GSU seeks approval of bylaws tonight

The State Bill to add $155,000 in financing

The funds for AB 3116, the instructionally related activities (IRA), have been delegated. The bill will provide for a referendum on a proposal to add $155,000 to the budget for the coming academic year.

The bylaws of the AGU, a group with official status, were discussed at the meeting.

Textbook selection stirs controversy

The Instruction Committee of the Academic Senate has recommended changes in the campus regulation of textbook selection.

The recommended revision of section 311 of the Campus Administrative Manual (CAM), which states the Academic Senate approval before being sent to the President, was not discussed at the meeting.

However, the Academic Senate has approved the text selection and arbitration of related disputes.

In a poll of Cal Poly department heads, the committee found six departments that had been "unable to approve" a textbook selection. They ranged from a department reporting no one in 18 years to another citing eight cases in four years.

The Social Sciences department, ranked recently with校区 over the issue of test selection, responded that it hased two cases where it could not approve a textbook choice.

Both of those two cases involved Assistant Professor Bradford Smith, whose recommendation was rejected by the department on the grounds of test selection.

The committee recommendation was to be led in the direction of intellectual study of the phenomena of homosexuality.

The Special Committee of the Academic Senate, discussed the implications of the bill for the future of the campus before a group of advisors, administration members, and student representatives.

The committee supports the proposal for funding for instructionally related activities such as athletics, drama, music, publications, and broadcasting.

If approved, the students are eligible to vote on a referendum connected with the bill during the spring quarter. The vote will be decided on whether or not to lower the student body fees, presumably by $100, by as much as 25 percent, to finance the money coming from AB 3116.

However, the AGU presently provides for five student activities, and the bill provides for $150,000. The vote is on an advisory referendum, which means that it is not a final vote.

The members of the committee will be taken back to the Board of Trustees for final approval.

Both Kennedy and Chandler recommended that the proposal indicate that the central purpose of the AGU is not directed at intellectual study of the phenomena of homosexuality, but is frankly and openly a group for homosexuals.

The university provides an approved organization which will allow for the non-communicative and non-competitive, these individuals may be led in the direction of homosexuality.

In June of 1972 a suit was filed against the administration in Superior Court of San Luis Obispo County. The court upheld Kennedy's rejection of the bylaws. The AGU then took the case to the California Supreme Court in Los Angeles.

At the beginning of Summer, the appellate court decided in favor of the administration.

By a 9-0 vote this summer, the court decided.

system. Kennedy said the university would be glad to help provide information the city felt it needed regarding the impact of future enrollment increases.

The discussion lasted more than 3½ hours before the compromise was reached. Several members of the public also spoke before the council on the issue, including representatives of the Chamber of Commerce and the Downtown Association.

The discussion centered mainly on the housing problem. Kennedy said the city through its policies on growth had discouraged private developers from providing more student housing.

emphasized the importance of maintaining the present student body fee of $20.

"If the fee is reduced to $18 or $19," Chandler said, "we would be able to maintain our $100,000 budget. But if we want more of the basic programs we have now, it must stay at $20."

The $18,000 will be given to Poly in a lump sum, rather than lumped as in usual budgetary allocations. The division of funds between instructionally related activities will be decided by a committee consisting in part of Kennedy, President Chandler, President Scott Plotkin and Director of Business Affairs James Lush.

In order to be considered as an IRA, an activity must be credit-producing in itself, or directly related to credit granting.

Chandler used an example of the rodeo judging team being on IRA, but not the rodeo team itself.

Aki Kai Club sets meeting of Aikido class

An organizational club meeting for students interested in studying Aikido next quarter will be held on Thursday, Dec. 1 at 7 p.m. in Room 114 of the University Union.

Aki Kai Club spokesman Greg Barker said that all students, regardless of ability, are welcome. Ken Ota, a Japanese instructor at the University of California at Santa Barbara, is scheduled to teach Aikido at the weekly meetings next quarter. Barker said Aikido, a self-defense art, is unlike other martial arts in that the participant need not be in peak physical condition.

You don't have to drop a bundle to get good components.

If you're just getting into the wonderful, confusing world of audio systems, you've probably already picked up a few basic facts, but are you really sure that a standard system is as good as its least good component? This is true.

But we want you to know that you don't have to drop a bundle to get good components. And you don't need an engineering degree to understand which are the good components and which are not. The good components, mentally engineered and made of the best materials, without a hefty price tag.

And, best of all, we talk about the receiver, to take things from there. It comprises an AM/FM/MX tuner with a stereo amplifier. And the important criterion for selecting your receiver is what it has adequate power to drive the speakers and that the amplifier must put out an hour and a half. The final vote was delayed until tonight.

BAC apparently called the unprecedented executive session (where neither the press or the public is allowed to witness the proceedings) to discuss a possible lawsuit, by the BAC against either the AFI or the administration.

The proposed organisation, brought a certified court reporter to that BAC meeting—but also was asked to leave.

When Kennedy rejected the bylaws in 1973, he cited "restrictive membership clauses" of the organisation and also questioned the non-intellectual purpose of the club. Kennedy has since rewritten the bylaws—deleting, in his opinion any sections that might possibly be considered limiting the membership only to homosexuals.

As for the purpose of the group, the bylaws as now written read: "The Gay Students' Union is hereby organised for the purpose of providing a forum for the intellectual and social advancement of homosexuals on a campus and community level."

According to Plotkin, should BAC fail to muster the two-thirds majority needed for passage of the bylaws, a lawsuit by the BAC naming the AFI (and possibly members who did not vote in the affirmative) could be "most likely possible."

Representatives expected to vote on or abstain, according to one source, include Loudon, Dennis Edlund, Dennis Chiaro, Dennis Edmund, John Reene, Sanderson, Trice and Karyl Wanners.

The same source also told KWB that Kubley was believed as least two to three other representatives would support—forming more than the one-third minority necessary to reject the proposed bylaws.

GSU seeks approval...

Summer Intern Committee decided to take the GSU case to the California Supreme Court. Representatives Matt Louden and Greg Meldan were the only no votes to continue litigation.

Because the state's highest court was going to make an unpublished decision, Carrel did only 15 days to make his plea. But the lawyer for the $1 was under the impression he had the usual 30 days to file an appeal.

Because of the misunderstanding, the case was thrown out of the Carrel contingent initially at a BAC meeting earlier in year in addition to a letter published in the Daily because of his error for which he took full responsibility.

Two weeks ago BAC was scheduled to take a final vote on the bylaws of the GSU but ended up in executive session for almost two hours and a half. The final vote was delayed until tonight.
