Idea for Lutherans: AAL's idea man can customize a life insurance program that's ideal for you

For ages, Americans have criticized government officials for not looking after their interests and paying them no attention. Last week, it was San Luis Obispo residents turn to criticize the government.

Following the Oct. 1 immigration of City Councilman T. Keith Greene, it was figured the vacancy on the council would be filled by Melanie Billing. Billing received the third highest number of votes in last March's election of city council representatives.

It should have been Billing versus no one when the city council voted to appoint a new member. But surprisingly and shockingly, someone by the name of Alene Smith is now San Luis Obispo City Councilman.

Council furor is far from settled

Bill supporters presented petitions bearing more than 1,000 signatures. She also received 2,066 votes in the March election. But this was still not enough to be appointed. Instead, City Council made a fit to name another man who received no votes in March, had no signatures on petitions, and no evident public support.

Sattala holds a doctorate in political science, with emphasis in municipal government. He is also a member of Cal Poly's Political Science Department faculty. His credentials may be above critique, but the procedures used by the council to get him appointed are not.

By now just about everyone has had a chance to listen to the university's radio station, KCP. Any of our listeners from last year know that we have made a major format change this fall in switching to top-40 music from our previous hard rock sound.

It's been a subject of much debate among both our staff and our listeners. Our ultimate goal in changing formats is to better serve our listeners, not just the university students, but also the thousands of people who are not just from San Luis Obispo,

But Keith Greene, where have you led the voters? You have resigned and left City Council in turmoil. Our liberal, or even middle-of-the-road voters are no longer being heard when it is a matter of concern. Sure, you were frustrated, but were you in office.

Our new voice, Jorpa has come to hear the majority—be it wrong or right. It now appears that the liberal voice that should be heard on the San Luis Obispo City Council. Until the next election.

MUSTANG DAILY
Banking blood to save lives

By LAURA CHRISTMAN

Daily Student Volunteer

Some people in the community have come forward willing to give up their blood for a cause. The cause is life and the people are the blood donors at Tri-Counties Blood Bank.

Tri-Counties Blood Bank, according to Carol Richardson, an employee there, is a non-profit organization with the goal of providing blood to hospitals in Santa Barbara and Ventura counties.

"Blood is needed for surgery, especially open heart surgery," Richardson said. "It is also needed for people who have been in accidents, axially open heart, and many transfusions and cancer organizations are active in giving blood. It is a simple procedure, she said.

"We charge the hospitals 210 a pint, said Tri-Counties Blood Bank receive credit for their donation. They choose to put it into an individual or group account. These credits may be used to replace blood a patient needed to be used by the donor if ever needed."

"Someone who is in the hospital and has been given blood can have his friends and relatives pay it back by donating their blood to his individual account," Richardson said.

"No one is forced to replace blood this way, she said. Some people may choose the option to pay for the blood used, but it can be expensive."

"We charge the hospitals 239 for a pint of blood," she said.

"But, they can charge the patient anything they want. I've heard it go as high as 2100 for a pint."

Cal Poly has its own group account and Tri-Counties Blood Bank gets many Poly people who want to use their credits for donating to go to this account, Richardson said. All students, faculty and staff are entitled to use credits from the Cal Poly account when there is a need for blood.

"We love students," Richardson said. "Things have really picked up now that Poly is back in session."

She said students usually come in big groups to donate and many transfusions and cancer organizations are active in giving blood. It is a simple procedure, she said. This takes only about 10 minutes from the time a person walks in until he is on the table.

A person who wants to donate blood must be between 18 and 66 years of age or 17 with parental consent. Richardson said donors are required to fill out an information sheet to make sure they are healthy.

"Diseases like jaundice and hepatitis are automatic rejections for life," Richardson said. "Temporary rejections are things like being pregnant, taking heavy medications, or having just received a blood transfusion yourself."

Individual account,” Richardson said.

"We take up their blood for 300 pints of blood each month, according to Carol Richardson, a Cal Poly student Dale Myer gives up some of his blood at Tri-Counties Blood Bank. Carolyn Baker, R.N., performs the simple procedure. (Daily photo by Peggy Meador)

Individual accounts allow you to put your credits to use at a later date. They can use the credit to book in the blood bank, or they can use the credit to book in Tri-Counties Blood Bank. Generally, a donor has a "Go to the store for you to browse them in" option.

Mopeds: New transportation mode

By JACk SCHREIBER
Daily Staff Writer

They're fun, they're easy, they're economical—but what are they?

The questions who can ride a moped? "Who can operate a moped?" is among the most popular questions asked about mopeds, but there's a lot more to know about these two-wheeled vehicles.

There is a distinction between "scooter" and "moped," and the California law on moped use is different from the law on scooters. Mopeds are two-wheeled vehicles that are designed to be used for transportation, while scooters are generally used for recreation or exercise.

Despite their differences, mopeds can be operated by anyone who has a valid California driver's license or instructional permit. They may be ridden on state property or other areas where a moped is allowed.

There are a few exceptions to this rule, however. Mopeds may not be ridden on state property if they are being used for transportation, and they may not be ridden on state property if they are being used for recreational purposes.

There are also restrictions on where mopeds can be ridden, depending on the type of moped and the driver's license or permit. For example, mopeds can only be ridden on roads, streets, or highways, and they must be ridden in a manner that does not interfere with traffic.

Despite these regulations, mopeds have become increasingly popular in recent years, and they are now a common sight on the roads and streets of California. They are often used as an alternative to cars, especially in urban areas where parking can be difficult.

In conclusion, mopeds are a popular and convenient way to get around, but it's important to understand the rules and regulations that govern their use, in order to ensure the safety of all road users.
Now comes Miller time.
Poly Pulse

Student government bodies on campus are considering raising registration fees $2-$4 a quarter to help finance campus clubs and organizations.

Last week, a number of Poly students were asked to give their opinions on this matter. The following are some of the responses.

Poly Pulse will be a weekly feature in Mustang Daily.

"It’s a good idea if a lot of clubs are looking funds and if the student body is willing to do it." Susan Glandini, em., OH

"Fee are too expensive right now, and there might be just too many clubs as it is. So, I think they should research how many clubs there should be." Gerald Green, em., civil eng.

"It’s okay if it’s for insurance because I know they are having a big bands with that right now. If it’s going to go to clubs, I don’t see why not." Cindy Dison, em., daily ns.

Globetrotters find fans

Comedy was the name of the game Tuesday night when the world-famous Harlem Globetrotters came to town.

The basketball squad of six members came to the Cal Poly Gymnasium to do battle with their own traveling exhibition, the California Chiefs—a team comprised of college students.

The outcome of the game, if anyone is interested, was the Globetrotters 108, Chiefs 102.

As far as the young people attending the show were concerned, the Globetrotters were head and shoulders over everybody, regardless of the score. Thanks to the incredibly funny antics of Robert "Downtown" Koskie, laughter filled the gym nearly every time a Globetrotter made the basket.

Prior to the game, the Trotters did the famous running out onto the court and performed in their famous warm-up circle. Of course, the background music was the legendary Harlem Globetrotters theme—"Sweet Georgia Brown."

During the warm-up, the Trotters displayed their many passing talents that have made them the most famous basketball team in America.

During the game Ozone would occasionally shout out, "Don't worry, I got 'em all, I got 'em all!"

The kids were another part of the show, but they didn't know it until Ozone would grab them in the arm and take them onto the court.

Ozone on the court, the youngsters were told to take a miniature souvenir basketball into the hoop.

"Aawde" once grabbed a youngster from the stands, told him to throw the ball to the Globetrotters' hoop. Surprisingly, he made it, and was then ushered to the Chief's bench and a player was put in the stands.

- As the Globetrotters came back on the court, numerous youngsters crowded around the front, waiting for the return of the stars.

It was a night to be remembered. The fans had seen one portion of the Harlem Globetrotters in their hometown.

After the game hundreds of youngsters dashed after the retiring stars as they headed for the dressing room.

It would be great to get just one autograph.
