Europe seeks students for summer jobs

It is not too late to make it to Europe for the rest of the summer. There are still two thousand job openings in resorts, hotels, and restaurants in Austria, Switzerland, France, and England.

Jobs are open to all students, whether they are on a non-profit basis or any job seeker who meets the qualifications. Wage range between $300 and $600 a month in addition to receiving free room and board.

Any interested students may obtain free information and a job application form by writing 806, Rev 173, Santa Barbara, Cal. Job processing can be speeded up by obtaining and holding a passport, a photo and a letter of recommendation from a teacher or school official.

Diablo plants seeks renewal of license

A subcommittee of the Advisory Committee on Reactor Safeguards will meet to review the application of Pacific Gas and Electric Company for a license to construct a Nuclear Power Plant Unit 1 and 2.

The meeting is scheduled to open at 1:00 p.m. on August 1 in the Gold Room of the Royal Inn at 214 Madonna Road.

Veterans who are attending colleges and universities are eligible for educational benefits. The VA Reps have improved delivery services.

The two winners, Mrs. Mary Tartaglia, the maintenance supervisor, and Miss Lopez, a physical education teacher, have been awarded the most modern-looking major-minor locker room in the state.

New associate dean

Simmons receives post

Dr. James E. Simmons will take over the duties as associate dean of the School of Communicative Arts and Humanities come Fall Quarter. Simmons has been a member of the English department since 1966. He spent the past year on sabbatical leave in Cambridge, England, working on post-doctoral studies of modern English literature. The new assignment is a return to associate dean responsibilities for Simmons. From mid-1966 through mid-1970, he was associate dean of Cal Poly’s School of Applied Arts, which was reorganized in 1970. Simmons will succeed Dr. Richard J. Dunton, Dunton, who has held the post for the past year, asked to be reassigned to full-time teaching duties in the Philosophy department.

In his new assignment, Simmons will work with Dr. Jon M. Erickson, dean of the School of Communicative Arts and Humanities, in the administration of the school’s programs. He will also teach on a half-time basis as a member of the English department faculty.

Simmons is a native of Anchorage, Alaska. After completing his bachelor’s degree at the University of California at Santa Barbara, he earned his master’s and doctor’s degree at the University of Wisconsin.

Simmons will succeed Dr. Richard J. Dunton, who has held the post for the past year, and will work with Dr. Jon M. Erickson, dean of the School of Communicative Arts and Humanities.

Schools look for bilinguals to help instruct

California is the first state in the nation to have a Bilingual Teaching Credential. The California Commission for Teacher Preparation and Licensure saw the need for bilingual teachers and drew up a proposal that was reviewed by more than 750 people. From this proposal, a special credential in Bilingual, Cross-Cultural Education was instituted.

The Commission approved guidelines for colleges and universities interested in developing Bilingual Cross-Cultural Teacher Preparation Programs.

An unpublished report to the legislature the commission reported that 50 institutions have stated their intention to develop the bilingual programs. It is expected that at least eight of these will be approved and ready to prepare specialist teachers by fall.

The lack of bilingual teachers was documented in a 1973 report issued by the Bilingual Cross-Cultural Committee. The report stated that in all minority groups except Oriental, the need for more bilingual teachers is severe.

The greatest need was recognized in the area of Spanish-speaking children. In this group, the number of qualified teachers needed is five times that of the current number.

Letters

Editor: I have been here at Cal Poly for three years and never before have I been so outraged as to hear that the Library is open only FOUR HOURS per weekend. The staff and faculty may only work at the library and think summer is to be a time for the beach and vacations but there are some students taking classes seriously and, personally, trying to graduate by August. The short weekday hours I can understand but the weekend has always been a time to work in a quiet library not filled with people reading the Newsag Daily (no offense intended). I feel I speak for a number of students trying to take advantage of the mellow summer atmosphere to do research work.

Sincerely,

Jeff Rosen

GSU: an issue of choice

The issue of whether a Gay Student Union should be allowed the status of a club on campus has been kept alive for over two years. Scott Plotkin, president of the Associated Students, Inc., feels that student government at Cal Poly will be within its rights to take this matter to the highest court in the State of California. For the student government to do anything less would be a dereliction of duty. The purpose of secondary education is to promote free thinking and responsibility. Yet the administrators who are entrusted to oversee this education are thwarting freedom of thought and freedom of choice.

One of the primary functions of student government is to serve as the voice of student opinions, yet this element is being limited by the over-riding decision of the administration. If the establishment of a GSU is allowed to be dropped by categorising it as a "specialised area" as Dean Chandler called it, student government will lose a measure of its semi-autonomy.

The question of the GSU receiving acceptance as a Cal Poly club should center upon no other criterion than if it fulfills a student need. The implications generally assumed about the actions of a GSU on campus are that it will serve to encourage what some people feel is a sexual abnormality or deviance. In recent years bisexuality and homosexuality have been re-evaluated by psychologists and many others in our society. There is a general trend toward considering this behavior as an alternative life-style rather than the manifestation of a sick psyche.

Students are able to exercise their freedom of choice by seeking membership in the various clubs on campus and should be allowed the same freedom to affiliate themselves with the GSU.

Sigma Delta Chi elects officers of new year

The campus chapter of the society of Professional Journalists, Sigma Delta Chi, has announced its new officers for the 1974-75 school year. The president-elect is Roger Vincent. The 20-year-old junior has been a member of the society since 1973. Vincent served a journalism internship on the Livermore Independent in Livermore, Calif., and recently completed a year-long stint as editor of Mustang Daily.

Newly-elected vice presidents of the Cal Poly chapter are Keith Eldridge and Mark Looker. Eldridge is concentrating his studies in broadcast journalism and sports director for radio station KVEC in San Luis Obispo.

Guitar speaks for Fahey

John Fahey’s music is undoubtedly his own. His being an original talent, guitar stylist, and tastemaker, leaves his performances without comparisons to be drawn or influences to be inferred.

Appropriately, his performance Saturday night in Chumash Auditorium before a half-capacity audience, was an unbuttoned, unbuttoned-looking Fahey, unshaved, in blue jeans, t-shirt under an unbuttoned, unbuttoned shirt, guitar in hand, while tennis shoes, and a shirt under an unbuttoned, unbuttoned shirt. He played without comparisons, as he lets the guitar speak to the audience for him.

Aside from some comic mumbling when he had tuning problems, he was silent during the entire show. His guitars seem to come close to playing themselves, and Fahey could probably deliver licks in his sleep. He keeps time in his head and fingers — his feet never move as most players’ do. This lack of movement seems dispassionate, but the sounds from his instrument betray his care for the music.

It is this care which has kept John Fahey from widespread acceptance — something he would probably shun anyway. For now, the public has accepted his followers, such as Leo Kottke, and the talented source is left to half-filled auditoriums in college towns.

Outdoor concert will present gospel music

Contemporary gospel music will be featured during an outdoor concert to be given at 7 p.m. on Monday, July 30, in the campus amphitheatre. Admission to the program, which is being presented by the Cal Poly Intervarsity Christian Fellowship Organisation, will be free.

Steve Gunderson, a spokesman for the organisation, said “New Song”, a contemporary gospel rock group composed of local college students, and the Nazarene Men’s Quartet will be featured.

Composed of San Luis Obispo residents, the quartet has gained recognition throughout central California. Its arrangements and singing style are patterned after those of the gospel quartets that became popular during all night singing “conventions” in the southeast United States in the 1950’s and 1960’s.

More than 400 Japanese young people who are visiting in San Luis Obispo will be guests at the concert, according to Gunderson. Control coast area residents are urged to bring blankets, lawn chairs and heavy clothing.

The amphitheatre is next to the Cal Poly Theatre near the intersection of Grand Ave. and Perimeter Rd.

One joint not to smoke

The constant-velocity joint, or “C-V.” It goes between the engine and the wheels on a Volkswagon. Oh, and they go out once in a while, too. If you go out in the middle of nowhere, there you are, stuck, right in the middle of nowhere. And that’s not the only way this could break your pocketbook. But, it is possible to avoid problems like this.

Proper and regular maintenance on your bug can get these problems before they become major repairs. The mechanics at BugWerks are fully qualified to do this kind of work, and they are good people, too.

Dr. Clyde Fisher, the acting vice-president for academic affairs for the last eight months at Cal Poly, will become the dean of the School of Science and Mathematics on July 31.

Announcement of Dr. Fisher’s new duties came from President Robert E. Kennedy. Kennedy praised Fisher for his excellent service to the university while the search was being conducted for a permanent vice-president for academic affairs.

Kennedy said, “Dr. Fisher was equal to a most difficult task of administering the academic programs of the university during a period of transition. His success in that assignment will certainly provide a strong foundation for the work of Dr. Hazil Jones, who will begin her duties as vice-president for academic affairs on August 13.”

Fisher is returning to his former duties as the dean of Cal Poly’s School of Science and Mathematics. Dr. Milo Wiston, the acting dean of Science and Mathematics for the past seven months will retire on August 21.

Students wishing to volunteer their time should call 444-6795 or go to RM. 117 in the University Union. You'll be gladly receiving volunteers can work with adults or children in physical therapy or working with teachers in the various classroom levels. Some of the classes include arts and crafts, basic language skills, English, woodshop, occupational therapy and the Friendship band.

Fisher’s service to the university while the new duties came from President Kennedy. Kennedy said, “Dr. Fisher was equal to a most difficult task of ministering the academic programs for 12 years. Before assuming his duties as the acting vice-president last December, he had been the dean of the science and mathematics programs for 13 years. Prior to becoming dean of the School of Science and Mathematics, Fisher served in various administrative assignments.

Ted Tanberg, administrator of UCCC, said when volunteers come to the facility, they are introduced to all the programs. “We show them the facility, the patients and the programs, so they know what they are getting into,” he said.

“When we get a group of volunteers, we train them as a group,” Tanberg said. “They learn responsibilities and they pick an area where they feel most comfortable.”

Tanberg emphasized the center does not push volunteers to work in an area where they are not comfortable. “It would be defeating the whole purpose of the volunteer program,” he said.

Tanberg emphasized the center provides a home for over 70 mentally retarded and physically handicapped in San Luis Obispo, people there, from ambulatory to institutional. “We have a change with new patients coming in, we sometimes need to change the programs. If none of the programs fit a patient, then we provide a program for him,” he said.

Students wishing to volunteer their time should call 444-6795 or go to RM. 117 in the University Union. You'll be gladly receiving...
Recreation equality

Co-eds desire intramurals
by CONNIE PITTS

The feminist cries of equal opportunity for women’s recreation are being heard on the Cal Poly campus.

The Women’s Recreation Association is attempting to get an intramural sports program established for Cal Poly co-eds.

Friday’s feature film

For an inexpensive evening of entertainment, why not take in “They Shoot Horses, Don’t They?” this Friday-night’s feature film. For added entertainment, parts seven and eight of “The Creeps” with Bela Lugosi will be shown.

“They Shoot Horses, Don’t They?” involves the social costs of the 1930’s great Depression. Driven by a desire for fame and fortune, the outcasts seek their goals in a grueling test of endurance called the dance-marathon. The contestants, at first sympathetic, become increasingly grotesque as their strength and dreams both slowly ebb into nothingness.

The movie, presented by the Associated Students Inc. Films Committee, will be shown at 8 p.m. in the University Union. Admission price for this film is 75 cents.

Dr. Robert Mott, department chairman of Men’s Physical Education, is discussing the aspects of using some of the facilities of the Max’s Gym. Miss Lopez said WRA also would hope to use Cran dall Gym for their intramural activities. The enthusiastic co-ed said, “We would like to use Cran dall Gym because it’s there to use. We’d be foolish to ignore the opportunity.”

If the WRA is successful in its attempts to make intramural sports available to women, the program will offer a variety of activities. In the fall, volleyball and basketball will find their way into the athletic scene. Miss Lopez said she hopes that basketball will be made co-educational. Tournaments will be set up for both sports.

Every female student at Cal Poly is automatically a member of WRA. Each association encourages all co-eds to participate in the intramural program if it is established.

Miss Lopez said, “We’re doing everything we can to get a women’s intramural program on campus. We really want to get it started!”

With an attitude like that, Denni Lopez and her followers will probably see their hopes turn into reality.

The movie, presented by the Associated Students Inc. Films Committee, will be shown at 8 p.m. in the University Union. Admission price for this film is 75 cents.

Mustangs face Boise in fall football opener
by CONNIE PITTS

The Mustangs face Boise State, the team that destroyed their chance for a perfect season last year, for their first game on September 14. The 44-17 defeat of the previous season remains a bitter reminder for the Cal Poly gridiron. The Mustangs have an advantage over the Broncos, though, since they will be playing on their home ground this time.

If Cal Poly wins the Boise State game, there will still be obstacles to overcome in the next three games. The Cal State Fullerton game on September 21 and the Fresno State game on September 28, both away, will prove to be tough for the Mustang team.

The fourth game, against UC Riverside on October 5, will be the game to watch. A defeat for the Mustangs in this home battle would be a double loss, since they would lose their chance for the California Collegiate Athletic Association Conference title and break their winning streak of straight CCAA Conference victories.

The rest of the season should prove to be easier for the Mustangs, with the fifth game against Cal Poly Pomona on October 12 being against Cal State Northridge on October 30.

Homecoming is on November 2 against the University of Nevada. November 15 is the date for the Idaho State game in Pocatello, Idaho. The Mustangs find their opponent is Cal State Hayward on November 25 there. The season ends with the Cal State Los Angeles game on November 30 there.
