Swell experts bring home judging honors

The next time you are outside, glance up at the trees, and if you can describe the properties of the soil as they exist in their natural state, the moisture and the filtration rates. Then, from what you have observed, classify these rates for use.

If you're like most normal people, all you'll be able to spot is an evergreen or deciduous tree trying to make a living. But if you're the Soil Judging Team from this school, describing these phenomenal lists is nothing out of the ordinary.

On Oct. 18 and 19 the Cal Poly Soil Judging Team placed second and third of the eleven teams competing at the Regional Soil Judging contest held in Flagstaff, Arizona. In addition to the entrants from this school, experts from New Mexico State University, Montana State University, Brigham Young University, University of Arizona and Colorado State University were in attendance.

Standout performers were Jim Vagasky, placing second in points from the "A" Team, and Luke Hadden from the "B" Team who placed third.

According to Larry Meyers from the Soil Department, "I was extremely proud of the participation of the students but more so with the way our students conducted themselves."

Meyers also said that the team will be hosting the Regional Soil Judging Contest next year.

Editor:
I am a taxpayer and registered voter in San Luis Obispo County and have much interest in the coming election. Therefore, I attended the candidate's night, Oct. 12, put on by the League of Women Voters in San Luis Obispo. Something I heard there and something I later read in my sample ballot "qualifications statements" made me wonder about the honesty of Jerry Pearce. Sheriff—Coroner candidate.

Wednesday evening he stated that he did not possess his intermediate P.O.S.T. certificates in fact he stated that certificates were not very important to him. When I read his statement of qualifications in my sample ballot he states that he has all the necessary certificates of position and they were too numerous to list there. This may seem like a small discrepancy to some people, but I feel if a man can't be honest concerning his qualifications, is he really going to run a clean, honest department?

I want a Sheriff who will continue running the fine department we have presently and make it even better. I plan to vote for Undersheriff John H. Pierce for Sheriff—Coroner, because that's what he is doing right now!

Rich farmland likely locale for housing

Dear Editor:
In referring to note that the Administration again seems to be acting more in haste than in thought. I am referring to the proposal to locate married student housing on some of the finest intensive farming land on campus. While not in opposition to the housing program, it seems to me that the administration of this university (containing one of the largest and best schools of agriculture in the nation) should be more aware of the implications of replacing that prime land and the food it can produce for you and I, with asphalt driveways, cement planters, and wall to wall housing. This is a time when most people are finally waking up to the realities of agriculture and its limitations.

People are beginning to realize the problems involved in not only feeding the rest of the world but ourselves as well. Southern Calif. citizens in the fact that while the best farm land also makes the easiest land to build on, it is not always desirable to take that option. Look at the freeways, the highways, and small towns, and then try to imagine the food that has been lost because the best land was the land denuded for that sake of progress. We are paying the price for our short sightedness in our food bills and food shortages.

In Cal Poly really a leader in the community? If it is, then who are we advocating for or against? Cal Poly's motto "Learn by Doing" is fine, but shouldn't we also learn by observing the mistakes of the past? Surely in a campus of over 10,000 students we can find a location that will provide "housing with space for what are especially valuable natural resources and productivity to help feed you and I."

Saturdays plague girl volleyballers

by PETE KING

Like for most other students here, those Saturday mornings following wild Friday nights are just pure murder for the women on the Cal Poly women’s volleyball team.

Once again, the Mustangs won their game last Friday against Long Beach but then fell to UC Irvine in a Saturday morning game.

It’s been that was all season.

 according to volleyball coach Ann Windolph. She said Cal Poly is the only school in the five-team Southern Women’s Intercollegiate Athletic Conference that has to play back-to-back games.

The other schools, all located in the Los Angeles area, play one game in the middle of the week and one game in the weekend. Cal Poly can’t do that because of the distance between this school and the other league teams.

The games are Long Beach, Irvine, Cal State Fullerton and Whittier.

The win and loss over the weekend pushed the Mustangs’ league record to 1-4 with five league contests remaining. Had Cal Poly beaten Irvine, however, it would have been in first place.

But it wasn’t even close. Irvine needed two games to win the best-of-three match. The scores were 1-10 and 10-13.

Miss Windolph said that the two games were closer than the inflated scores indicate. She added that neither team played well at all and had Cal Poly not had a game the previous night, they could have beaten the Anteaters.

“TEAM as a whole played bad,” Miss Windolph said of her Mustangs. “As usual, we had trouble getting ready for the second game of the weekend. Our skills are good and compared well with the other team’s, but Irvine was fresh and ready to go.

“Irvine didn’t play that well,” she said.

Windolph added that when Cal Poly plays Irvine in a Saturday morning game.

But on the other side of the bracket, when it faces Long Beach in November return match, the railways will be better prepared to play Cal Poly.

The Mustangs won 1-0, 1-0—Friday night against Long Beach, in a big win for Cal Poly. The Mustang players regarded the tavern as a better team than Irvine. Indeed, Miss Windolph said that Long Beach played better out of court than Irvine.

Despite the opposite outcome of the two matches.

The coach said, however, that Long Beach will be super-ready when Cal Poly travels south to face the railways in November. She said the Long Beach coach was upset with the loss and that the Long Beach players didn’t think the Mustangs had much of a volleyball program.

Single and double Miss Windolph for outstanding play over the weekend and was Lisa Laurie, whose tricky serves gained Cal Poly 11 points in the Long Beach match. And Cindy Cliche who played top defense in both matches and was especially outstanding against Irvine.

The Cal Poly record is 1-4 in league play and 3-5 overall.
