Cal Poly journalists honored

Ah, sweet music.

Kaiuauai, I'm very sad to announce that our favorite music station, KCPX-FM, is no more. The station has been sold, and its programming will be replaced with a new format.

Poly collected more individual awards than ever before in the mail-in competition. Entries from the newspaper and radio were submitted for judging in November. Awards were presented at a traditional Friday night event.

In addition to the individual awards listed below, Mustang Daily was awarded honorable mention in the general excellence category for content, appearance, and quality of writing.

First place in general excellence went to the University of Oregon's Daily Emerald, second place to the Oregon Daily, and third place was a tie between the Daily Trojan, USC, and the Daily Bruin, UCLA.

Poly scored for the first time in at least a decade in the on-the-spot competition held Friday afternoon at the convention. Awards listed below were presented at a banquet Saturday night.

By accumulating 80 points in the competitions, Poly placed third in accumulating behind USC and winner San Jose State. Students from over 25 universities and four-year colleges from California participated in the convention, which featured lectures by cloud professors.

Poly's success and its ongoing success in the industry are beginning to notices: Cal Poly's Journalism Department is being considered as one of the finest in the state.

Between journalists and graphic communications students at University of Southern California, Mustang Daily has become a top-notch newspaper. Not only does it offer students and the community produce professionals ready to enter the industry.

A few weeks ago, Mustang Daily received a phone call from a professor in the School of Architecture who was moved to tears after recognizing his students in the paper's print shop.

In this print shop and other offices, the future belongs to the Poly Press.

But criticism of Mustang Daily and KCPX is not

The Solar Energy Club completed a week of attempted solar panel efficiency tests last Saturday, receiving much positive support for the event at a cost of $400,000 on Wednesday night.

The test was a green, rated balance accompanied by a set of weights. It was generated in hundreds of a pound of a load as a load on a test panel, being generated strictly in pounds. It would be little use in drug trade:

The value of the balance is as much as its environmental value to the city, as it is to the nation as it has assisted in the efficient use of electrical energy.

With the help of six Poly students, the test was conducted by the Electrical Engineering Lab. There will be no questions asked.

Too much beer?

When you're drinking and you reach your limits, don't continue drinking alcohol. Beer is not like drinking water. Both beer and wine are just as potent as "hard liquor.

The amount of alcohol in beer is approximately the same amount as in a marten. So,abolish the myth that beer and wine are not as significant as hard liquor and realize that a lot of beer is a lot of alcohol. All we ask is that you drink responsibly.
