to attend tonight, considering whether or not to do for their sport’s sake here.

SAC is considering whether or not to do away with some of the athletic teams that are having trouble digging out of a financial sandtrap and need little fan support.

Our Officer Selection Officers are looking for a few good college men—maybe 3 out of 100—who will make good Marine officers. If you’re one of them, we’ll give you a chance to prove it during summer training at Quantico, Virginia.

Our program is the Platoon Leaders Class, PLC. With ground, air and sea options. You might even qualify for up to $2,700 to help you through college. But if money is all you’re looking for, don’t waste your time.

leadership, if you want it, work for it. If you’ve got it, show us. It’s one hell of a challenge. But we’re looking for one hell of a man.

The Mustangs took an early lead in the first round as they swept all the matches in last week’s round-robin at Northridge.

Lambert’s brother Pete also played in the tourney and did well, according to Jorgenson.

Pete opened his play by beating Don Chinn of Pomona, 8-4, 6-1. He then defeated his next two.

Lambert defeated, in split sets, two of the hottest college players in the western United States.

His next match was against Tom Smith from Cal State Long Beach, the only man who has beaten Lambert this year.

Pete opened his play by beating Don Chinn of Pomona, 8-4, 6-1. He then defeated his next two opponents before losing to Kurt Nelson of Cal State Long Beach, 6-7, 6-4.

Though Pete easily dominated play in the first round, Jorgenson is not taking anything for granted.

‘The CCAA race is still wide open as we must continue to win to remain on top.’

The competition will begin on Thursday at 3 p.m. with Poly matching up with Cal State Fullerton on the home courts.

Cal State Bakerfield will take on Cal State Northridge at two p.m.

The competition begins early at Northridge Matadors will face the University of California at Riverside at 7 p.m. on Saturday with Poly going at 1 p.m. on Sunday with Poly going against Northridge and Bakerfield against Riverside.

Will SAC let the golf team play through?

The Mustang golf team will take on SAC tonight. The golfers will not be able to attend tonight, considering whether or not to do for their sport’s sake here.

SAC is considering whether or not to do away with some of the athletic teams that are having trouble digging out of a financial sandtrap and need little fan support.

Our Officer Selection Officers are looking for a few good college men—maybe 3 out of 100—who will make good Marine officers. If you’re one of them, we’ll give you a chance to prove it during summer training at Quantico, Virginia.

Our program is the Platoon Leaders Class, PLC. With ground, air and sea options. You might even qualify for up to $2,700 to help you through college. But if money is all you’re looking for, don’t waste your time.

leadership, if you want it, work for it. If you’ve got it, show us. It’s one hell of a challenge. But we’re looking for one hell of a man.