MANUSCRIPTS BEING SOUGHT FOR STATEWIDE PUBLICATION

Manuscripts for possible publication as part of the Distinguished Teaching Award Publications program of the California State Colleges are being sought, according to information received on campus recently. Dr. Roy E. Anderson, who is chairman of the campus Faculty-Staff Council, said last week that guidelines for acceptance of manuscripts submitted had been developed.

In general, those considered may be of any reasonable length, but a high standard of quality will be maintained. They should be submitted, whenever possible, as essentially complete works rather than prospectuses or outlines and should contain original contributions or new syntheses in the areas represented. Manuscripts in dissertation format will not be considered, but well-written ones based upon material originally included in dissertations may be acceptable.

Those interested in submitting manuscripts or in obtaining further information about the Distinguished Teaching Award Publications program may do so by contacting Dr. Anderson, a member of the Business Administration Department's faculty whose office is Room 122, Business Administration and Education Building.
