Orchesis presents ‘Dances of the People’

In this issue’s column, the art of choreography is discussed. The author, a member of the Cal Poly Dance Club, shares insights into the process of creating dance performances. The members of Orchesis, the Cal Poly Dance Club, present a dance concert each year, with the theme of "Dances of the People." The dancers spend countless hours perfecting their routines, often working with professionals to enhance their performances. The choreography is a collaborative effort, with each dancer contributing to the final product. The dancers' dedication and hard work pay off, as the performances are always highly anticipated and well-received. The author expresses gratitude for the opportunity to be a part of such a talented group of dancers and encourages others to join in and contribute to the creative process. The message is clear: dance is a form of expression and a way to connect with others. Whether you are a seasoned dancer or a newcomer, there is always room to grow and learn from others in the art of choreography.
Cambodian horror

The way has been open for some years now for reports of mass killings and deportations inside Cambodia. The expression "country of killing" is revealing the country's true nature, and a country cannot be a true country if it is a country of killing.

The horror in Cambodia is related to the way the country has been run and the influence of the Khmer Rouge, a radical communist group that has been in power since 1975. The government has been accused of widespread human rights abuses, including torture, imprisonment, and extrajudicial executions.

Religion has also been banned, and some religious leaders have been arrested or killed. Christian churches in Cambodia have been shut down, and millions of people have been displaced from their homes.

In some cases, people have been forced to work in slave labor conditions, and those who resist have been killed. The government has also been accused of using forced labor to build infrastructure projects.

Cambodian culture and traditions have been destroyed, and the country's economy has been ruined. The government has been accused of corruption and embezzlement of funds meant for rebuilding the country.

The international community has been slow to respond, and many have doubted the government's ability to handle the situation. The United Nations has been criticized for not doing enough to intervene.

In conclusion, Cambodia is a country that is in great need of international support and assistance. The government must be held accountable for its actions, and the international community must do more to prevent further human rights abuses and support the country's efforts to rebuild and recover.

Program offers college abroad

By JULIE MICHAELS

A program in Brussels, Belgium, known as "Ecole Européenne Interuniversitaire," is offering financial aid to college students who want to study in Europe.

Students who are eligible can apply for the program, which is offered through the European Commission of the European University Association. The program is open to students from European Union countries and requires that applicants have completed at least one year of college.

Students must have completed at least one year of college and can apply through their university's international office. The deadline for applications is April 1.

Students who are accepted into the program will receive a stipend to cover living expenses and tuition costs. The program also includes travel expenses for students who need to travel to Brussels.

In addition to financial aid, the program offers opportunities for students to study and work in Europe. Students can choose from a variety of courses and can also participate in internships or research projects.

Debaters get top spots

Six members of the Cal Poly Debate Team qualified for the national championship tournament. The team's top debaters include David Nelson, a junior from SLO County, and Mark Thomas, a senior from San Luis Obispo.

The team qualified for the national championship tournament by winning four of five preliminary rounds. They will compete in the final round on April 15th, which will be held in Detroit, Michigan.

The team's success is a testament to the hard work and dedication of the team members. They have been preparing for this competition for months and have been working hard to improve their skills and knowledge of the subject matter.

In addition to the top debaters, the team also has several other members who are participating in the tournament. The team is excited to compete at the national level and hopes to do well in the competition.

Misery immobilizes Northeast

Snow, winds and snowstorms brought a second day of misery to millions in the blizzard-plagued Northeast on Tuesday. More than 1,000 schools were closed in New York City alone, and authorities warned that conditions in the region would continue to deteriorate.

Increased cold and heavy snowfall hit the region on Monday, following a weekend of blizzards. The storm has already caused widespread power outages and transportation disruptions.

UMW leaders meet for vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — United Mine Workers met Tuesday for a crucial vote on whether to halt the strike that has stopped coal production since late 1970.

The vote was to decide whether to accept a contract offer from the coal industry, which would allow the strike to continue indefinitely.

Rally committee plagued by apathy

Michael O'FERRAN
Assistant Daily Editor

The Rally Committee has been plagued by apathy, lack of funds, and a lack of new blood. The problem is so long-lasting that it is hard to find anything positive to say about the committee, said Todd Carroll, junior, president of the Rally Committee.

The Rally Committee is a student group that organizes social activities on campus. Activities are aimed at increasing the student body's interest in the school. They have created a social atmosphere on campus.

Eanie, Rally Committee co-president, expressed her disinterest in the committee. "I was asked to be a part of the committee, and I didn't really see the point. It's just not my thing."

The Rally Committee has received a bad reputation on campus. They have been accused of being boring and not contributing to the school's atmosphere.

What happened to the tennis boom?

By WILL GRIMSMEL

New York (AP)—When the tennis boom hit American campuses, it was expected to continue. But now, the tennis boom is over, and many feel it's for good.

"There's not as much interest in tennis now," said Jim Rogers, a junior on the tennis team. "It's just not as popular as it was a few years ago."

The tennis boom hit in the mid-1970s, but by the early 1980s, it had faded away. The reasons for its decline are many, including increased competition from other sports, higher costs, and a lack of interest among students.

"It's hard to get people interested in tennis now," said Rogers. "It's a lot of work to stay in shape and keep playing."

TRADE IT!

It's fun buying a new camera, or a new projector!

But what do you do with the old one that you've been using for these past umpteen years? Many camera stores (and maybe yours is one of them) will not accept your old equipment on trade...but Jim's campus Camera does.

Your used photographic equipment, in good operating condition, is worth money when you deal at Jim's.

Just one more reason for shopping at the big, busy camera store—and there are other reasons too!

Like the friendly attitude of all the people at Jim's Campus Camera or the professional knowledge that each staff member has of the equipment. We do accept trade-ins— but that's just the beginning! Come see us soon.
