University gets windfall

by FREDY VULIN

A total of 4.6 million will be allocated to the California State University and Colleges, and how and when it will be done are two questions that remain unanswered.

The money was made available by Assembly Bill 3188 which provides for state financing of "instructionally related activities" throughout the 19 campus system. The bill was signed into law by Gov. Reagan in the last days of the legislative session.

AB 3188 authorizes the Chancellor of the C.C.R. to be consulted with the University of California which is not covered in the bill. Glenn Dumke, to develop program to distribute the money.

It also requires that the Chancellor consult with "prescribed organizations regarding such a program." Dean of Students Everett Chandler believes this will include the statewide Academic Senate and the group representing the student body president in the system.

University President Robert E. Kennedy is optimistic that Chandler and A.S. President Scott Plotkin will be chosen to serve on the Chancellor's committee.

Chandler feels the committee will decide that certain activities will be financed completely by the state while others will be split between the various campuses and the state.

As to when the committee will meet is somewhat vague. The Dean of Students received a memo from Dumke stating that a committee would gather "soon" to hammer out an agreement. Included in AB 3188 is an "instructionally related activities" are: intercollegiate athletics, radio, television, film, music and dance performances, drama and musical productions, art exhibits and film in connection with degree programs. Cal Poly has none, publications and forensics.

In addition to these specific, AB 3188 also allows for general definitions:

"Activities which are considered to be essential to a quality educational program and are important instructional experience for any student enrolled in the respective program may be considered instructionally related activities.

Also: "Activities associated with other instructional areas which are consistent with purposes included in the above may be added as they are identified." A broad definition of instructional related activities is also given at the beginning of the fall. This will give the president of each university a hand in deciding the definition.

"Those activities and instructional experiences which are at least partially sponsored by an academic discipline or department and which are in the judgment of the president of a particular campus, with the approval of the trustees, integral related to its formal degree program are considered instructional related activities.

A good point, at least for students, is that fees may be reduced by as much as 50 per cent of statement payments for certain activities during the winter, Thanksgiving, but before the end of the quarter, students at each of these departments will have the freedom to determine by how much fees will be reduced.

Poly student dies during jogging class

A freshman student collapsed during a Health Education class Monday morning, and was pronounced dead at Sierra Vista Hospital, according to Bobby Miles, director of Cal Poly's Health Services.

Janet L. Penfold, 18, of Norbridge, was a participant in a physical fitness jog—and-walk expert at the campus track. She had a voluntary portion of the class following the jog.

The Poly medical staff was summoned, but student- mouth respiration was administered, and a rescue squad was called.

She was taken by ambulance to Sierra Vista, where further resuscitation efforts were made.

Janet was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ted E. Penfold, and graduated from Chatsworth High School in Northridge.

She entered Cal Poly for the first time this quarter as a freshman in the Child Development program.

Arlo Guthrie slated to begin concert season

Baring another unexpected cancellation, the Cal Poly concert season will finally begin on Saturday, October 26, with Arlo Guthrie. The concert is slated for 7:00 p.m. in the gym.

Most reserved tickets have already been sold. Tickets for unreserved general admission seats, however, are still available. The remaining unreserved seats are priced at $2.00 for students, and faculty, and $4.00 for the general public.

Tickets for the Guthrie concert may be purchased at the Student Union, or at a number of downtown locations, including: Music, Music's, King and Queen Sunnies Mountain Sports, and the Mustang Market.

Guthrie, the son of folkänger Woody Guthrie, came to prominence after the release of his "Alice's Restaurant." The subsequent movie of the same title insured Guthrie's position as one of the more popular figures in the music industry today.

Guthrie's most recent single, a version of Stevie Grossman's "The City of New Orleans," cracked the top of the pop charts and helped to further his reputation.

Extra students: budget revision

Although budget revisions are common procedure in order to cover enrollment increases in previous years, Pro-Knight projections, Kennedy said granting of the revision in advance was unusual. Normally, allocations are based on the Fall Quarter census date on October 17. This year, however, the request was unusual.

The funds will be divided among several state academic departments with significant enrollment increases. According to registration day figures for Fall Quarter, funds will be available for faculty positions and Spring quarters, fee-supported student services, operating expenses and for technical, clerical and student assistants.

Old age problem not solved yet!

With nine fraternities involved at Cal Poly the question of how minors can obtain drinks comes up. In 1968, President Kennedy met with representatives of the various fraternities.

The main benefit of recognizing fraternities is the availability of facilities for activities. If a fraternity were not recognized it would have to turn in a year-end report and have a copy of its constitution and bylaws on file at the University. Kennedy felt that the general make-up of Cal Poly student was a middle-class background, and that it was, in fact, a "People's College." He thought the students of that time, and today, were too smart and socially aware to believe that only a middle-class background could be recognised as equal.

According to Kennedy, the major obstacle against the original recognition of fraternity was that all recognized organizations had to keep some funds in the A.S. accounts. The fact that they would resemble that because they needed ready money for household expenses, Kennedy concluded, was a separate set of guidelines for the total operations of fraternities.

An objection that the faculty members had at that time against fraternity recognition was that, whenever it would become loyal to such other than in local individual schools department a 1970 issue of Mustang Daily reports.

However, five fraternities did receive recognition. According to Dean Deitker, and members of the four houses that did not receive recognition had kept some funds in the A.S. accounts.

Fraternities have never hidden the fact that alcohol is a part of their lives, and usually members can drink on campus without too much trouble. Kennedy said that he disapproves of alcohol, and he feels this can be gained in a place of his own.

In many places, he feels that there doesn't see any real advantage to drinking, especially for being in a situation where, when constant contact with people is available.

Kennedy feels that certain "fraternity" armament is causing a fantastic problem for the campus and community in allowing minors to obtain alcohol there. He thinks they are not able to have the Alcohol Control Board move in on them, and that if they did, the members would do without. Therefore, it is not that the fraternities don't serve alcohol, it's just that a licensed bar or restaurant must be there who would be responsible for the alcohol not served to minors. Chandler explained that the school of certain liabilities.

Kennedy said, "Until these regulations change the law, it's our responsibility not to set up a situation where alcohol is in a position of jeopardy because of peer pressure forcing them to drink. And I don't think it has ever made secret the fact that alcohol isn't necessary for me to use alcohol as a stimulant. For example, when I'm not drinking, it isn't necessary for me to use alcohol as a stimulant."
Sociology censorship?

Editor:
I have enjoyed my work at Cal Poly, and I treasure the many friends it has been my good fortune to know on this campus during my six quarters of teaching as a "lecturer" in sociology. Student evaluations of my performance have been generally favorable. Also, in the absence of any tangible moments from the tenure family I consider that, too, found my teaching satisfactory. Why, then, was I not rehired? I can only speculate but I'm beginning to believe the tenure family may be less tolerant of political disagreement than I naively imagined.

Until January 1974, it was generally assumed I would apply for the vacancy resulting from the resignation of one of my colleagues. (I did in fact apply). Two events occurred in January. The administration cut a position from the Social Science Department. Around the same time, the department head, Dr. Mahmud Hariri, informed Bradford Smith, assistant professor of sociology, that he would not sign the routine order for two textbooks that Prof. Smith planned to use in his introductory classes. This was by no means a case of censorship according to my learned colleague; it was merely that the books were inappropriate.

The campus administrative manual requires a signature from the department head on texts ordered through the campus bookstore. He said that he could not in good conscience "approve" these books. (The texts in question were Robinson & Davis, "The Halls of Yearning" and Edwards, "The Capitalist System").

The untenured faculty in the department held an informal meeting in January, at which we agreed that textbook censorship was improper. Prior to the next departmental meeting, I distributed a resolution suggesting a change in procedure for ordering texts. I believed that the existing policy was more vigorous and that of course, it would be corrected. We were never allowed to vote on the resolution. During the rest of the school year, I raised the issue of censorship as often as possible during faculty meetings but because of the many weighty matters before us, there was never enough time to vote on the issue. (Partly through my initiative, the local chapter of the United Professors of California did ask the university administration to end book censorship).

(Partly through my initiative, the local chapter of the United Professors of California did ask the university administration to end book censorship).

It was possible also that I offended some sensitive colleagues by the enthusiasm of my own departmental and student efforts to restore the position cut from the Social Science Department. I was the faculty advisor to the Social Science Club when it circulated a petition protesting the larger class sizes that were occurring. In addition, I supported club members when they met with the acting school dean, and participated in preliminary meetings at which students presented a demonstration to take place during the June 18 commencement speech of Gov. Ronald Reagan. (The students won; as soon as the administration found out a demonstration was planned, it blacked down and immediately restored the faculty position).

Can it be that the three tenure sociologists in the department who were present last summer believe in textbook censorship? Most of my untenured colleagues question this policy. Unfortunately, they may not voice their true feelings because of a paranoia of reprisal.

Besides the above, I am going to "The American Sociologist", the "Newsletter" of the United Marxist Social Scientists, the American Association of University Professors, and various newspapers. I invite the campus administrative officers to send in their rebuttals.

In the nature of the case, it is difficult to prove I was not rehired for political reasons. It is not difficult to prove textbook censorship is alive and well at Cal Poly. The fact censorship is still official policy, explicitly supported by University President Robert Kennedy, is asking the AAUP to investigate this matter and to issue a formal censure against the blatant disregard of academic freedom by the administrative officers of the avenue-garde university.

Textbook censorship has no place in any institution of higher education.

Child's center has openings

A few openings are still available for pre-school child care on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons at the campus children's center.

The program is offered as pre-school education for children of the campus community with registration fees being based on a scale corresponding to the parent's monthly income.

For more information contact Alveah Davis at 844-7212 or drop by Sierra Hall during regular school hours.

Unwind Sundays with Coffee House

Whether the spotlight falls on a strumming guitarist or a solo singer, Coffee House possesses a quiet, casual atmosphere in which to unwind on a Sunday night.

Featuring four times a quarter in the University Union’s Market House at 8pm, Coffee House brings together mellow music from San Luis Obispo’s talented with easier and mellow guitarists or a solo instrument.

According to Special Events Committee Chairman Fred Strickland, “we listen to anybody, regardless of instrument or music.” He added that booking agents for San Luis Obispo are usually for the upcoming Coffee House schedule.

The committee welcomes new talent and holds auditions at its weekly meeting on Monday at 8pm in U.U. 817D. According to Strickland, “we listen to anybody, regardless of instrument or music.”

Combining veteran performers with newer discoveries, the upcoming Coffee House schedule for October will be Jam Night. Such popular returnees as guitarist Michael Sheehy, songwriters Kathy Proebstel and the piano-drum combination of John Harvey and Nick Alexander are tentatively set for appearances.

Anyone with questions or comments can contact Strickland in the Activities Planning Center at 947-4707.

The average Navy Pilot isn’t.

No man who has mastered the flying skills it takes to fly and land on a ship at sea can be called an average pilot. And the sense of accomplishment and satisfaction that he enjoys are also above average. Which is only right. For the man who would go places as a Naval Aviator must pass through the most challenging and demanding training program to be found anywhere.

From Aviation Officer Candidate School through Flight Training to the day he is awarded the golden Wings, he is trained, driven, pushed and tested again. And for good reason.

The Navy has learned that without the will to succeed, no man can be successful.

Be Someone Special. Fly Navy.

The Navy Officer Information Team will be at the Placement Center Oct. 7-11 from 10 A.M. to 2 P.M.

The Mustang Daily made an error in Ray King Mackenzie’s column yesterday. The word homosexual was changed to homosexsual. The sentence should have read:

“We are not trying to recruit homosexual students. But we are trying to let them know their status (homosexual) is not a failing of their nature; that they are capable of leading a normal life as a non-visible minority on this campus. We are trying to make human beings realize they belong to this earth.”
