A Daily tale of mysteries

by CRAIG REEM
Daily Associate Editor
Cal Poly, like any other community, has experienced over the years an odd assortment of crime and happenings that make it unique.

Chronicled in the Mustang Daily of yesteryear is an array of interesting and different news:

Talk about counting sheep in your sleep. In March, 1955, the count of Poly sheep was going down—fast. The sheep were being killed by a couple of crazy dogs.

A trap was set and seven dogs, three cats, one fox, one oppossum and other assorted animals were caught. Two of the dogs were identified as the raiders which had killed 15 ewes and seven lambs. The value of the dead was reported at $1,000.

In October, 1961, Poly Pres. Julian A. McPhee blasted the moral degeneration he said was evident in this country. In an appeal to the entire student body, he asked the students to fight this deterioration.

McPhee said "character training" was no longer evident in the American home and schools. He cited government corruption, bribery of athletes, narcotic rings and other such practices as "symptoms" of this moral disease.

"We seldom look at people less fortunate than ourselves," he said, "and thank God for what we have. Instead we are too concerned with material things."

In January, 1948, a 36-year-old student spent two weeks in jail when he was mistakenly arrested by the FBI on a charge of desertion from the army.

In actuality, he had fought overseas in World War II and had been discharged. He left school because he could not catch up on his studies.

One quiet night in November, 1939, someone climbed KVEC's radio tower and removed the red lens from the topmost light. A penciled note was found:

"Thanks for red lens—J.C."

The Daily wrote: "Mystery surrounds the rest of the case as yet. This is only one of the puzzle detectives working for a possible solution."

The paper said the initials JC threw suspicion on San Luis junior college undergraduate.

The thief climbed the 100-foot tower, using the welded spikes that formed a ladder. If you believe in sitting on hot seats, there was a story in April, 1975 entitled "Fire defaces women's toilet." An arsonist had had his fun.

The fire was "set in the toilet itself and was started with a petroleum substance," Fire and Police Chief George Cockriel said.

In January, 1960, two freshmen were expelled from Poly for spinning their car around the lawn in front of the Administration Building. Security officers apprehended the two students, who later admitted to "having a few beers" before the incident.

Dean of Students Everett Chandler said he believed the students acted out of thoughtlessness rather than in an attempt to harm anything.

No injuries were reported but the lawn was in need of repair.

(Continued on page 6)
Knock knock! Is anyone awake out there?

Silence is golden," could very well fit the typical Cal Poly student. He shows a great passivity to pull around him, even if the bureaucracy makes decisions he doesn't like.

Like a mopey succumbing to a giant's hunger, the Poly student can become numb with fright. Maybe the problem lies within the student. Perhaps his only concern is getting through school. Perhaps the problem lies in ignorance. A feeling of helplessness.

Whatever, there appears to be a strange pall throughout this campus. Complaints are heard rarely and when they are, they are poorly supported.

As an example is the skateboard ban. Numerous students were dealt a form of transportation because of an administrative decision. But there was no outcry. George Cockriel, head of campus security, expressed surprise at how the bureaucracy makes decisions he doesn't like.

A book room called the library. Built in 1948 for a campus of 6,000 students, nearly three times that number now sift through it.

Yet around the deceptively new architecture building gowns in all its concrete and just up the hill another building sits shrouded in scaffolding.

Another example is the cry for more concerts. The students want concerts and do not support them. In October, 20,000 people saw Hot Tuna in two shows. In November, only 321 showed for Country Joe MacDonald and Third World.

Perhaps last week's fine turnout for Tim Weisberg's concert is a sign of direction. But the hypocrisy is still there. The ASI Concert Committee has come close to folding a number of times. Yet the students wereturned because they don't accord.

Computer registration, intramural sports, high on prices on campus and refrigerators in the dorms are because of the complaints made by students. But a complaint is in good without some input. You might as well spit in the wind.

What is there to do? A recent example may help.

Student Affairs Counsel had a proposal before them that some would ban bicycle riding in the inner core of the campus. Due to letters of protest to SAC and letters printed in Mustang Daily, the proposal has all but been dropped.

The students, representing probably the most cohesive campus in the California State University and Colleges system, seem afraid to speak out. Like a lamb led to the slaughter, they feel compelled to maintain a tame one and let the administrators run the show.

It is a pity. So much intelligence is lost with a handful of readers and 15,000 followers. But then, smart people don't play follow the leader, unless they agree with the issue.

Our readers write...

Harr, Harr get your Rama Rama in twenty some languages with a stick yellow sucker to boot.

On Monday Cal Poly was visited by two young students from Berkeley who were collecting donations for the purpose of translating a book into several different languages. (Unfortunately none of the translations seemed to be in simple English).

One of these young emissaries politely interrupted me from my studies and asked what my major was. At the same moment she handed me a cheap sucker and proceeded to reel off a line about Berkeley students-book translation and donation in the wink of an eye.

Pressure donedoce come from the right direction. But the hypocrisy is still there. The ASI Concert Committee has come close to folding a number of times yet the students were turned because they don't accord.

Harr, Harr get your Rama Rama in twenty some languages with a stick yellow sucker to boot.

On Monday Cal Poly was visited by two young students from Berkeley who were collecting donations for the purpose of translating a book into several different languages. (Unfortunately none of the translations seemed to be in simple English).

One of these young emissaries politely interrupted me from my studies and asked what my major was. At the same moment she handed me a cheap sucker and proceeded to reel off a line about Berkeley students-book translation and donation in the wink of an eye.

Pressure donedoce come from the right direction. But the hypocrisy is still there. The ASI Concert Committee has come close to folding a number of times yet the students were turned because they don't accord.

Harr, Harr get your Rama Rama in twenty some languages with a stick yellow sucker to boot.

On Monday Cal Poly was visited by two young students from Berkeley who were collecting donations for the purpose of translating a book into several different languages. (Unfortunately none of the translations seemed to be in simple English).

One of these young emissaries politely interrupted me from my studies and asked what my major was. At the same moment she handed me a cheap sucker and proceeded to reel off a line about Berkeley students-book translation and donation in the wink of an eye.

Pressure donedoce come from the right direction. But the hypocrisy is still there. The ASI Concert Committee has come close to folding a number of times yet the students were turned because they don't accord.
GSU accuses disco of gay discrimination in policy on couples

by J.N. SERANTI
Daily Staff Writer

A report of alleged discrimination against the Sophisticated Lady Disco Troubleshooters Union by members of Cal Poly's Gay Student Union.

The disco, which opened this weekend on Edna Road in the San Luis Obispo area, is owned by Jacksorf, a Poly student and his wife, who instructed Jacksorf to open the disco.

The incident which led to the Sophisticated Lady Troubleshooters Union was that 20 homosexuals were told they could only enter the disco as couples if they were widows or widowers of the opposite sex.

The fines were also levied, said Jackson, that once inside, couples would not be allowed to dance together.

Michael Perlin, GSU president, said he was given no indication that couples would be welcome in the disco when he attended the opening Friday night.

In the grand opening, gay couples have been made to enter in twos or dancing in the middle of the American Flags.

Jackson said he had no idea his partners were gay, and he was given no clues as to what was going to happen Friday night.

As it became obvious that his partners' friends were gay, Jackson said he didn't know what to do. About 20 gay people attended the first night.

Jackson said he was embarrassed by the gay couples' "close touch dancing," and he said he received 16 complaints about the homosexuals from other people in attendance.

"I was just so embarrassed," Jackson said. "I didn't know what to do," he said. "I just let things take their course that night, but I have no intention of allowing gay couples to dance together at the disco.

He said he is sorry about the misunderstanding, but he is afraid they would hurt the Sophisticated Lady's business because homosexuals and heterosexuals will not mix.

"I think they're just a drag," Jackson said. "I don't want them around," he said.
South Bread on way to The Graduate

Prices Good thru Feb. 1, 1977

Bonnie Hubbard
USD

JUICE
5 6 oz. cans $1

Banquet Dinners 43*

FACTOR CORN cream or whole kernel 17 oz. can ACORN TOMATOES 16 oz. can PLUM Sweet PEAS 16 oz. can BEANS 16 oz. can

Mix or Match

USDA Choice
ROUND STEAK 89¢ lb.

PEACHES 28 oz. cans $1

GROUND BEEF 49¢ lb.

6-pac PEPSI 16 oz. + deposit

"The greening of Cal Poly--by Mary Green"
Green, retiring bookstore manager

If there's one single aspect I've enjoyed most, its the students...we have the greatest group of students.

and there was constantly a building going up somewhere. Of course, today there is still building going on.

When more and more students came we began to lose the closeness of the school. It began to spread geographically, too. People began to polarize themselves around their own areas. We've lost that feeling of "one big family" situation.

MD: Do you think the growth has been healthy for the community?

Green: Yes, I think the growth has been healthy. It would certainly have grown anyway because it's such a nice area. There's no question that the campus has contributed to the financial health of the community. There have been costs for the town...more police and so on...but its been worth it for the community.

MD: What problems do you anticipate in the future for Cal Poly?

Green: The only problems I see in the future for Cal Poly are the problems that come with growth. There are the problems of the bookstore reaching the place where it was six or seven years ago.

I remember when the bookstore was in the old administration building we had about 3,500 students. We were still waiting on them from behind counter. I remember students used to stand in block long lines for days to get their books.

Right now it's easy to manage the bookstore because it was built to accommodate 15,000. The bookstore is enjoying a rather peaceful period here.

MD: What are your plans for the future?

Green: My plans are the same as the plans of anyone who has worked for 40 years. I'm going to relax...take off down the highway at a moment's notice. The people at the bookstore got me a round trip ticket to Hawaii as a retirement present.

I've had many job offers. If I get bored I may look for a little part time job, but I don't want to work full time again.

MD: What will you miss most about leaving Cal Poly/Green: The students. If there's one single aspect I've enjoyed most, it's the privilege of working with students. I don't think I'm prejudiced; I think we have the greatest group of students here at Cal Poly.

I find students today are a lot more approachable. The students that were here years ago were mostly vets (veterans), and many were married. They were a different kind than we have now.

New bookstore manager a well-travelled pro

As Lee Green, long time Cal Poly Bookstore manager, Ivan L. Sanderson, retires from the post, the Cal Poly Bookstore has also undergone a change. The old administration building where the bookstore once was is now a part of the campus. The new bookstore is located in the old administration building in the 50s, a coeducational population.

Sanderson earned certificates from the National Association of College Stores (NASC), Management Seminar at Stanford and the NASC Advanced Management Seminar at Harvard.

"He's totally devoted to the service of faculty and students," Green, who is retiring, said. "I feel very content leaving the bookstore to him."

In his new position, Sanderson will be responsible for all auxiliary services of the university bookstore.

Sanderson earned his bachelor's degree in sociology at the University of California, Berkeley. He has also completed a master's program in management at the University of California, Santa Barbara.

FRIDAY, JANUARY 28 AT 6:30 and 10:15 p.m.
SATURDAY, JANUARY 29 AT 7:00 p.m.

CHUMASH AUDITORIUM  ADMISSION: $1.00
PRESENTED BY THE ASI FILMS COMMITTEE
PRIZES WILL BE GIVEN AWAY FROM

ET CETERA
Dinners from

McINTOCK'S
Legal Aid seeks help

by DUNCAN MACDONALD
Daily Staff Writer

An effort is being made by an ASI committee to revamp the dilapidated Legal Aid Committee, whose funds were frozen last year.

Legal Aid may be terminated and replaced with information pamphlets detailing legal services available to students.

The unoffical committee, spearheaded by ASI Vice-President Ray Davis, is collecting information from off-campus housing coordinator Walt Davis, is collecting information from off campus housing coordinator Walt Davis, is collecting information from other county agencies. The information will be compiled in a pamphlet for students.

The pamphlet will include a list of lawyers approved by Legal Services, a list of county agencies and it will explain standard legal procedures.

Funds allocated to the Legal Aid Committee will be used to finance the pamphlet. The pamphlet proves insufficient and an official legal aid committee was established for a legal aid committee, ASI funds will be required for legal aid according to Davis.

As for now, Legal Aid is unofficially emerized.

ASI funds for Legal Aid Committee were frozen in early December, 1976. In a memorandum from Davis to Richard Shaffer, then acting chairman of the committee, Davis expressed his disapproval of the committee. Davis asked the committee to come forward and identify their full-name and a preferred nickname on the back of the picture.

Would you rather be a social security number or a person? Unfortunately in our mechanized, computerized society we are usually the former.

Sometime last year, Richard Shaffer, social science assistant professor, has a different way of getting to know his students. He photographs them and with names on the back, memorizes who is who. (Daily photo by J. Frank Laird)

Smile, he wants your picture

Lingerinng Poly mysteries

(Continued from page 1)

In May, 1969, two Associated Students, Inc. student body government candidates—presidential hopeful Dave Markowitz and vice presidential candidate Ken Murray—were dismissed and a third candidate resigned as a result of being drunk at the Poly homecoming football game.

The charges were mild, but some Golden slaves and alumni were "visibly upset" at the actions of the cheerleaders.

Poly won the game, 16-11.

Ramos was diseoomed because of the paper's endorsement of Markowitz and Murray earlier in the week. The election was won by Paul Kressge and Dick Barrett.

In November, 1968, two University of California at Santa Barbara cheerleaders were dismissed and a student resigned as a result of being drunk at the Poly homecoming football game.

The charges were mild, but some Golden slaves and alumni were "visibly upset" at the actions of the cheerleaders.

Poly won the game, 16-11.
Growing Billy

by KEVIN FALLS

Daily Sutter Editor

Sutton Billy Martin puts me on duty.

The fiery manager of the New York Yankees will run on the headlines in town.

Last week he complained about everything from Pete Rose's game to the fact that scheduling played him why his club didn't win
the World Series.

What is so baffling about all this is that Martin, the man who told me the answer to everything, was like when he was a kid. It would be safe to say that one would like to be on the same Little League team as him. He must have been the built, the smart, the guy that always disliked when you went to a movie. It's too bad, because the man does know baseball. It is probable that he could be aYM manager if he learned the secret of being cool. Sorry, bandido the thought.

There is this guy in my hometown who lives and dies by the Yankees.
When Mickey Mantle retired they had a picture of him in the high school yearbook crying. Get the idea?

Anyway, he demoted Billy Martin when he coached for other teams the last ten years. That is until he became the headline man of the Yankees.

"We need a guy like Martin to fire us up," he said when he first heard the news.

Typical. That is why Martin will always make it in the Bigs. Because he does one thing right. He wins.

Can't knock success. Yet, soul-scorched Alvin Dark, who has to be on the other end of the spectrum with his God fearing ways, managed the boisterous Oakland A's to a World. Fired after the 1975 season by Charlie Finley, he has yet to find even a coaching job.

Maybe Leo Durocher, another coughed-up manager is right. In the long run, nice guys do finish last.

Dropping some Eggs
for a better designs

Dropping an egg 42-feet is even more of a task with a brown hat,

Wasserman's environmental that name.

Wasserman asked his

the package should be like in a hurry now.

the creations that the west end anywhere.

the propeties,

buck, been said cardboard

none even used would be below by means of miniature parachutes. Wasserman said were the easy way

was not the Old

"large supply of nuts & bolts.

Farmer's Ace Hardware

581 Higuera St. L.O.

543-7102

KIRK'S HOME FURNITURE

SLO-LOS ANGELES

10% OFF 75th ANNIVERSARY

NEW YORK STYLE

WED $2.25 THURS $2.25

DINNER SPECIAL

Golden Cheese or Blueberry Blintzes with Sour Cream and Preserves

includes Appetizer or Soup or Salad

Open Daily 7-8 p.m.

786 Higuera 544-4040

Cowboy’s are victorious again in men's and women's rodeo

The men's rodeo team won its second victory in three starts for the 1976-77 season in Yuma, Ariz., last weekend.

Coach Ken Scoppa's Cal
Ploy team bested arch-rival,

Fresno State and earned 353 points and the all around cowboy title in doing so.

In the women's division, Central Arizona College of Costline gave every indication of being the powerhouse for this season as it walked away with an easy victory and double.

Nearly all of the 22-eligible university, college and community college teams in the Western Region of the National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association were on hand for the meet hosted by Arizona Western College in the sun-baked Yuma County Fairground Arena.

Jim Pratt, captain of the Ploy team, was all-around cowboy, with Candy Hawthorne
the comedian, and Taylor McDonald of Red Bluff, team alumnus, tied in line for the title.

in the women's competition, Holly Van Winkle of Central Arizona College won the all around honors, with team mate Penny Simon as consorter.

Newcomer to Cal Poly
Ploy Joe Harvel of Pommel Mountain, Nev., lived up to his reputation by winning the

The Cal Poly teams will face action next on Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 12-13, when Imperial College hosts a meet at Brawley.
ASI BYLAWS ELECTION

WEDNESDAY AND THURSDAY FEB. 2nd and 3rd

POLLING PLACES: U.U. PLAZA
AG. CIRCLE
LIBRARY LAWN

THESE BYLAWS REVISIONS ARE PROPOSED TO ALLOW THE ASI TO FUNCTION MORE SMOOTHLY.

Revision 1. The concept of three new councils
The major restructuring of the ASI involves adding three (3) new councils:
(a) The President's Executive Cabinet (PEC)
(b) The Student Academic Council
(c) The Student Administrative Council

(See Article VII, Article XIII, and Article XIV, Respectively)
The purpose of these councils is to reduce the demands on the ASI President's time, thereby allowing him to concentrate on matters of highest importance and interest to the Associated Students. The ASI President will need only attend the President's Executive Cabinet to learn of most issues involving students, academics, and university administration, rather than attending numerous councils and meetings, hearing the same material many times over.

Members of PEC include:
(a) ASI President
(b) ASI Vice President
(c) ASI Secretary
(d) Assistant to the President (Internal Affairs)
(e) Assistant to the President (External Affairs)
(f) Finance Chairperson
(g) Chairperson of Student Academic Council
(h) Chairperson of Student Administrative Council
(i) Chairperson of Student Program Council
(j) University President's Representative

The Internal and External Affairs Assistant will attend certain meetings in lieu of the President and will be the President's direct line to internal and external affairs of the ASI.

Duties of the Internal Affairs Assistant (Article V, Section E) include:
(a) Shall be chairperson of Student Appeals and Advisory Commission—an expansion of the old Advisory Commission.
(b) Shall be responsible for PEC meetings.
(c) Shall be responsible for all duties assigned by the President.
(d) Shall be eligible for grant-in-aid.

Duties of the External Affairs Assistant (Article V, Section F) include:
(a) Shall be the working link between the ASI and local city and county.
(b) Shall assist the ASI President in State Affairs.
(c) Shall work with all community oriented organizations.
(d) Shall be responsible for all duties assigned by the President.
(e) Shall be eligible for grant-in-aid.

The Student Academic Council (Article XIII) will expand and bring together, separately, in one body, the academically related student representatives currently attending the President's Administrative Council (PAC) for the purpose of discussing and making recommendations to the ASI President, and the President's Administrative Cabinet, regarding the academic affairs of the university.

The Student Administrative Council (Article XIV) will bring together in one body, the administrative related student representatives currently attending the President's Administrative Council (PAC) for the purpose of discussing and making recommendations to the ASI President's and Presidents Executive Council regarding the administration of the University, the Foundation, and Student Services.

The Academic and Administrative Councils will reduce the ASI President's meeting demand by communicating with him through their prospective chairpersons who are members of PEC.

Revision 2. Restructure of Student Executive Council into the Student Program Council (Article XI)
The purpose of restructuring and forming the Student Program Council is to clarify its membership, duties and powers and to change its name to one more appropriate to its duties. The only major change is to take away their control over the Finance Committee (revision III to follow). Program Council will retain all other powers formerly associated with FEC.

Revision 3. Making Finance Committee a standing committee of the Student Senate (Article III)
The Finance Committee in the Student Senate (SAC), the legislative body of the ASI. Meetings in the Senate would give the Program Council a lesser control over the allocation of student fees.

Revision 4. Change name of Student Affairs Council to Student Senate
This revision would change all references to Student Affairs Council (SAC) and SAC Representatives in the ASI Bylaws to Student Senate and Student Senators. The purpose of this revision is to give this legislative branch of the ASI a title more commensurate of its duties.

Revision 5. Create Student Executive Committee (Article VI, Section I)
The purpose of this committee will be to prepare the agenda and to insure adequate control over the quality of legislation and depth of discussion. Membership will include:
(a) ASI Vice President
(b) Student Senate Vice Chairperson
(c) Chairperson of Student Academic Council
(d) Chairperson of Student Program Council
(e) Chairperson of Student Program Council
(f) Finance Committee Chairperson

Revision 6. Expand Advisory Commission to Student Appeals and Advisory Commission (Article IX)
Expanding the Advisory Commission to Student Appeals and Advisory Commission provides student input into the student disciplinary process of the university on matters referred to the commission by the University President, Student Senate, Academic Senate or other organizational advisor.

Questions can be answered at a Question and Answer Session on Tuesday, Feb. 1 at 11:00 AM in Chumash Auditorium.