Union leader raps Chavez, praises Poly
by LARRY EDWARDS

Teamsters Union Pres. Frank Fitzsimmons lashed out against rival labor leader Cesar Chavez and the United Farm Workers in a packed Chumash Auditorium Thursday.

Fitzsimmons' talk began with several minutes of praise for Cal Poly and its students, who "spend more time in the classroom than in campus demonstrations," but evolved into a bitter condemnation of Chavez and his supporters.

Teamsters and the UFW have been involved in a controversial struggle for contracts with farm workers and growers for several years. In regards to Chavez' talk of "non-violent activism," Fitzsimmons said the UFW's dedication to violence is "a matter of record."

Fitzsimmons' speech was interrupted several times by hecklers. In one instance it was stopped for over a minute when a man stood up and loudly addressed the crowd in Spanish.

Many in the audience were carrying the red, white and black flag of the UFW.

"This is not my flag," said Fitzsimmons, "my flag is made up of stripes and stars on a blue background," eliciting both applause and jeers from the crowd.

Fitzsimmons went on to explain that the Teamsters contracts are superior to those of the UFW and that their "flag is a badge of honor."

According to the union chief, this is why the UFW's membership has gone from "an all-time high of 80,000 down to 7,000, with only two contracts left."

"Workers know that growers have more respect for a professional labor union," Fitzsimmons said, "than a social/private citizens' marriage."

"And not even Cesar Chavez can carry the red, white and black flag," added the union leader.

"Workers know he can't even win elections to determine the workers' views," Fitzsimmons continued.

"The kind of elections Chavez talks about are conducted by private citizens," the union leader said. "And wouldn't be reliable."

"Workers know he can't win the support of the farmworkers," he said.

Agricultural workers are not covered under the National Labor Relations Act of 1935. Fitzsimmons said, but his organization favors legislation to change this.

"Boycotts cannot bring about free elections," he said, "only legislation can."

Originally a 10-minute question and answer period was planned to follow Fitzsimmons' speech, but was cancelled because an estimated 500 people ran to noon, the end of University Hour.

"This is not my flag," said Chavez, "my flag is made up of stripes and stars on a blue background," eliciting both applause and jeers from the crowd.

Many in the audience were carrying the red, white and black flag of the UFW and that they were driven out of the fields without just cause.

Teamsters Union Pres. Frank Fitzsimmons was served Thursday with a subpoena on behalf of five farmworkers who claim they were denied certain rights and benefits by the Teamsters. The subpoena was served as Fitzsimmons sat down to lunch after his speech Thursday.

Fitzsimmons appeared stunned as an investigator for California Rural Legal Assistance explained the action being taken by the farmworkers, who are former members of the Teamsters Union.

"They're the ones who are trying to sue us over a 200,000 dollar judgment," Fitzsimmons commented.

The suit charges that the workers were denied the right to choose a union to represent them and that they were driven out of the fields without just cause.

Trustees OK master plan for Cal Poly

Cal Poly's master plan was given unanimous final approval Wednesday by the Board of Trustees. Although actually approved by a committee of the trustees (Campus Planning, Building and Grounds), the action represents the final OK for the master plan. On Jan. 26 the trustees met and delegated the final approval to the special committee.

The master plan provides for a growth of up to 16,000 students by around 1979-80. University Pres. Robert E. Kennedy, who attended the Wednesday meeting in San Diego, was confronted by opposition from a student group. The master plan approved Wednesday was office space for faculty. A total of 11 relocatable office units will be moved to nine different present offices on campus with an additional 10 units to be added later.

Kennedy said the 15 units will accommodate 60 faculty and other staff members.

In addition, Kennedy pointed out faculty and staff located in Tenayas Hall are expected to move into the new building by the end of the month in order to make room for student housing.

Kennedy and staff members were assigned to Tenayas residence hall three years ago when the demand for on-campus student housing fell off. However, with the new demand, federal funds require the hall to be reversed back to student housing.

Kennedy claimed the two most important facility goals were a life science building and a faculty building.

"It will be a few years, but we will be striving mightily to obtain the needed facilities. The effect of the approved master plan on campus growth will depend upon whether or not the buildings on the master plan can be constructed," said Kennedy.

The cost of the life science building is estimated at $6.4 million. Kennedy said Wednesday he did not think either building would be completed until around 1980.

Other features of the master plan include:

- Construction of a new multipurpose sports arena north of the Highland Drive entrance at the present tennis arena site.

- Addition of a performing arts center auditorium adjacent to the Cal Poly Theatre and the Harold P. Davidson Music Center.

Dumke rejects student on board

Student representation belongs in all administrative areas where the decisions made affect the well-being of the students. There is presently no official representation on the Board of Trustees for the People's College system.

The University of California Board of Regents recently voted to allow a student representative to sit on the board. This student will have an equal vote to any of the other regents. He will be chosen from one of the campuses in the system, a requirement being that he presently holds an office at an university.

Our board of trustees, which last voted on major policy decisions on what kind of education we will receive, has student representation only when they want it. And then, the students are represented by the student body president, who, since they already hold a position, could possibly have a conflict of interest.

Chancellor of the system, Glen Dumke, doesn't feel that a student belongs on the board. However, last week he spoke at Poly and said:

"A student on the board would only muddy the water for all the constituents who need representation."

I totally disagree with his comment. On one hand Dumke is admitting that students do need representation. But, he is also saying that they shouldn't be represented by a student. It also sounds like he is fearful a student would change things on an otherwise placid group.

Dumke also said having a student on the board would reduce the integrity of the board. I can't see how a student would reduce the integrity of the board unless forcing the trustees to listen to student demands and listen to student insight is somehow undesirable.

The chancellor said the trustees should stand between the institution and the people it represents (the students). But when the trustees decide on all the policies, how can they possibly separate the two? A student could bring policy decisions down to a student level, and could inform the trustees when policies aren't beneficial to students, and why.

The goal of the trustees board should be to find our needs and learn how to accommodate them. The most efficient way to do that is to let the students have an equal say in policy making and relay their needs.

Dumke admitted that the state legislature would probably force the trustees to have a student representative. "Force"—what a way to describe what will probably be a most beneficial change in the hierarchical structure of decision making.

Dumke is any indication of how the others feel, there isn't too much concern with how to best serve the interests of the system, and the people it affects.

Roche Sisters special guest of Coffee House

"Creme de la Creme," joining Coffee House's top attractions with two special guest stars, will present a one-night performance as a part of the Us-Concert series sponsored by the Special Events Committee, the show begins at 8 p.m. in Chumash Auditorium.

As special guest stars, the Roche Sisters, Maggie and Tara, will present their own unique blend of folk-rock music. The New York pair use all original material in 12-string guitar combinations. Their Cal Poly performance marks the end of their first western tour as Columbia recording artists.

The duo have completed a new album, produced by Paul Simon, which will be released in March. They met Simon as students in a song-writing class he instructs at Columbia University. According to Special Events Committee chairman Fred Strickland, the Roche Sisters deliver social commentary through their music.

"Their message is typical of what's going on around us today," he said.

The Roche Sisters are 21 atudant« and 22 general members of the 91 atudant« and 92 2flnera« representing the students. The students have an equal say in policy making and relay their needs.

HEP Program will die when taken off campus

Unless pressure is brought to bear on the Dept. of Labor, the High School Equivalency Program (HEP) could be forced out of existence, members of HEP warned the Student Affairs Council Wednesday night.

SAC was asked to consider a resolution introduced by Fred Flston, proxy for Ron Supat recently resigned Architecture and Environmental Design representative, asking SAC to express its opposition to the removal of HEP from this campus.

SAC postponed action on the matter at the insistence of several SAC representatives, who asked for time to take the matter back to their school councils and get council reaction.

Teachers, students and administrative personnel of the federally funded program, which is designed to help the children of migrant farm workers receive a secondary education, urged SAC to help save the program from extermination.

The program is scheduled to be forced off the campus in June when the University takes over the Air Conditioning Auditorium to provide 94 faculty office space.

Bastos Arrona, HEP coordinator, told SAC that the Dept. of Labor, from which HEP receives its federal funds, had told him that if the program was removed from the campus, it would be terminated.

"Other campuses are interested in picking up the program," said Arrona "such as Chico, Santa Barbara and Bakersfield, but the Labor Department prevents us from transferring the program.

Dean of Students, Everett Chandler, expressed the Administration's support of HEP and noted that "We can't understand the Labor Dept.'s stance.

Arrona acknowledged the support of HEP by President Robert Kennedy and said "we have had very good cooperation from him.

Saturday: Running events:
- Steeplechase—Penny. 543-1414.
- Mile—John Beaton, Dan Unruh, Jim Warrick, and Barry Bryant.
- Mile relay—Don Hargis, Russ Curtis Byrd, Kerry Gold and Clancy McNamara, and Mike Bartlett.
- 120 high hurdles—Walter Mead, Bartlett, Gilbert Proctor, Kerry Edwards; mile relay—Mike Pickard, Sam Buis, Kerry Gold, and Clancy McNamara.

The Mustangs host Cal Poly at 8 p.m. tonight. The Mustangs are one of four teams being considered for two post season berth in the tournament next weekend at U.C. Irvine. Besides Poly conference rivals U.C. Riverside and Cal State Bakersfield have a shot at being chosen. In order for the Mustangs to get far they must beat Pomona and Riverside and that will be no easy task.

The Mustangs come into tonight's game 8 p.m. with ranked number two in the nation, but ranked number one in conference mark. But Coach Ernie Wheeler's contingent is still very much in conference, if not national, contention for their charity tosses.

It's never late to endeavor to find the hoop consistently and control the back boards in conference play. This past weekend the Mustangs have been behind in conference play. Now showing 49.3 to 39.4 percent and outrebounded 43.5 to 39.3.
