Well balanced press collection in museum

When one enters the main door of the Graphic Communications Building, the eye is greeted by a collection of antique printing equipment. This Washington Hand Letter Press stands in the hall that looks well-kept and limber enough to turn out several pages of newspapers.

Besides being a reminder of an era when the arm that wielded the editorial pen also provided the muscle grace to operate the press, the antique is an invitation to visit Cal Poly’s Shakespeare Press Museum. Located in the same building, the museum is the home of about 80 pieces of antique printing equipment, from linotype machines and paper to a large collection of type faces.

Each piece in the museum is maintained in peak operating condition by Poly printing students. “There’s nothing stopping us from producing any job,” said Steve Knecht, Graphic Communications senior and student-curator of the museum. One condition in the will of Charles Palmer, the antique printing buff who left his collection at Cal Poly in 1966, was that the machines be kept in working order.

The annual Red Wind benefit concert for the Red Wind Foundation is in limbo—again.

According to John Fit-kendall, community liaison worker for the Economic Opportunity Commission, a concert date has not yet been set last week. Nov. 1 has been set as the date when the Eagles, Jesse Colin Young and Joe Walsh will appear for two shows in the Marx Gym.

As a part of the Red Wind Foundation and the university, Fitkendall has been working with both groups to agree on a date.

But yesterday the EOC worker said there have been some changes in the last week that have made the November date impossible. The changes, acecessary to Fitkendall, stem from a conversation with Randy

Donat—program counselor in the Arts and Humanities. In their discussion, Donat suggested an open date in late November already agreed upon by the university president Robert E. Kennedy and members of the Red Wind.

Donat said Fitkendall if a proposal was sent to him he would have to vote if for various reasons. The program counselor cited the “advocacy of the ART” and the closeness in the date of the preceding John Stewart concert—Nov. 1—on one reason it would be unlawful to hold the benefit.

Donat claimed that if an Eagles, Walsh and Young concert was held a day before the Stewart concert, “the ART would set it.”

He said there is also an ongoing understanding with the head of the physical education depart-
Undersheriff plays dirty

Editor: The Telegram Tribune on October 10, 1974, closed down a public forum via "letter-to-editor" in the County Sheriff's race.

What the editor has said in effect—"I, the editor, will decide what the public is to hear—it is an arbitrary use of his paper to cancel this important public function—it is pertinent and necessary.

Granted no doubt that some letters may not be 100 percent correct, granted too, that two deputy sheriff's wives have used the letters-to-editor column without proper identification; but now by eliminating the letters-to-editor in this important and interesting sheriff's race, the right to rebuttal has been denied.

Aside from my campaign position in this race, I feel compelled to answer Association President Joe Little and Association Attorney Richard Carrel. I feel there is more to be said and dare the editor to print my letter.

For years as a merchant along with hundreds of other merchants in this County, I was called upon to purchase tickets to the donkey circus—into the Sheriff's bail with the understanding that proceeds from these funds were to be used for widows and orphans—we always gave generously. Cal Poly University allowed the use of its campus for the circus. If we are to believe Attorney Richard Carrel, we have been misled.

I have been told that $1,700.00 has been siphoned off for political cronies this year, 1,200.00 has been used solely for the undersheriff. It would be proper then for those of us who did not know—nor desire—Association funds to be used politically, that a refund should be in order.

Association Attorney Cartel should be well aware that the Federal government, the State government, and other County governments, already have recognised the evil that can be done by allowing department employees to be involved in political campaigns, and outlawed it.

Those laws were not passed to prevent the employees from exercising their rights as citizens, but to protect them from the very sort of pressure that is obviously being exerted upon department employees by the undersheriff.

Our legislators recognized years ago that the ramifications of a political system are bad. The "tax" can force their employees—on threat of losing their jobs—to campaign for them, contribute to their campaign, and even kick back percentages of their salaries to their benefactors.

To create a professional corps of governmental employees, we must protect them from this sort of pressure. If we don't, the competent will soon find positions elsewhere and their spots soon filled with the incompetent hangerson, whose only value is their lending to the political whims of the unscrupulous who hire them.

These public servants must serve their allegiance to the people and to professional standards. By allowing them to be manipulated by the undersheriff so that he can move up to a higher-paying job, is to place that allegiance and those professional standards in jeopardy, especially in a department as sensitive as revenue as a law enforcement agency. We must insist on high standards, on professionalism if these people are to have any respect for their jobs and the public they serve.

Tell them we care about their careers. And certainly let's not graduate the undersheriff into a position where he can do even greater damage to those professional standards of conduct.

Is this how Tammany Hall was created? It has the same odor.

‘Pioneer’ talks of circuses and Indians

As he stands behind the counter that holds the candy he makes by hand, Chong recalls fondly the five ring circuses that had him, "Going this way and that way." Chong darts his head and eyes back and forth to show the movements necessary to keep up with the circus acts.

"You don't know what you missed. When the circus came to town everybody from all around would come," remembers Chong. "I wouldn't go to one now." Chong says of circuses today.

In 1910, at the corner of Santa Rosa and Palm, Chong watched as a boxer leaned backwards and shoot a clay pigeon while the rode a horse. Anna's act was part of Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show.

"You never seen so many Indians in San Luis," Chong recalls of the show.

At the age of twelve, Chong worked in Austin's Candy Factory in downtown San Luis Obispo. For his 10 to 11 hours work a day, he would take home 35 cents.

Chong wasn't taught to make candy, he learned for himself. He would watch the factory workers and over the years he learned Tickets ready for barbecue

Tickets for the first university-wide Homecoming barbecue which will be open to all students, faculty and alumni, are now on sale for $3.50 in the University Union box office.

Scheduled for Nov. 5 in Cuesta Park preceding the Cal Poly vs. Rancho football game, the barbecue will begin serving at 1 p.m. by the Mustang Boosters. Inquire for San Luis Obispo were in the 1980's, Chong points out that "There's too much credit," the engineer suit clad Chinaman declared, "You see what I face, I don't go for it, and the Idea fell to me; this is no place for tourists." And then he added, "They look at me so funny."

"If you ask him all he'll tell you is, "They are diamonds and gold.""

Today's candy, according to Chong is, "Poison, that's why they build hospitals, it's card board."

Chong blames women's obsession with dieting with a reason for declining candy sales. "The women don't work like they used to any more, that's why they are fat. I tell them, you sit there and eat candy over that stove for a week, you'll get thin."

Chong said he didn't want to get into politics or political discussions, it was the same old stuff through the years.

"How about you and I run it Jim? I'll be the mayor and you can be the administrator." Jim didn't go for it, and the idea fell to the side.

Although he says the best years for San Luis Obispo were in the 1930's, Chong points out that today is much like 1910.

"There's too much credit," the engineer suit c.lad Chinese declared.

If there is one place that credit should be found, you can bet it's Chong's Candy Store. Customers are the ones that got the money," Chong relates.

Just then a neatly dressed woman walked into the store and asked for a pound of caramel nuts. Chong made no move to get them but merely stated that they were expensive. The lady said, "That's alright," then reconsidered and asked, "How expensive?" Chong cracked a smile as he replied, "They're diamonds."
Dear Mimi,

Public faculty evaluation sought

Dear Mimi,

I am writing in response to the column regarding the student who is "unhappy" with the quality of instruction given by certain teachers here.

Many students have made great sacrifices to come to school—especially those of us on small bankrolls, who have waited for years to be able to come back to school. It's very unfair to have our time wasted by incompetent teachers who are here simply as a result of the tenure system.

One method of avoiding this situation on a personal level would be to have the results of the student rating of instructors available to students. This would make registration more competitive but at least you would have a goal to fight for.

If the administration will not open the teacher evaluations to the students, why not create an alternative evaluating system? Forms could be handed out at a central point and the results could be compiled by a campus club. A book could be put out showing the results.

Gene Kupferman

Dear Game: From what I could find out, the Associate Students Inc. is trying to come up with a student run faculty evaluation. The Academic Senate and the faculty are currently working on an agreement on how to coordinate the evaluations.

From what I understand, the ASI is proposing that a student would pick a teacher they wanted to evaluate. The evaluation would be done in a voting booth, independent of the classroom. After a number of evaluations were turned in, the evaluations would then be published and available to the students.

The proposal by the ASI is a start. If you wanted to get involved with the evaluations, I suggest you talk to the ASI officers.

If you have any questions or problems for Mimi, bring your letter to the Journalism Department Graphic Arts 1126. Mark the letter, "In care of the editor." and she will get it to Mimi.

Propositions clarify recall, printing equipment. "I see it as counterproductive," he said. Those opposed say it's unwise to remove specific recall procedures from the Constitution.

Proposition 10 would restore voting rights to persons who have completed their prison sentences and parole.

Historically, the California Constitution has denied the right to vote to anyone convicted of a felony. Court decisions have limited this provision to crimes that threaten the election process. Each county decides which crimes are cause for denying voting rights.

Proposition 10 places the law which would still prohibit persons convicted of bribery, perjury and other crimes from serving on a jury or holding public office.

Proposition 10 would also clarify the voting rights of those convicted of crimes committed while mentally incompetent by stating they were disqualified only while mentally incompetent. Those favoring Proposition 10 say it's not just to deny this basic right to someone who has paid for his crimes or recovered from his illness.

Those opposed say evidence of responsible citizenship should be required.

The price of skiing continues to rise. But over 100 major ski resorts across the country are offering special rates to college and high school students who belong to the Student Ski Association (SSA). Over 100,000 students have joined SSA in the past five years. Discounts include half-price aki lift tickets, lessons and equipment rental on weekdays.

Last season, 40,000 joined the nation's only student ski discount organization. Membership dues are $1 per season. Members receive a season's subscription to the Student Skiing's only undergraduate publication, Penn Howard's College Guide To Skiing, which lists the least expensive lodges close to participating ski areas together with maps, data, and descriptive information on ski areas is provided to members also.

This season is the first that membership in the Student Ski Association has been open to high-school and preparatory school students.

For more information or a SSA membership write: The Student Ski Association, 321 N. Pleasant St., Amherst, Md. 21002 or 9062 N. Clark St., Chicago, Ill. 60614.

The Mustangs sneaked the Hot Lips right on the blazer Tuesday, winning 14-0 in an intramural football game at Mustang Stadium.

The game, sponsored by the Women's Recreation Association, was an important one for both teams, leading into the big game in November. The Muckamucks got a touchdown in each half.

The tough Muckamutt defense was led by defensive back Vicky Wilson who picked off a Hot Lips pass in the second half.

Intramuralspeak

Students across the nation are starting to realize that the value of intramural sports and college athletics can't be compared accurately by a mere scan of the budget.

Big-time athletics are universally earmarked far more funds than intramural programs.

It's too bad. "Doing" is what sports are all about. Nobody ever strengthened his heart muscle by watching Monday Night Football over a six-pack of beer.

And at every football game played in Mustang Stadium, 44 players build up their entire body while seven thousand on-lookers improve only their vocal cords.

Fortunately, Dick Heaton, the man who directs intramurals here, and Bob Wilson of the Renaissance appear to be reading the pulse of the student body effectively.

They've been the catalysts behind an expansion of the intramural program this year. More teams than ever are mixing it up every week. And a brand new housing league, especially for the dorms, has been started.

Mustang Daily will try to do its part by more diligent coverage of intramuralspeak.
