Reagan's talk eyed dubiously

Ronald Reagan will speak here today from the roof of the California Polytechnic State University Union, according to a source close to the governor. Reagan has denied that he will be on the roof, but the source said Reagan is expected to make a speech from the roof.

By BOGGER VINCENT

Reagan's talk on the roof has caused a stir among the students and faculty at Cal Poly. Some students are worried that Reagan will use the roof as a platform for his campaign, while others are concerned about the safety of the students who will be in attendance.

Student's hobby involves ancient brass engravings

By DIANE BOOTH

When you think of a hobby, you probably think of something that you enjoy doing in your spare time. But for one student, her hobby involves ancient brass engravings.

The student, who wishes to remain anonymous, has been collecting and studying ancient brass engravings for several years. She is particularly interested in the engravings from the 1100s to the 1500s, and has spent many hours examining the engravings and researching their significance.

The student has been able to find many of the engravings that she is interested in, but some are much harder to find. She has spent countless hours searching for these engravings, often in small, obscure locations.

Despite the challenges, the student said she finds the hobby rewarding. "It's like a puzzle," she said. "You never know what you're going to find next."

In addition to the hobby, the student is also a member of the Student Conservation Association, which helps to preserve and protect natural areas.

She encourages others to get involved in the hobby, and to think about how they can help to preserve these ancient engravings for future generations.

"It's important to learn about and appreciate this part of history," she said.

On January 31, 1958, Mahatma Gandhi, the father of India's independence movement, was assassinated. He was killed by a Hindu extremist who claimed to represent the Hindu nationalist movement. Gandhi was a symbol of non-violence and had been a leader in the Indian independence movement.

Gandhi was a charismatic leader who inspired millions of people around the world. He spent much of his life working for social justice and equality, and his teachings continue to be influential today.

But in his own words, "I was not a high-minded idealist. I was also almost sure that I would not succeed." Gandhi was the No. 1 leader for a generation of the Farmer's Work Committee, the traditionally planned graduation committee.

Originally the committee hoped to persuade the governor to appear through a personal appearance from Vice-Chancellor Janata Mall, but she failed to gain an audience. Specialization on what would require Reagan's decision to come be more focused on former Cal Poly Vice-President Harold Wilson, now an educational advisor.
SAC representative's duties questioned

The following letter was to be read at SAC Wednesday night. However, due to the actions of a few SAC members and the Chairman, the meeting was adjourned before this could be done. Therefore I would like to see it printed with the appeal to those who read it to take an interest in your student government. Watch what your representatives do and get involved with your school and/or in some other manner and make student government work for you.

The Commencement Arts and Humanities Council would like to bring to your attention a problem which we experienced this year which could have serious consequences in future years. This is the important issue of the SAC representative's relationship to the Student Council and his responsibilities to the Council. The experience of the Commencement Arts and Humanities Council may serve as an example. To explain the problems the Council has experienced we also wish to express our displeasure over the lack of information we have received concerning the issues before SAC this year as a result of what we consider an inadequate job of representation by one of our SAC representatives.

The unfortunate resignation of Maureen Malloy deprived the Council and the School of an active concerned SAC representative. Unfortunately, while Orel Fowler was active, her concern seemed to be lacking. This first became apparent during Fall quarter when he missed four Council meetings. This is a sufficient number to remove him from the Council. To avoid problems in an ill-defined area I merely asked him to improve his attendance which he did Winter Quarter. The problem appeared to have been solved without precipitating a crisis over Greg's status. Unfortunately, this was only temporary. May 1 marked the fourth time this quarter that Greg has missed a Council meeting. Almost all of these at the time the budget was being considered. Weekly to obtain some explanation from Greg at our meeting last night, the Council was again frustrated as Greg failed to show up.

It is perhaps unfortunate that the Council did not take action (continued on page I)

KCP rebuts candidate

In reply to Alan M. Field's letter to the editor, Tuesday, June 4, I would like to clarify KCPR Radio's position regarding electoral and political endorsements.

In his letter, Mr. Field, candidate for assembly in District, accuses KCPR, "the student radio station," of endorsing candidates regardless of their positions in the community or the university. Nor is it the position or privilege of the management of KCPR to support through editorializing any particular candidate or issue.

Any candidate is indeed newsworthy, and it is the aspiration of KCPR news to present election coverage in its proper perspective, unbiased and objectively, as it relates to KCPR's claim of non-commercial public radio.

Deborah L. Williams
General Manager, KCPR

Tickets for 68th Annual Commencement Available at EL CORRAL

SUNO: Up to 4 tickets, June 4 thru 7
Extra tickets, if available, on June 13.

public: As available - on first come basis, June 14. (Also, at stadium ticket booth on June 15, 10 am to 12 noon).

no admission into stadium without a ticket.

Tickets are available at the EL CORRAL PHOTOGRAPHY COUNTER.
A happy life is not built up of luxury abroad and pleasant holidays, but of little pleasantries noticed by the roadside, hidden away almost so that only those can see them who have God's peace and love in their heart; in one long sentimental stage of little joys, little whispers from the spiritual world, and little glimmers of sunshine on our daily work.

by Jerry Hernandez
History faculty axes Chicanos

Editor

Once again the administration of Cal Poly has shown some Chicanos the door.

Dr. Richard Orswold Del Castillo was notified Thursday that he will not be retained as of June, 1971. It was the "administrative opinion" of the tenured faculty of the History Department that Del Castillo is not qualified to teach in his field.

More specifically, Del Castillo was found to be lacking in the four points of two histori courses in particular: U.S. in World Affairs and History of American Democracy.

In an 11-1 vote, the tenured faculty of the department voted to terminate Del Castillo's position on the faculty despite the concerted efforts of many students to keep him here.

Despite a petition signed by many students attending to Del Castillo's competency, letters of protest and community support from parents with children here, the faculty "voted" him out.

How long shall discrimination and racism be carried out by this lily-white administration under the guise of "professional opinion." How long must a group of like personalities be allowed to chart the destinies of people they neither care for nor know are qualified to teach Anglo/American studies in the background of "professional opinion." How long must the tenured faculty members use the student evaluations to make their decision? If so, did they give any value to the positive evaluations? And while we are on the subject of student evaluations, since the History Department has not been able to produce teachers that can meet the needs of the College (and many Anglos), an injustice has been done to a college and we as students should not remain silent anymore.

It is the opinion of this writer that what is at stake is more than Del Castillo's job, career and life.

We must stop fearing new ideas and teaching methods. We have to begin taking our futures into our own hands.

Perhaps the History Department (tenured faculty) is caught maintaining high quality instruction in the department but it must understand that the high quality instruction it preaches has not been able to produce teachers that can meet the needs of Chicanos (nor many Anglos). An injustice has been done in a college and we as students should not remain silent anymore.

Men of people they neither care for nor know are qualified to teach Anglo/American studies. It is the opinion of this writer that what is at stake is more than Del Castillo's job, career and life.

It is the opinion of this writer that what is at stake is more than Del Castillo's job, career and life.

Meher Baba, after oneness in life ...

(continued from page 1)

Baba was able to communicate through various languages and alphabets. He always listened carefully to what was being said before expressing himself. He always expressed himself artistically and as if to build a bridge between the heart and the mind. In a single word, He always expressed himself artistically.

Baba's teachings are based on the idea of oneness. He taught that all creations are one and that the path to realization is through the knowledge of the self.

Baba's teachings are based on the idea of oneness. He taught that all creations are one and that the path to realization is through the knowledge of the self.

Baba's teachings are based on the idea of oneness. He taught that all creations are one and that the path to realization is through the knowledge of the self.

Baba's teachings are based on the idea of oneness. He taught that all creations are one and that the path to realization is through the knowledge of the self.

Baba's teachings are based on the idea of oneness. He taught that all creations are one and that the path to realization is through the knowledge of the self.

Baba's teachings are based on the idea of oneness. He taught that all creations are one and that the path to realization is through the knowledge of the self.

Baba's teachings are based on the idea of oneness. He taught that all creations are one and that the path to realization is through the knowledge of the self.

Baba's teachings are based on the idea of oneness. He taught that all creations are one and that the path to realization is through the knowledge of the self.

Baba's teachings are based on the idea of oneness. He taught that all creations are one and that the path to realization is through the knowledge of the self.

Baba's teachings are based on the idea of oneness. He taught that all creations are one and that the path to realization is through the knowledge of the self.

Baba's teachings are based on the idea of oneness. He taught that all creations are one and that the path to realization is through the knowledge of the self.

Baba's teachings are based on the idea of oneness. He taught that all creations are one and that the path to realization is through the knowledge of the self.

Baba's teachings are based on the idea of oneness. He taught that all creations are one and that the path to realization is through the knowledge of the self.

Baba's teachings are based on the idea of oneness. He taught that all creations are one and that the path to realization is through the knowledge of the self.

Baba's teachings are based on the idea of oneness. He taught that all creations are one and that the path to realization is through the knowledge of the self.

Baba's teachings are based on the idea of oneness. He taught that all creations are one and that the path to realization is through the knowledge of the self.

Baba's teachings are based on the idea of oneness. He taught that all creations are one and that the path to realization is through the knowledge of the self.

Baba's teachings are based on the idea of oneness. He taught that all creations are one and that the path to realization is through the knowledge of the self.

Baba's teachings are based on the idea of oneness. He taught that all creations are one and that the path to realization is through the knowledge of the self.

Baba's teachings are based on the idea of oneness. He taught that all creations are one and that the path to realization is through the knowledge of the self.

Baba's teachings are based on the idea of oneness. He taught that all creations are one and that the path to realization is through the knowledge of the self.

Baba's teachings are based on the idea of oneness. He taught that all creations are one and that the path to realization is through the knowledge of the self.

Baba's teachings are based on the idea of oneness. He taught that all creations are one and that the path to realization is through the knowledge of the self.

Baba's teachings are based on the idea of oneness. He taught that all creations are one and that the path to realization is through the knowledge of the self.

Baba's teachings are based on the idea of oneness. He taught that all creations are one and that the path to realization is through the knowledge of the self.

Baba's teachings are based on the idea of oneness. He taught that all creations are one and that the path to realization is through the knowledge of the self.

Baba's teachings are based on the idea of oneness. He taught that all creations are one and that the path to realization is through the knowledge of the self.

Baba's teachings are based on the idea of oneness. He taught that all creations are one and that the path to realization is through the knowledge of the self.

Baba's teachings are based on the idea of oneness. He taught that all creations are one and that the path to realization is through the knowledge of the self.

Baba's teachings are based on the idea of oneness. He taught that all creations are one and that the path to realization is through the knowledge of the self.

Baba's teachings are based on the idea of oneness. He taught that all creations are one and that the path to realization is through the knowledge of the self.

Baba's teachings are based on the idea of oneness. He taught that all creations are one and that the path to realization is through the knowledge of the self.

Baba's teachings are based on the idea of oneness. He taught that all creations are one and that the path to realization is through the knowledge of the self.

Baba's teachings are based on the idea of oneness. He taught that all creations are one and that the path to realization is through the knowledge of the self.

Baba's teachings are based on the idea of oneness. He taught that all creations are one and that the path to realization is through the knowledge of the self.

Baba's teachings are based on the idea of oneness. He taught that all creations are one and that the path to realization is through the knowledge of the self.

Baba's teachings are based on the idea of oneness. He taught that all creations are one and that the path to realization is through the knowledge of the self.

Baba's teachings are based on the idea of oneness. He taught that all creations are one and that the path to realization is through the knowledge of the self.

Baba's teachings are based on the idea of oneness. He taught that all creations are one and that the path to realization is through the knowledge of the self.

Baba's teachings are based on the idea of oneness. He taught that all creations are one and that the path to realization is through the knowledge of the self.

Baba's teachings are based on the idea of oneness. He taught that all creations are one and that the path to realization is through the knowledge of the self.

Baba...
Truman: political opportunist

by BOB GRANDFRAZIER

Harry Truman gave his own political fortunes a higher priority than he gave the national interest in order to win the 1948 presidential election. This is the conclusion drawn by Cal Poly history professor Dr. John Reinstein in his recently published book, "Truman: the Jewish Vote and the Creation of American Policy Regarding the Concept of a Jewish Homeland in Postwar Europe."

The book’s relevance to both national and international politics today is unquestionable. The issues which Truman addressed in his second presidency from 1945 to 1948, an officially recognized ten-year period, are as alive today as they were then.

The threat of an Arab oil embargo against the U.S. was similar to the one imposed last year because of American support of Israel, existed as early as 1948. Reinstein points out. This was a major concern of the State Department, which feared the diatribe Against Arabs might side with the Soviets, who would then be in a position to "out-America" the U.S.

While State Department officials maintained the Arab embargo was motivated by national security, White House aides feared it was "a negative campaign move to pressure Congress to build the antibomb. They urged him to consider the importance of Arab Jewry in the 1948 congressional elections. It was shortly before the elections that Truman made his first major pre-San Francisco decisions by ordering the establishment of a Jewish state in Palestine. Truman later based on his campaign commitment, however, on the Truman Library and personal interviews with Truman associates.

The book’s relevance to both national and international politics today is unquestionable. The issues which Truman addressed in his second presidency from 1945 to 1948, an officially recognized ten-year period, are as alive today as they were then.

The threat of an Arab oil embargo against the U.S. was similar to the one imposed last year because of American support of Israel, existed as early as 1948. Reinstein points out. This was a major concern of the State Department, which feared the diatribe Against Arabs might side with the Soviets, who would then be in a position to "out-America" the U.S.

While State Department officials maintained the Arab embargo was motivated by national security, White House aides feared it was "a negative campaign move to pressure Congress to build the antibomb. They urged him to consider the importance of Arab Jewry in the 1948 congressional elections. It was shortly before the elections that Truman made his first major pre-San Francisco decisions by ordering the establishment of a Jewish state in Palestine. Truman later based on his campaign commitment, however, on the Truman Library and personal interviews with Truman associates.

(continued from page 1)

A recent study of the evolution of the State Department's policy regarding the Jewish question was made by renowned scholar and Holocaust survivor Dr. Milton Steinberg. The book is "Truman: the Jewish Vote and the Creation of American Policy Regarding the Concept of a Jewish Homeland in Postwar Europe."

The book's relevance to both national and international politics today is unquestionable. The issues which Truman addressed in his second presidency from 1945 to 1948, an officially recognized ten-year period, are as alive today as they were then. The threat of an Arab oil embargo against the U.S. was similar to the one imposed last year because of American support of Israel, existed as early as 1948. Reinstein points out. This was a major concern of the State Department, which feared the diatribe Against Arabs might side with the Soviets, who would then be in a position to "out-America" the U.S.

While State Department officials maintained the Arab embargo was motivated by national security, White House aides feared it was "a negative campaign move to pressure Congress to build the antibomb. They urged him to consider the importance of Arab Jewry in the 1948 congressional elections. It was shortly before the elections that Truman made his first major pre-San Francisco decisions by ordering the establishment of a Jewish state in Palestine. Truman later based on his campaign commitment, however, on the Truman Library and personal interviews with Truman associates.

Reagan's speech

"I don't think I'd do it (pick Reagan) for political reasons..."

Senior Vice President and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said recently that the Soviet Union is happy with the Reagan administration. But the book's relevance to both national and international politics today is unquestionable. The issues which Truman addressed in his second presidency from 1945 to 1948, an officially recognized ten-year period, are as alive today as they were then. The threat of an Arab oil embargo against the U.S. was similar to the one imposed last year because of American support of Israel, existed as early as 1948. Reinstein points out. This was a major concern of the State Department, which feared the diatribe Against Arabs might side with the Soviets, who would then be in a position to "out-America" the U.S.

While State Department officials maintained the Arab embargo was motivated by national security, White House aides feared it was "a negative campaign move to pressure Congress to build the antibomb. They urged him to consider the importance of Arab Jewry in the 1948 congressional elections. It was shortly before the elections that Truman made his first major pre-San Francisco decisions by ordering the establishment of a Jewish state in Palestine. Truman later based on his campaign commitment, however, on the Truman Library and personal interviews with Truman associates.

Reagan's speech

"I don't think I'd do it (pick Reagan) for political reasons..."

Senior Vice President and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said recently that the Soviet Union is happy with the Reagan administration. But the book's relevance to both national and international politics today is unquestionable. The issues which Truman addressed in his second presidency from 1945 to 1948, an officially recognized ten-year period, are as alive today as they were then. The threat of an Arab oil embargo against the U.S. was similar to the one imposed last year because of American support of Israel, existed as early as 1948. Reinstein points out. This was a major concern of the State Department, which feared the diatribe Against Arabs might side with the Soviets, who would then be in a position to "out-America" the U.S.

While State Department officials maintained the Arab embargo was motivated by national security, White House aides feared it was "a negative campaign move to pressure Congress to build the antibomb. They urged him to consider the importance of Arab Jewry in the 1948 congressional elections. It was shortly before the elections that Truman made his first major pre-San Francisco decisions by ordering the establishment of a Jewish state in Palestine. Truman later based on his campaign commitment, however, on the Truman Library and personal interviews with Truman associates.

Reagan's speech

"I don't think I'd do it (pick Reagan) for political reasons..."

Senior Vice President and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said recently that the Soviet Union is happy with the Reagan administration. But the book's relevance to both national and international politics today is unquestionable. The issues which Truman addressed in his second presidency from 1945 to 1948, an officially recognized ten-year period, are as alive today as they were then. The threat of an Arab oil embargo against the U.S. was similar to the one imposed last year because of American support of Israel, existed as early as 1948. Reinstein points out. This was a major concern of the State Department, which feared the diatribe Against Arabs might side with the Soviets, who would then be in a position to "out-America" the U.S.

While State Department officials maintained the Arab embargo was motivated by national security, White House aides feared it was "a negative campaign move to pressure Congress to build the antibomb. They urged him to consider the importance of Arab Jewry in the 1948 congressional elections. It was shortly before the elections that Truman made his first major pre-San Francisco decisions by ordering the establishment of a Jewish state in Palestine. Truman later based on his campaign commitment, however, on the Truman Library and personal interviews with Truman associates.

Reagan's speech

"I don't think I'd do it (pick Reagan) for political reasons..."

Senior Vice President and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said recently that the Soviet Union is happy with the Reagan administration. But the book's relevance to both national and international politics today is unquestionable. The issues which Truman addressed in his second presidency from 1945 to 1948, an officially recognized ten-year period, are as alive today as they were then. The threat of an Arab oil embargo against the U.S. was similar to the one imposed last year because of American support of Israel, existed as early as 1948. Reinstein points out. This was a major concern of the State Department, which feared the diatribe Against Arabs might side with the Soviets, who would then be in a position to "out-America" the U.S.

While State Department officials maintained the Arab embargo was motivated by national security, White House aides feared it was "a negative campaign move to pressure Congress to build the antibomb. They urged him to consider the importance of Arab Jewry in the 1948 congressional elections. It was shortly before the elections that Truman made his first major pre-San Francisco decisions by ordering the establishment of a Jewish state in Palestine. Truman later based on his campaign commitment, however, on the Truman Library and personal interviews with Truman associates.
Ag-business major honored as top aggie in senior class

An agricultural business management major, active in student government here, has been named the outstanding senior in the School of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

John de Rutter was informed of his selection as outstanding senior at the annual leadership banquet held May 22.

A native of Hanford, de Rutter is chairman of the student council of the School of Agriculture and Natural Resources. He is a member of Alpha Gamma Rho fraternity, the Student Affairs Council and the dairy cattle judging team.

“Til means quite a bit to me and came as a complete surprise,” he said.

Also honored as outstanding seniors in the School of Agriculture and Natural Resources were Gary Cavilga and Garth Hokkansen.

Laser photos move student to build laser Holography, a relatively new scientific process, may in the future become important in such diversified areas as art, engineering and technology. This is the belief of one Cal Poly student involved in holography by showing him some holograms.

Nelson said that Dr. Ralph Wuerker, a physicist from Los Angeles, who holds a tremendous amount of knowledge in the field, fired up his interest in holography by showing him some holograms.

Nelson described the possibilities of using holography to preserve art objects, produce portraits of people and, in the areas of science, make precise measurements.

Accuracy is so great that a bullet can be measured and its movement recorded on a hologram. He even cited an example of measuring the growth of a mushroom.

Discussing the cost of getting into holography, Nelson said, “For $300, a person could get the bare essentials to make a 2-inch hologram of small objects. The quality wouldn’t be too good, but the person could learn the basics from it.”

Speaking of his plans for the future, Nelson described a pulse laser that he has been working on. The laser, about the size of a large telescope, cost approximately $50,000 with much of the material being donated by industry. With this piece of equipment, he hopes to look into possible applications of holography in engineering.

For information call 543-1011 or 543-9119

GRADUATES! take your family to Dine at

Phone 772-2096

LIT ALPINE

European cuisine
no surcharges

Phone 772-2096

MOVING?

25% Discount to all Cal Poly Students on any one way trailer

489-3113

Five Cities Rental

100 Traffic Way

Arroyo Grande

GRADUATES

You are cordially invited to share in a truly memorable experience

Dine with a spectacular view of the bay

The Castilian Room

San Luis Bay Inn

After dinner enjoy live entertainment & dining in the lounge

RSVP 685-2258
Pre-finals blues

Finally finals fly upon us. They sweep, really, like vultures to consume beings that are already dead after a whole quarter of studying. But that’s part of it all.

At this time of year when students are suffering from the pre-final blues, it is not uncommon to find them involved in the dual process of pushing themselves on the campus lawns and studying. It is also not uncommon to find them at a desk, sleeping, their heads buried in books, almost as if they think they can absorb all the knowledge osmotically.

An awful lot hinges on finals. Sometimes as much as 80 per cent of the grade in a course. Sometimes, though, students do not take the instructor warnings seriously. They do not start studying early in the quarter, as they were instructed. These are the students who usually set records for staying up all night for several consecutive days. They soak up more information than a sponge does spilled milk.

And speaking of spilled milk, there’s no sense crying. After all those hours of study it takes a little or lose time to spit back all that knowledge onto a test. It’s sort of anti-climactic. But when you think about it, finals are the world in small. Most things take a lot of time to prepare, but just a little time to execute.

And speaking of execution...
Track star may transfer

Coed hurdler in search of more coaching

by BOB COX

A world-class hurdler just doesn’t come along every day, ask any track coach.

Cal Poly has one but probably not for long.

Janet Bedford has been a National Junior Olympics and three Women’s AAU championships in the last five years. She was third in the college championships last month in Dallas, Texas, and remains a strong contender again in the AAU championships to be held in Bakersfield in June.

If she wins an AAU title, which she feels is a definite possibility, it would be a minor miracle of sorts. For Janet has an all-time coach.

Coed hurdle is real and the rub.

Janet is seriously considering granted by UCLA or Long Beach State next year, so that she can coaching in the world of track.

Janet Bedford was a 4.0, which she attributes to "invaluable." It might be noted, however, that she said, "The AAU, she feels, could be her big break. She likes the Bakersfield weather and the Typees attract the track at Memorial Stadium. And she is confident of her own ability.

"I’ve been watching the other girls’ times this year and then have been running fast at all. I think the best time is a 15.8 so something, which isn’t very good. I think I have a good chance of doing something there. But surely I’m not really

running this season because of an injured knee, which

hasn’t been fixed.

The AAU, she feels, could be

her big break. She likes the Typees attract the track at Memorial Stadium. And she is confident of her own ability.

"I’ve been watching the other girls’ times this year and then

have been running fast at all. I think the best time is a 15.8 so

something, which isn’t very good. I think I have a good chance of doing something there. But surely I’m not really

running this season because of an injured knee, which

hasn’t been fixed.

The AAU, she feels, could be

her big break. She likes the

Typees attract the track at Memorial Stadium. And she is confident of her own ability.

"I’ve been watching the other girls’ times this year and then

have been running fast at all. I think the best time is a 15.8 so

something, which isn’t very good. I think I have a good chance of doing something there. But surely I’m not really

running this season because of an injured knee, which

hasn’t been fixed.

The AAU, she feels, could be

her big break. She likes the

Typees attract the track at Memorial Stadium. And she is confident of her own ability.

"I’ve been watching the other girls’ times this year and then

have been running fast at all. I think the best time is a 15.8 so

something, which isn’t very good. I think I have a good chance of doing something there. But surely I’m not really

running this season because of an injured knee, which

hasn’t been fixed.

The AAU, she feels, could be

her big break. She likes the

Typees attract the track at Memorial Stadium. And she is confident of her own ability.

"I’ve been watching the other girls’ times this year and then

have been running fast at all. I think the best time is a 15.8 so

something, which isn’t very good. I think I have a good chance of doing something there. But surely I’m not really

running this season because of an injured knee, which

hasn’t been fixed.

The AAU, she feels, could be

her big break. She likes the

Typees attract the track at Memorial Stadium. And she is confident of her own ability.

"I’ve been watching the other girls’ times this year and then

have been running fast at all. I think the best time is a 15.8 so

something, which isn’t very good. I think I have a good chance of doing something there. But surely I’m not really

running this season because of an injured knee, which

hasn’t been fixed.

The AAU, she feels, could be

her big break. She likes the

Typees attract the track at Memorial Stadium. And she is confident of her own ability.

"I’ve been watching the other girls’ times this year and then

have been running fast at all. I think the best time is a 15.8 so

something, which isn’t very good. I think I have a good chance of doing something there. But surely I’m not really

running this season because of an injured knee, which

hasn’t been fixed.