Landlords contacted on enforcement

By RICHARD PRICE
Daily Staff Writer

Enforcement of the ordinance making it illegal for more than three unrelated people to live in a home led landlords to contact tenants to comply with the law.

Compliance, he added, means “taking any necessary steps” to reduce the number of unrelated people to live there.

The official asserted that the letters are only requests sent to the banks of complaints received by phone. He said the letters do not represent any legal action.

But landlords feel it compulsory to comply within 10 days after the letter is sent, Smith emphasized. “It’s not, in any way, an attempt to harass the violator of the ordinance.”

He added an explaining what he meant by “try to get.”

Smith reminded Friday to produce copies of the letter, explaining “there is a fine point of law!” It reflected “I would visit further with the city attorney.

Ride board drawbacks

I had a really fantastic weekend plan.

On Saturday, I'd planned to go to a party, but then I had to go to work. So I decided to go to a restaurant instead. It was really nice.

However, when I got there, I realized I had no money for the bill. So I had to ask for a discount. It was really embarrassing.

On Sunday, I had planned to go to the beach with my friends, but it was really windy. So we had to cancel.

Then on Monday, I had planned to go to the movies, but it was really crowded. So we had to change our plans.

Tuesday, I had planned to go to a concert, but it was really expensive. So I decided to cancel.

Wednesday, I had planned to go to a bar, but it was really noisy. So I decided to cancel.

Thursday, I had planned to go to a restaurant, but it was really crowded. So I decided to cancel.

Friday, I had planned to go to a party, but then I had to work. So I decided to cancel.

I really need to plan my weekends better.

Preppy welcomed to the unexpected

The Preppy Power was the toast of the town. Everyone was talking about the Preppy Power, and everyone wanted to be a Preppy Power.

But then something unexpected happened. A Preppy Power ran into a tree and was killed.

Now, everyone is talking about the Preppy Power in a different way. Everyone is saying that the Preppy Power was an accident, and that it was a tragic event.

But I think it's more than that. I think it's a warning.

Dear Mustang Daily,

I read your article about the Preppy Power and was shocked. I don't think anyone should be above the law, especially if they are driving recklessly.

Sincerely,

Dear Mustang Daily,

I think your coverage of the Preppy Power was great. It showed how important it is to be safe when driving.

Sincerely,

Color causes Capitol concern

A bill currently being debated by the California State Senate could cause some changes in the Capitol building.

The bill, known as the "Capitol Color Bill," proposes to change the current red color of the building to a more neutral shade of gray.

Opponents of the bill argue that changing the color could affect the building's historic value.

Sponsor of the bill, Senator Smith, believes that the change will make the Capitol more modern and appealing to visitors.

The bill is expected to be voted on next week.
Assembly defeats fee increase

If you are a student, you might not like it, but you can probably get away with it, since you are not alone.

Fees can be increased, but they must be done carefully. The idea of a fee increase must be presented to the students in a fair and honest manner. The fee increase must be necessary and justifiable. The fee increase must be explained to the students in a clear and concise manner. The fee increase must be approved by the student body. The fee increase must be communicated to the students in a timely and effective manner. The fee increase must be implemented in a fair and equitable manner.

According to Dr. Thomas, the flu is similar to other viruses that cause the common cold. He said that the flu is not the same as the cold as is often mistaken.

About two weeks after the virus hit, there was a small outbreak of the virus. The virus is spread through direct contact with someone who has the virus. Pippin's learning processes stem from humanistic ideas

By JULIUS AUSTIN

Education can be nothing more than you learn why you learn.

That's the idea behind Pippin's Learning Program, taught by Lou Pippin, the owner-editor of the Daily Trojan. Pippin, a recently retired professor from USC, started the workshop to help students understand the importance of learning and to foster a sense of community among students. The program is called the "Daily Trojan Workshop." Pippin believes that education is more than just memorizing facts; it's about understanding the human experience and why we learn.

"It's the type of program we need for today's students. A lot of students are lost, and they don't know what they're doing," Pippin said. "We need a program that can help students understand why they learn and what they're learning for." Pippin describes his workshop as a place where students can come together and learn about the human experience.

He was approached by the Media Department of USC to teach the workshop. The program is held in the Daily Trojan's newsroom, and it's open to all students.

"Books are written to sell, not to teach," said Pippin. "But I have never met a student who can't tell me something they learned from a book." Pippin prefers an informal atmosphere where students can share their ideas and learn from each other.

On the second day of the program, one of the students asked, "What is the difference between a professor and a student?" Pippin simply replied, "The difference is that a professor has learned, but a student has learned, too." Pippin's single-handedly promoted the Learning Program class to meet the objective specified under the Proposition 13 and Learning Law of 1978, in the Department. The development is to concentrate on teaching the methods and measures of simple examination of the department districts, and involve preparation insufficiencies.

The course attempts to stimulate self-confidence, interest, and importance, self-employment, and available self-sufficient services of the Prop. 13 Project will be in four work written.

"I asked him if he had any advice for students who were interested in the program. He said, 'The best advice is to just do it.'" Pippin said. "Don't wait for someone to tell you what to do. Just go out and do it." Of course, Pippin is optimistic about the program's success.

"I think it's going to be great," Pippin said. "It's a unique program that can really help students understand the importance of learning."

Old teammates haunt Poly nine

Lo and behold, it’s baseball season again. Get your way Saturday as this varsity team went on an anxious trip.

The alumni team made up of junior basketball star and varsity basketball team captain Barry Harr’s teammates and current teammates.

Last year’s top game winner, Jack Frandsen, and former Cal Poly student were among the alumni who were killed by the current Poly team. The alumni went on to win.

Brighton Davis, who is playing in the San Diego Padres organization, started the game with a walk, stole a steal, and scored on a flyout.

The varsity could only manage five hits on senior hits, but the game was tied 3-3 after three innings.

With six of the top seven hitters returning from last year, the varsity will be stronger this season.

“Some of the pitchers we have added are in the same contract year and stay for two years. The rest should be solid and there are a year older and more experienced,” said Harr.

Newscenter Gary Bowers from Poly is an impressive addition to the varsity, Bowers has been drafted four times by major league teams—once by the California Angels and two each by the Cleveland Indians and Chicago White Sox.

Danny Gan in back of the varsity will be counted on to help the team average 2.08

The official opening will be this Friday night at 8 p.m. at the beach side temple for the opening game in the Santa Barbara City College Baseball Stadium.

Long Beach and the varsity are both coming off a strong showing on Tuesday. Jack President is expected to start for the Mustangs on Friday.

Technology: Problem solver, trouble maker

By SANDY NAZ

Technology should not be seen as mere numbers or improvements to the status quo; rather, it can be a solution to the problems of the day, ensuring a better tomorrow.

That is what Dr. William Hartman, an Iowa State University professor of lifelong learning, said during his presentation on Thursday.

Hartman said technology is the key to making a difference today. He said that technology is not just about making something more efficient or easier to use, but about solving problems and making the world a better place.

"Technology is the key to making a difference today. It is not just about making something more efficient or easier to use, but about solving problems and making the world a better place," Hartman said.

However, Hartman also warned that technology can be a double-edged sword. He said that it is important to be aware of the consequences of our actions and the potential impacts of new technologies.

"To make these changes, a technological framework is needed to ensure that we are aware of what will happen in the future. We must be prepared for the unexpected," Hartman said.

Hartman's lecture was the second in a series of quarterly presentations sponsored by the School of Continuing Arts and Information Management.

Satellite ban asked

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Carter asked Monday to keep an eye on the Soviet Union to prevent the development of low-flying satellites carrying nuclear warheads.

He said such a satellite could pose a threat to the United States and would be a breach of the 1972 Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) agreements.

"I think the United States should have a ban on nuclear warheads on satellites," Carter told a nationally televised news conference.

Carter also said the United States has no plans to use nuclear warheads in outer space, but he added that the United States is prepared to use nuclear weapons in other ways.

"We have the capability of using nuclear weapons in other ways, but we are not planning to use them in outer space," Carter said.
