New entrance not finished yet; impact statement causes delay

May 1975 is the completion date set for Highland Dr., the new entrance to the campus. The road, which crosses both Sanjon and Britania creeks, was to be opened this fall for campus traffic. The year delay will cost nearly $200,000.

The cost is a result of design modifications required by the State Department of Fish and Game which were not specified to the state designers until after construction had started.

Peter Phillips, facilities planner for Cal Poly, said that the Chancellor's Office filed an Environmental Impact Report with the State Department of Fish and Game, which sealed in an envelope with other sealed copies of the reports. A copy of this report was sent to the Fish and Game wardens for this area, informed the designers after construction began that "any work done in any streambed, whether flowing or stranded, whether temporarily or permanently, had to be approved by the State Department of Fish and Wildlife.

"The report had to go to the Fish and Game wardens for this area, informed the designers that any work done in any streambed, whether flowing or stranded, whether temporarily or permanently, had to be approved by the State Department of Fish and Game.

The plans for the new entrance include a bridge spanning the creek. The design for the bridge involves a hydraulic design that was not specified until after construction had started.

The process for approval of the bridge design involves a lengthy and bureaucratic procedure.

Gayle Rising, who is the executive director of the Student Union Craft Center, said that the new entrance is not yet finished and that the design is still subject to approval by the State Department of Fish and Game.

The bridge design is not yet finalized and the process for approval is still ongoing. The State Department of Fish and Game has not yet approved the design for the bridge.

Student loans taxed in part by government

Many college graduates who have taken out state and national student defense loans during their college careers have received a surprise from the State Department of Fish and Game. A portion of their loans have been taxed.

The portion of the loans being taxed is $1 per $100. Students have received a letter from the State Department of Fish and Game with instructions on how to pay the tax.

Lawrence Wolf, director of financial aid at Cal Poly, said that no graduate student has come to him about the tax.

"I suspect the graduates are going directly to their Congressmen for action," Wolf said.

Senator John V. Tunney (D-Calif.) introduced an amendment in the Senate to disapprove the tax and a representative from the California Legislature will be assigned to look into the matter.

The process for approval of the loan is not yet finalized and the State Department of Fish and Game has not yet approved the loan.
Tips for used-car buying announced

Many people are hesitant when it comes to buying a used car. Often times, the buyer doesn't know enough about the car before he hands over the cash. Most used cars are "as is" with no guarantees at all, according to State Attorney General Evelle J. Younger. Sometimes the used car has a short guarantee, or a guarantee with limited meaning.

Before buying a used car, have it checked first by a competent mechanic. The fee is usually quite small for such a service. Examine the car yourself, and look for signs of wear and age or accidents.

When looking over the car, look for doors that do not fit properly. Check for rust and dents along floor mats, repainted areas along body sides and "silly scum" in the radiator area.

Often the salesman will tell you something about the condition of the car. Whatever he tells you about the car's condition or repair, ask him to put it in writing. If he does not, don't buy the car.

The reputation of the dealer is even more important in regard to purchasing a used car than a new one. Dealers who sell new cars usually have a greater investment in their business.

The bill is now in the conference committee. Tunney said that the next step is to get the bill through the conference committee. The bill also provides that no taxes be collected on amounts cancelled, and that authority reserved to those borrowers previously taxed.

Tunney added that none of the loan recipients had any idea they would be liable when they received the loans. "To demand payment would be an outrageous tax injustice and would work a severe financial hardship on many young people," he said.

The bill exempts any loan agreement from the state's tax code, with tax bills ranging as high as 31 percent.

The bill also provides that the state's tax code be revised in order to prevent the state's tax code from being used to collect taxes on amounts cancelled, and that authority reserved to those borrowers previously taxed.

Tunney added that none of the loan recipients had any idea they would be liable when they received the loans. "To demand payment would be an outrageous tax injustice and would work a severe financial hardship on many young people," he said.

Governor ponders pot

Marijuana reform legislation which would reduce the penalty for possession of small amounts of marijuana has passed both houses of the state legislature and is now on Gov. Reagan's desk awaiting his signature. Letters, telegrams and phone calls to Reagan urging him to sign the bill are being requested by members of the National Organisation for the Reform of Marijuana Laws (NORML). The bill, sponsored by Assemblyman Alan Sieroty, must be signed or vetoed within 20 days and is the only marijuana reform legislation for possession penalties that can become law in California this year.

NORML suggests contacting the governor by one of the following:
1) Writing a letter to Governor Reagan, The Governor's Office, State Capitol, Sacramento, CA, 95814; or,
2) Telephoning the governor's office at (916) 446-4711; or,
3) Sending a Public Opinion Message via Western Union. A toll-free number is available at (600) 646-4100 for a 16-word message at a $1.00 charge.

California is one of three states which continue to treat possession by first-time offenders as a felony. The existing law sets life imprisonment for possession of one marijuana cigarette by a third-time offender.

A $4,000 award will be given to students of the school of Architecture and Environmental Design at Cal Poly as a result of a June festival in Los Angeles centered around the work of the late architect Frank Lloyd Wright. Four men and four women will be selected from 19 finalists, each to be a recipient of a $500 grant. The method of selection of those to receive grants will begin with application forms presently available in the office of the Assistant Dean of Architecture and Environmental Design, J. H. Evans. A faculty committee will choose approximately 18 finalists based on the applicants' needs, interests, and personal concerns.

Following this elimination, a jury composed of members of the secretesarys association will interview prospective recipients from which eight will be chosen.

A tentative date of Nov. 22 has been named for interviewing of the finalists.

They just gotta get better

Poor record is an equally poor indication of grid strength

It's a Christmas-cushioned January present. The Mustangs are going into the 1974 season and it's time to do a pre-season forecast.

According to the results of those two contests, the Mustang-dining is nearly as bad as the Monday morning forecast.

But those two showdowns are no way to pick up the season. In fact, if the Mustangs were models for a busy magazine, a peak-a-boos for them would probably consist of a picture of their ankles bared.

The Mustangs who lost those games to Boise State and Pullman aren't the same ones who'll be on the field for the rest of the season. Can't be. There must have been something modern the Mondays acting as impresarios.

The Mustangs have the talent to win their rich straight CCCAA championship. And they most likely will.

The key asset for Cal Poly in the quest for No. 6 can't be found by Pete Kino.

The year that he won the starting quarterback job was a good indication that coach Joe Harper plans to get his Mustangs back to the infantry route rather than emulating the strong air attack of last season.

It was kind of ilk a half-way punch Cal Poly has enough depth than any backfield we've seen. However, we have probably the most inexperienced team of all.

The defense resembles Gerald Ford in a lot ways. They're inexperienced. And they demonstrated a tendency in the last two games to grant opposing running backs a full pardon when they carry the ball into Mustang territory. They've given up an average of over 250 yards per game on the ground.

The Cal Poly soccer team will play Pacific Christian tomorrow at 2 p.m. The Mustangs are very good. They did have people who have the ability to do the job."

Maybe. But it seems as though they've yet to punch in. However, with line backers like Jeff Van Dyck and Chris Fuller, the Mustangs will be out to improve. Bobbben back-up is Cliff Johnson. Rocky Haauer and Bobbie Lana, defensive front semi, are expected to do all the rest.

The Mustangs have returned for another year, 1974. coaches Larry Beaton Four newcomers round out the squad, four members who have turned out for the Cal Poly women's soccer team in hopes of making the squad that will play Cal Poly Pomona in the season opener, Oct. 13.

The team, coached by Ann Wingfield, will be facing defending NCAA champions, the University of California at Davis. The Mustangs will be at home in the Crammond Gym.

Three players from last year's team have returned for another season and Coach Wingfield is being assisted by two players from the Cal Poly men's soccer team - Chip Weawerg and Kirk Haauer. They are the ones, says Ms. Wingfield, "who'll be on the field for the rest of the season opener."

The opener will be at Crammond Gym Saturday, Oct. 13 at 11 a.m.

Women get set for volleyball season opener

Some 48 enthusiastic women have turned out for the Cal Poly women's volleyball team in hopes of making the squad that will play Cal Poly Pomona in the season opener, Oct. 13.

The team, coached by Ann Wingfield, will be facing a tough inter-collegiate schedule, including games with four nationally ranked teams. Two of these games, with Long Beach State and University of California at Irvine, will be played at home in the Crammond Gym.

Soccer seasons trend in the Mustangs' favor. The opener was one of their two contests with the Pomona Broncos last season. They lost both games and are looking forward to the season opener. The opener will be played at Crammond Gym Saturday, Oct. 14 at 1 p.m.
