"You'll be damn lucky if you find old singles in good shape. I prefer buying reissues of old singles.

Gene is disgusted with the thought of paying $37 for an album.

"Some radio stations call an oldie any record that's been off the charts for six months," said Gene. "I think that's bunch of garbage. I think a record that's been off the charts for a short time should be called a recent hit.

The oldies format generally consists of records recorded between the 30's and 40's.

I respect all the eras," said Gene. "I love the music from '40 to '70. I really like the music when psychedelic rock was at its peak.

OUR READERS

The two letters following mine in the May 19th issue are perfect examples of what I was talking about.

I find it interesting that these Christians are using the homosexual issue to announce their belief for all mankind. The homosexuals are sinners, but it doesn’t mean because we’re all sinners that we’re all homosexuals.

I have very strong values and I live by them. Yet I will not put my values and morals against any Christian. I will not write letters to the editor such as those I just mentioned.

I quoted: “The standards of people are weak and prone to corruption. My standards, by which I think you mean values, are not weak, nor are they prone to corruption. I have both religious upbringing; my father is an atheist and I have been to church only about seven times. Yet I will not put my values and morals against any Christian.”

Valley fever—a dusty danger for field workers

by WENDY I. HILL

Dutch Daily Writer

You're driving through the San Joaquin Valley on a hot, dusty day, and the temptation to stop for a deep breath may seem inviting. But if you're a field worker, the temptation should be resisted.

It's not just the dust that's problematic. Valley Fever is a fungal disease that enters the body through the skin or lungs. It can cause coughs, fever, and sometimes death. Those who have contracted the disease once before are immune, but reinfection is possible.

People who live in or travel to areas with high endemicity for Valley Fever should take precautions to avoid exposure. This includes wearing protective clothing, using insect repellent, and washing hands frequently.

Community construction workshop is planned

Gerro Gordo, a modern alternative and community workshop, is being planned and constructed by a group of students in the Willamette Valley. The workshop is designed to be sustainable, self-sufficient, and to serve as a model for future community projects.

The workshop will include lectures and hands-on activities, with a focus on eco-friendly building techniques and materials. Participants will have the opportunity to learn from experienced builders and designers.

The workshop is sponsored by Cerro Gordo Center for Creative Community and its mission is to provide educational opportunities and resources for individuals and communities interested in sustainable living.

Poly nine eliminated in regional sweep

by COREY BRITTON
Daily Bull Writer

The Cal Poly baseball team entered the NCAA Division II Western Regional with the following statistics: a record of 4 wins, first place in the Southern California Baseball Alliance and the second ranked Division II team in the nation.

Unfortunately, nobody could Northridge or Hayward State of Poly's accomplishments, and as a result the Mustangs were swept out of the series.

The Mustangs were defeated 1-0 in the opening game by Cal State Northridge. Hayward then ended Poly's first try in the regionals with a 7-2 win.

"During the first game we lost all three aspects of the game," assistant coach Dan Marple said. "We did not have any hitting, we made five errors and we did not have good pitching."

Earlier in the season, Poly and Northridge split two doubleheaders. Jack Freeland, who was 2-0 against Northridge, started for the Mustangs.

"Northridge is traditionally a late-season ball club. There was no way that we were looking past them to Riverside. The coaches and the players knew they would be tough," Marple said.

In the second game, Hayward had a perfect game against the Mustangs until Tom Beyers knocked a two-out single in the seventh inning. Poly was held scoreless until the ninth when they struck for its only two runs, capped by a triple by Beyers.

"Hayward came down to the tournament with the attitude that they may not win, so they were loose. We were a little tight and still thinking about the loss from the day before," Marple said.

The saying "anybody can beat anybody else on a given day" was well in effect in the second game.

Welcome to the Nationals. The Cal Poly students interested in trying out for the 1977 women's intercollegiate volleyball team must attend a meeting in Crandall gym this Thursday at 11 a.m. Tryouts will be held in August. Those unable to attend should contact Linda McArthur in Crandall Rm. 11.

Naturally, no one person is going to "solve" the energy problem singlehandedly; it's going to take a lot of concerned people, working together, to even begin to solve the problems of fuel conservation, wildlife preservation, recycling, smog-free rapid transit, fume incineration and water purification.

The thing is...as concerned as we are about these problems, and others, at PG&E we don't think "concern" is enough. The concern has to motivate action. And that's what we're coming to grips with. Here-and-now, how-to realities.

If you're a graduating civil, electrical or mechanical engineer, and you've never decided to do something about the energy problem.

You are cordially invited to do something about the energy problem.

So, if you're a "how-to" person, a person who's more than an idealistic abstractionist, there may be an opportunity for you with us to work toward solutions to problems that concern you.

Sure, we've got the establishment benefits that make life a little easier to cope with, like good pay and employee benefits. But we've also got the things that make life worth living. Realistic challenges.

If you're a graduating civil, electrical or mechanical engineer, and you've never thought about working for (and/or with) us before, give us a thought. Send your resume to John Clemson at PG&E's Professional Employment Office, 245 Market Street, San Francisco, CA 94106.
