Thoughts about life subject of Mary Kennedy's poetry

Yes, the people and your ways
You comfort me as I move among you.

Day by day.

by JANET MCBRIEN

Poetry for Mary Kennedy is a means of communication.

"It helps me sort out my thoughts," said the wife of Cal Poly president Robert E. Kennedy.

"People use many symbols to communicate," she continued. "I just happen to have chosen words as my symbols."

Mrs. Kennedy writes about personal things, the conflict of feelings and emotions that arise from day-to-day living, and the asking and answering of private questions.

"My poems are very personal," said Mrs. Kennedy. "Sometimes it can be sort of risky, sharing something like that."

On Tuesday Mrs. Kennedy took the risk and shared her poems with the public for the first time. With the Cal Poly Women's Club for an audience, she read excerpts that she had composed over a span of four decades.

The poetry program was a slide presentation by communications instructor Helen Kelley. Nature, children, landscapes and solitary men and women were the subjects of the slide presentations that set the mood for the poetry reading which followed.

"The words and the pictures are just part of the same thing—communication," explained Mrs. Kennedy.

Sitting quietly on a stool in front of the group gathered in Tenaya Lounge to hear her speak, Mrs. Kennedy reminisced about the 40 years she has been writing poetry.

"I've been writing things down for someone now," she said. "Somewhere along the line someone was nice enough to call it poetry."

"Mostly my poems reflect the day-to-day conflict within me. As I tripped or wedged or did any other number of the endless solitary jobs we all have, I would have to sort out what I was feeling and use that as a better way to phrase something."

Mary Kennedy admitted wryly, "I guess I was trying to establish my own identity."

The humor and sensitiveness of the writer's personality came through in her poetry.

Willing to laugh at herself, some of Mrs. Kennedy's poems are humorous examples of her frustration with a stylized verse. An expressive example is, "For laughingomatere, I don't give a damasket."

Other poems reflect Mrs. Kennedy's faith in God, her interest in children and her concern for the beginning of misunderstandings and wars.

Mrs. Kennedy believes that her poetry clarifies and reflects the period and circumstances during which it was written. Her faith in the continuity of life is expressed in the line, "The smaller things bespeak a pattern for the bigger..."

The poems Mrs. Kennedy chose to read last Tuesday night were the ones that survived constant revision.

"As you go over your attitude you realize that it'd be nice to save some thoughts in some form to hand on to your children. Guess that's a part of why I save what I write," she said.

"Sometimes I find it hard to take myself too seriously," she said, "but writing poetry is a harmless pastime that helps me communicate with myself and others."
On the early hours after John Holley's death, sensitive persons, "considerate of the sufferings of his family, kept a silence compassionate. But those who knew John, I am sure, may have a desire to cry out in grief, to cancel classes, to fly flags low. That feeling weighs on that I not only knew John, I loved him. He was my student more than one, his sensitivity in the needs of others, his refined mors: sens, the way in which he used very ordinary mental powers to do very excellent things surpassed the accomplishments of many more brilliant students intent on their future careers. A limit on my own career, I did not neglect to note the last time I saw him crossing the street: 'I love you, John, you are a beautiful person!!!' Was he a hero? A giant? No, not at all, and love you, John, you ara anawn him crowing the 'treat "I neglect to call out the last time I

Intend on their future careers. Mm. Ha was my atudant mora that la the aadnaaa of It all. Why la aaamad compaaalonata. But

Faculty Comment

Teacher praises Holley

On the early hours after John Holley's death, sensitive persons, "considerate of the sufferings of his family, kept a silence compassionate. But those who knew John, I am sure, may have a desire to cry out in grief, to cancel classes, to fly flags low. That feeling weighs on that I not only knew John, I loved him. He was my student more than one, his sensitivity in the needs of others, his refined mors: sens, the way in which he used very ordinary mental powers to do very excellent things surpassed the accomplishments of many more brilliant students intent on their future careers. A limit on my own career, I did not neglect to note the last time I saw him crossing the street: 'I love you, John, you are a beautiful person!!!' Was he a hero? A giant? No, not at all, and love you, John, you ara anawn him crowing the 'treat "I neglect to call out the last time I

Intend on their future careers. Mm. Ha was my atudant mora that la the aadnaaa of It all. Why la aaamad compaaalonata. But

Amnesty for those who stayed

Editor: Ma. Patricia Rimon put forth the question "Is it right to punish people for not killing?" Let us rephrase the question and ask her, "If we have no unconditional amnesty for those who, instead of staying home to fight the war, they say, to obey the law and to "pursue your patriotic duty." Courage to them is fighting a war for their country, whether it is a just war or not, running from this "moral obligation" can only be labeled cowardice.

But really, isn't it courageous to follow the dictates of your conscience - to do as you know you must, despite what laws or conventions may say? Yes, if a man fought in a war that was not just. It was a war that did not go to the dodgers who didn't have the courage of their convictions, it was a war because inside himself he knew that this was what he must do, not because of the coercion and compulsion inherent in the draft laws, then he was cited in courage.

Steve Pietrolongo

wines to hold first meeting

The Cal Poly Student Wive Club will hold its first organizational meeting this year Thursday, at 7:30 p.m. in RM-315 of the Ag-Enter Building.

Editor: Thursday, Oct. 3, Ms. Simon of the Gold Star Parents for Amnesty addressed a small audience in Chumash Auditorium on the topic of "Unconditional Amnesty vs. Conditional Amnesty." The talk was followed by a brisk discussion period, during which several persons voiced their feelings on the issue (and one quite emotionally so).

I came from the experiences with a feeling that nagged at the corners of my mind. What was the real issue involved there, the unspoken undercurrent which ran through the audience as surely it must run through all those who ever discuss amnesty? It was the question of courage. It would seem that those who oppose amnesty, so fiercely and emotionally, seek to force their definition of 'courage' onto everyone else. It is courageous, they say, to obey the law and to "pursue your patriotic duty." Courage to them is fighting a war for their country, whether it is a just war or not, running from this "moral obligation" can only be labeled cowardice.

But really, isn't it courageous to follow the dictates of your conscience - to do as you know you must, despite what laws or conventions may say? Yes, if a man fought in a war that was not just. It was a war that did not go to the dodgers who didn't have the courage of their convictions, it was a war because inside himself he knew that this was what he must do, not because of the coercion and compulsion inherent in the draft laws, then he was cited in courage.

Steve Pietrolongo

wines to hold first meeting

The Cal Poly Student Wive Club will hold its first organizational meeting this year Thursday, at 7:30 p.m. in RM-315 of the Ag-Enter Building.

Editor: Thursday, Oct. 3, Ms. Simon of the Gold Star Parents for Amnesty addressed a small audience in Chumash Auditorium on the topic of "Unconditional Amnesty vs. Conditional Amnesty." The talk was followed by a brisk discussion period, during which several persons voiced their feelings on the issue (and one quite emotionally so).

I came from the experiences with a feeling that nagged at the corners of my mind. What was the real issue involved there, the unspoken undercurrent which ran through the audience as surely it must run through all those who ever discuss amnesty? It was the question of courage. It would seem that those who oppose amnesty, so fiercely and emotionally, seek to force their definition of 'courage' onto everyone else. It is courageous, they say, to obey the law and to "pursue your patriotic duty." Courage to them is fighting a war for their country, whether it is a just war or not, running from this "moral obligation" can only be labeled cowardice.

But really, isn't it courageous to follow the dictates of your conscience - to do as you know you must, despite what laws or conventions may say? Yes, if a man fought in a war that was not just. It was a war that did not go to the dodgers who didn't have the courage of their convictions, it was a war because inside himself he knew that this was what he must do, not because of the coercion and compulsion inherent in the draft laws, then he was cited in courage.

Steve Pietrolongo

wines to hold first meeting

The Cal Poly Student Wive Club will hold its first organizational meeting this year Thursday, at 7:30 p.m. in RM-315 of the Ag-Enter Building.

Editor: Thursday, Oct. 3, Ms. Simon of the Gold Star Parents for Amnesty addressed a small audience in Chumash Auditorium on the topic of "Unconditional Amnesty vs. Conditional Amnesty." The talk was followed by a brisk discussion period, during which several persons voiced their feelings on the issue (and one quite emotionally so).

I came from the experiences with a feeling that nagged at the corners of my mind. What was the real issue involved there, the unspoken undercurrent which ran through the audience as surely it must run through all those who ever discuss amnesty? It was the question of courage. It would seem that those who oppose amnesty, so fiercely and emotionally, seek to force their definition of 'courage' onto everyone else. It is courageous, they say, to obey the law and to "pursue your patriotic duty." Courage to them is fighting a war for their country, whether it is a just war or not, running from this "moral obligation" can only be labeled cowardice.

But really, isn't it courageous to follow the dictates of your conscience - to do as you know you must, despite what laws or conventions may say? Yes, if a man fought in a war that was not just. It was a war that did not go to the dodgers who didn't have the courage of their convictions, it was a war because inside himself he knew that this was what he must do, not because of the coercion and compulsion inherent in the draft laws, then he was cited in courage.

Steve Pietrolongo
Refuse center seeks trash

Do you feel guilty everytime you throw away a non-returnable bottle? If not you better get with it. Nowadays, ecological concern is very accessible in fact, a space newspaper in one's front room is an appropriate furnishing for those who wish to display their concern for the environment.

A whole cult is growing out of the recycling craze. People go so far as to volunteer three hours of their time every month to work down at the recycling center. What's a recycling center you ask? It is truly an American happening. People of all ages and backgrounds volunteer their trash that can be reused and deliver it to a common collection area. Why would people of such varied learnings go to the trouble? We all know that Americans are motivated by the American Ideal... (that is advertising). So here lies the answer. All those people being motivated by the American Ideal... (that is advertising)

American happening. People go so far as to volunteer three hours of their time every month to work down at the recycling center. What’s a recycling center you ask? It is truly an American happening. People of all ages and backgrounds volunteer their trash that can be reused and deliver it to a common collection area. Why would people of such varied learnings go to the trouble? We all know that Americans are motivated by the American Ideal... (that is advertising). So here lies the answer. All those people being motivated by the American Ideal... (that is advertising)

Money to be awarded as prizes in upcoming photography contest

Mrs. Helen Kelley, advisor and photography instructor for the El Corral bookstore, as well as an inspiration for students, has decided that Cal Poly needs a contest, which recycling center can be purchased at the bookstore. Savara said the photography contest is being conducted because he feels the bookstore is a part of the student community and has an obligation to serve the student community. Savara feels contest turnout will be good because of the prize.

According to both Savara and Kelley, expansion of the bookstore photography department will cause more involvement in photography. They also said the contest is just a beginning for involvement. In the past, students have had to buy their photography equipment downtown. With the expansion, the needed equipment can be purchased at the bookstore. Judges for the contest will be Mrs. Kelley, photography instructor Robert Howell, and head of the Journalism Department. Entry blanks for the contest can be purchased at the El Corral Bookstore. The deadline date for entries is December 1, 1974. For further information contact either Mrs. Kelley, RM 84 in the Graphic Arts Building, or Vivian Savara at the bookstore.

Collage to be presented by Sierra Club

A picture collage depicting the character of each of the four seasons through illustrations of scenery, plants, and animals active at each time of the year, will be presented by the Sierra Club.

Dirk Walters, a Cal Poly student, and his wife Bonnie, who has a master's degree in education, will share their slide show entitled "The Seasons in Eastern Woodlands and Fields." The presentation is a collection of pictures taken over a number of years by the couple and traveled from New York to Illinois. However, Walters said he wouldn't mind such security, and so have committed myself to working toward such a goal. I would like to do the same or find it hard to get into the recycling mood, the Environmental Center Of Bea Leo Chige has made it easy for you. They would be glad to convince you what a snook you are if you don't recycle your trash. All you need do, is give them a call.

In order to facilitate easier handling in the warehouse, be sure to bundle your newspapers in one-foot high stacks. Glass should be rinsed out and have the caps removed. Don't worry about the labels. All kinds of aluminum, from beverage cans to pie tins, are welcome.

Recycling Centers

-...a whole cult is growing out of the recycling craze.

It's my idea that some independently wealthy eccentric is storing all those old newspapers in gigantic warehouse somewhere. When the paper shortage becomes so bad that newsprint is no longer available, this shrewd moneyman will sell to the American public old news.

SLO—Prado Road near Highway 101; Tues. and Sat. 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.
Pismo—Central Coast Camper 444 S. Diller Rd. weekdays.
Los Osos—Beach Market 1301 Second St.
Atascadero-486 Bierama 494-4775

Earthly Pleasures

"Home of the 75c Breakfast" Specials: Homemad Pie, Homemad Soup, Open 6:00 a.m. - 9:00 p.m.
2015 Monterey St. 644-8100

Sam's Restaurant

Thursday, October 18, 1973 Page 8 some of the pictures were taken in his own backyard. The slide presentation will be featured at the Sierra Club meeting in the Fellowship hall of the Methodist Church at 1313

Engineering tech majors

The American Society of Engineering Technology will hold its first meeting of the school year at 11:00 a.m. on Oct. 15. The meeting will be held in RM 302 in the Engineering West building. The society is here for the purpose of promoting student involvement in the major of engineering technology. The society is open to students of all options but is primarily for ETME students.

ENERGY, ENGINEERING, AND YOU

A career with Southern California Edison can mean many things to you:

Responsibility.
A training program which offers more than "trainee responsibility." A chance to really show what you can do and how well you do it.

Challenge.
The challenge of supplying sufficient economical energy while meeting the environmental concerns of the communities we serve.

Opportunity.
With a degree in MIE, CE, EE or NE you can contribute to the design and management of sophisticated engineering and construction projects or to the maintenance of our generation facilities.

Recreation.
Southern California is an ideal place to play — as well as work. Diverse facilities. Sunlight and fun.

Your salary and benefits program will enhance your enjoyment of both.

A career with Southern California Edison. When you work with us, you've got it all going for you.

Contact your placement office or submit your resume to: Personnel Recruitment, Section 75, Southern California Edison, P.O. Box 800, Rosemead, California 91770

We are an equal opportunity employer with an equal opportunity education program.
Surtax proposal gets negative reception

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford's proposed 5 per cent surtax got a negative reception before the House Ways and Means Committee Wednesday despite Treasury Secretary William E. Simon's assurances that it would affect only 16 per cent of taxpayers.

Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., however, suggested that Ford could not allow the surtax to die after one year, but would have to come back to Congress to renew it for "two years and possibly longer."

"We're not going to come out of this economic crisis in one year, and we'll be better realistic," said Ullman, who nevertheless said he would favor some form of surtax as part of an overall tax package.

Rep. Norman Schobee, R-Pa., also said he could possibly support a surtax, but that the fate of the surtax would be decided by the American people during the election season.

"You better get your public relations forces to work very vigorously," Schobee told Simon, who answered, "We don't underestimate the fact that it is going to be tough."

Ullman also rebuffed Simon's request that the President's proposal be considered in a separate bill apart from the massive tax revision bill now being considered by the Ways and Means Committee, which stands only slight chance of passage this year.

"I have grave questions whether it is possible to do that," Ullman said.

Separating the two tax bills would greatly enhance passage of Ford's proposal, which includes tax incentives for business as well as the one-year 5 per cent surtax on those making more than $7,000 a year or $16,000 per year in family income.

Simon told Rep. Bill Archer, R-Tex., that the administration still supports vigorously the oil depletion allowance, which the Ways and Means tax bill would eliminate.

Ford said in his speech Tuesday that he supported the Ways and Means bill completely. Simon defended the surtax by saying it was necessary to raise revenue to help spur business expansion and help the victims of inflation. He said that of the $14.8 billion in surtax revenue filed by Americans each year, 14 million—about 33 per cent—would be affected by the surtax.

Simon also:

—Said Congress should be prepared for a "political nightmare" when it returns from its election recess in mid-November. He said Ford will ask Congress to defer or reduce enough federal spending plans to bring the federal budget below $800 billion, and this will include some pet congressional programs. "I hope that will bite the bullet," he said.

—Refused to say whether Ford would veto a tax bill reported by Ways and Means Tuesday.

Ford sees inflation relief by early 1975

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford said today the nation's economic problems do not amount to a recession and that there is a "meaningful reduction" in the rate of inflation by early 1975.

Ford also defined his proposal for a 5 per cent excise tax surcharge as a matter of a few pennies a day for most families affected and said it would be more equitable than an increased gasoline tax or gasoline rationing.

"We can have hopefully, early in 1975 some meaningful reduction in the rate of inflation," Ford declared, "I don't think the United States is in a recession. We do have an economic problem, but it is a very mixed situation."

Referring to the 31 point program which he laid before a joint session of Congress Thursday, he said he was "confident, if the Congress responds, if the American people respond in a voluntary way, that we can have hopefully early in 1975 some meaningful reduction in the rate of inflation."

Ford previously has said that he wants to have inflation under control by Independence Day, 1975, the nation's 300th birthday. But his economic advisers have pegged its end at 18 months to three years.

The President's description of the current economic situation was more optimistic than that of many economists, who say that the lack of growth in the Gross National Product in the last six months fits the classic definition of a recession.

Army to go all volunteer this year

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Army announced Wednesday it will allow all remaining draftees to leave the service by Thanksgiving—making the Army an all volunteer force for the first time since 1964.

The Army said about 1,300 draftees would be able to leave before completing the normal two year tour of duty.

The last man to be drafted was Pvt. Dwight E. Stone of Sacramento, Calif., who was inducted less than 10 hours before the draft law expired June 18, 1973.

The draftees in the Army are only an insignificant part of the entire force, comprising just 0.1 per cent of the total strength of 780,000 soldiers.

Army Secretary Howard W. Callaway, in remarks prepared for delivery to the Rotary Club in Boston, said:

"We are proud of these soldiers who were drafted into the Army...I am confident that if the need for induction should occur in the future—which may be the case in a major war—other young Americans will once again serve with distinction."

"I hope that need will never arise."
DRAMA REVIEW

Stars shine in cast of "Light Up the Sky"

by RICK GOLIANSKY

LIGHT UP THE SKY

by BUSTER and BILLIE

Now Showing

Am a, the San Lula Obiapo Little Theater cast members Margaret Renning, Max Carmelis and Vicky Street gather around Frank Lindsay as he reads a farewell note from his play's author in a scene from "Light Up the Sky" opening tomorrow night at 8p.m.

ROSE GARDEN MOVIE HOUSE
Near the pier Pismo Beach
3 Surf Films (color) Thursday and Fri.
7:15 - Heads Of Surfing...MacGillivray Freeman
7:30 - Endless Summer...Bruce Brown
8:15 - Go With The Wave...Johnny Magnus
9:00 Admission - Free Doors Sat.
775-1000 or 775-1987 (Shemarle)

Newsweek says:
"Andy Warhol's 'Frankenstein' is a perversely fascinating movie. The first original variation on 'Frankenstein' in years. The film succeeds intelligently on the strength of a highly original vision. Paul Morrissey is an underground talent running to daylight."

—Paul C. Zimmerman

Andy Warhol

Frankenstein

Women's Wear Daily says:
"Andy Warhol's 'Frankenstein' is the ultimate 3-D movie, the ultimate stomach turner."

—Howard Kissel

Playboy says:
"...instantly achieves top rank as the most outrageously gory—some epic ever unleashed upon a public always hungry for fashionable kicks...incidental horror addicts can get a fix from Morrissey."

—Bruce Williamson

A Film by

Paul Morrissey

ANDY WARHOL'S "FRANKENSTEIN" - A Film by PAUL MORRISSEY - Starring Joe Dallesandro, Niki de Saint Phalle, Paul Morrissey, Andy Warhol, Romy Haag, etc. - Color • A BRYAR STONE PRODUCTION

FRANKENSTEIN

by RICK GOLIANSKY

LIGHT UP THE SKY

by BUSTER and BILLIE

Now Showing

Spotlight
Campus cheating on the rise...

The evaluation system has an incalculable affect on how cheating is handled. Although this effect isn't overt, most professors said it must be present. They try to handle the situation of a cheating student as if the rest of the class is unaware of the problem. Instructors said this reduces embarrassment of the student and doesn't alienate the rest of the class. "A student who cheats doesn't need the added problem of being embarrassed in front of his peers," one teacher said.

Cheating is here and it will remain here as long as students tolerate it among their friends and fellow students.

New grants available

Help is available for middle class students who cannot qualify for scholarship funds for lower income families.

The three-year pilot program was administrated by the State Scholarship and Loan Commission. The program will make 1,880 million grants available for the 1978, 1979 and 1980 fiscal years. Grants under the new law are restricted to juniors or seniors in degree programs.

The grants will help to fill the gap of student costs between public and private schools and increase the academic freedom of choice for middle income students, said Reagan. The bill will benefit students caught in the middle and allow independent colleges to attain a better balance in their student bodies. The bill will be welcomed by those families having more than one college-age student, according to Governor Ronald Reagan.

The grants will help to fill the gap of student costs between public and private schools and increase the academic freedom of choice for middle income students, said Reagan.
Promises" a Mustang defeat Saturday

by PETE KING

If flapping jaws win football games, the Mustangs are in trouble. They visit their sister school Cal Poly Pomona on Saturday and the Bronco coach Andy Vinci has tried to do a Mohammed Ali psych-out job on the Mustangs. In fact, he sounded more like a livestock sale auctioneer than a coach getting set to face the COAA defending champs.

His statistics are impressive. He is the nation's total offense leader. The senior has carried 91 times for 375 net yards, a 4.1 yard average per carry and five touchdowns.

Rich Robbins

The Broncos have never beaten the Mustangs but Vinci's plans have been, "that will be forgotten around 11 p.m. on Oct. 11. We're 3-1 now and we'll be 4-1 when we line up against LA State October 18."

They're still checking, but football experts suspect that Vinci might be the first football coach ever of gyppo heritage. If he is reading palms, it is probably the left palm of his big southpaw quarterback Jim Zorn that he's beating his predictions on.

Zorn is being touted as an All-American candidate (by the Pomona sports public relations office, of course).

His statistics are impressive. He is the nation's total offense leader. He has connected on 32 percent of his attempts—36 of 111. For 1,388 yards and one score, his rank is No. 3 nationally in passing. He has generated 1,388 yards in total offense on 158 plays for an average of 8.9 yards a game—No. 1 nationally. And last year the Mustangs ate him alive.

Zorn failed to get a single point on the board for his Broncos as the Mustangs trumped in a 41-0 win. They also picked off three of Zorn's pass attempts in that game which is indicative of maybe the one flaw in Super-Bronco. He has shown a penchant for getting away on mixed-up and hitting open defensive backs instead of receivers.

Added from Vinci this year Zorn was picked-off more than once and he had several other possible interceptions dropped by Broncos defenders.

Zorn isn't the only horse in the Bronco's stable however. Run-back Rich Paulson is near the top of the college division in rushing, while Andy Sandback is a top receiver.

So maybe Vinci does have something to brag about. But to promise a win? Well, at any rate, Mustang coach Joe Harper sounds scared. So that means he isn't. For five years of conference championships Harper has expressed.

Sports Analysis

As a passer he has connected on 32 percent of his attempts—36 of 111. For 1,388 yards and one score, his rank is No. 3 nationally in passing. He has generated 1,388 yards in total offense on 158 plays for an average of 8.9 yards a game—No. 1 nationally. And last year the Mustangs ate him alive.

Zorn failed to get a single point on the board for his Broncos as the Mustangs trumped in a 41-0 win. They also picked off three of Zorn's pass attempts in that game which is indicative of maybe the one flaw in Super-Bronco. He has shown a penchant for getting away on mixed-up and hitting open defensive backs instead of receivers.

Added from Vinci this year Zorn was picked-off more than once and he had several other possible interceptions dropped by Broncos defenders.

Zorn isn't the only horse in the Bronco's stable however. Run-back Rich Paulson is near the top of the college division in rushing, while Andy Sandback is a top receiver.

So maybe Vinci does have something to brag about. But to promise a win? Well, at any rate, Mustang coach Joe Harper sounds scared. So that means he isn't. For five years of conference championships Harper has expressed.

The Mustangs are finally throwing away their crusty backs. Defensive back Pat Manus returned in the second half of the Riverside game to either a shell-shocked defensive headfield.

But the key factor in the game may be the Mustang's emotion. Vinci may have done what Harper has been trying to do all year—make the Mustangs mad.

Vinci hasn't done a thing as long as he bounces the only thing that will be proved at 11 p.m. on October 11 is how the Bronco coach can stick his foot in his mouth.

Offensive line—coach says it is improved.

The Mustangs have shown subtle hints that they might return to last year's form, despite the source of the Riverside game.

Line coach Andy Brynnes said the offensive front "is blocking better than a lot of our lines have. Physically, nobody has dominated us and nobody has outgutted us."

The Mustangs are finally throwing away their crusty backs. Defensive back Pat Manus returned in the second half of the Riverside game to either a shell-shocked defensive headfield.

But the key factor in the game may be the Mustang's emotion. Vinci may have done what Harper has been trying to do all year—make the Mustangs mad.

Vinci hasn't done a thing as long as he bounces the only thing that will be proved at 11 p.m. on October 11 is how the Bronco coach can stick his foot in his mouth.

The Mustangs have shown subtle hints that they might return to last year's form, despite the source of the Riverside game.

Line coach Andy Brynnes said the offensive front "is blocking better than a lot of our lines have. Physically, nobody has dominated us and nobody has outgutted us."

The Mustangs are finally throwing away their crusty backs. Defensive back Pat Manus returned in the second half of the Riverside game to either a shell-shocked defensive headfield.

But the key factor in the game may be the Mustang's emotion. Vinci may have done what Harper has been trying to do all year—make the Mustangs mad.

Vinci hasn't done a thing as long as he bounces the only thing that will be proved at 11 p.m. on October 11 is how the Bronco coach can stick his foot in his mouth.
Kickers lose, face Northrop

BY ROB FOX

If Joe Harper needs a place to pin the blame for his footbal team's woes, he'll probably look no farther than the Mustangs defense.

"You see, I'm a junk," the Northrop coach began, "I happen to own a most unusable record. Whereas I go, winners tend to fail.

"It had the foundation. If anyone was confused then maybe I should back up a little and try to explain. I seem that whenever I arrive at a school they select the fortunes to plummet.

"Let me show up on the scene and their win-lose percentage begins to compete with the Dow Jones Average. It sinks.

"The year before I entered high school the football team won the league championship and finished with something like a 10-0 record. My freshman year they were a combination of patterns that never seemed to be plunked. But now this. A 1-3 start. Their surface yet.

"Does that tell you anything? Any football fan can tell you how long it's been since the New York Giants or the San Diego Chargers were anything except the coin toss for the first draft choice.

"For so coach Harper the future is bleak. I don't figure to graduate until December 17 or the earliest.

"It's beginning to think I'm Broom Harper's brother, or something.

"And it's not just school teams either. I really got interested in baseball about the mid-40's. Naturally the Yankees were my team (and still are). So the Dodgers swept the '41 series and the Cardinals took it all in '48. Following that the Yankees sunk, clear to the bottom as one point and they haven't managed to make the league opener for the

"With a record of 5-1, the kickers will try to go on the win side of things on Saturday, when Northrop Institute challenges the

"It was on to Bakersfield College, Metropolitan Conference champions three out of four years. Twice ranked No. 1 in the nation.

"The first year there was the look of the once was about to end. The Mustangs went 9-0 and were handed the national playoffs. Then Bakersfield State

"Kickers promised to live up. But now it was still a fairly successful year.

"But now this. A 1-3 start. Their surface yet.

"Does that tell you anything? Any football fan can tell you how long it's been since the New York Giants or the San Diego Chargers were anything except the coin toss for the first draft choice.

"For so coach Harper the future is bleak. I don't figure to graduate until December 17 or the earliest.

"It's beginning to think I'm Broom Harper's brother, or something.

"And it's not just school teams either. I really got interested in baseball about the mid-40's. Naturally the Yankees were my team (and still are). So the Dodgers swept the '41 series and the Cardinals took it all in '48. Following that the Yankees sunk, clear to the bottom as one point and they haven't managed to