Learning the automotive basics

RF SHELLER

Automobiles are a major form of travel, whether for daily commuting or for travel across the country. They are a part of our daily lives and it is important to learn about their basic components and how they work. In the Thursday Morning Class, we will explore the basics of automobile operation and maintenance.

The class is designed to provide an understanding of how different parts of a car work together to produce the familiar vehicle we know. In this class, we will cover topics such as engine operation, transmission, suspension, and braking systems. We will also discuss common problems that can occur with these systems and how to address them.

The class meets for 2 hours each week and is taught by a team of experienced mechanics. The class is open to anyone interested in learning more about this fascinating field.

For example, if someone is considering a career in automotive repair or sales, this class is a great way to learn more about the industry and network with other professionals in the field.

In this course, you will learn about the various parts of a car such as the engine, the transmission, the suspension, and the brakes. You will also learn about the maintenance of these systems and how to keep your car running smoothly.

Electronics have become an important part of car maintenance and it is important to learn how to use them effectively. In this class, you will learn how to use a variety of diagnostic tools and equipment to help you identify and fix problems.

The class is open to anyone interested in learning about cars and how to keep them running smoothly. Whether you are a car enthusiast or just looking to learn more about these fascinating machines, this class is a great way to get started.

Standing alone surrounded by people

They are strangers united. Every morning they stand and wait impatiently for the bus that will take them to their jobs. Unused to necessity, by circumstance, but not by soul. Although they have been standing next to each other for months, and in some cases, years, their relationships are barren. An occasional hello, a rare, how are you, nothing else. They see each other from behind newspapers and around umbrellas.

Today, though, the barriers will be pierced. The walls shredded. One of their own, a young woman they have all seen standing with them, has been murdered.

"This damn rain, it always makes the bus run late," a man bemoans. "Thel damn rain, it alwayt make* the but run late," a man grumbles. "Just read about it myself. Too bad, isn't it!" a man responds.

"I think she was some kind of business woman. She always carried a good looking purse," says another.

"She was beautiful, I'll grant you that," says the executive. "You have to draw well to get anywhere in this business world," he confirms, adjusting his tie.

"I think she was the first one here," the masked woman says. "Of course, it's hard for me to say. I wasn't standing next to her that early. Have to get my kids off to school, you know. But the few times I've been here, she was always standing and waiting."

"I said hello to her once," the executive announces. "I remember it was a windy day and some papers I had, important ones that had to be signed, kept blowing away. She helped me pick them up, and I thanked her. She had a nice smile."

"Yes, and beautiful hair. I'm sure she had it done somewhere, that woman was knowing. Someone could keep their hair looking that good without having it professionally done."

Return the art works stolen from U.U.

Editor: I am the student coordinator of the University Union Galerie. As coordinator, I am responsible for the safety and security of the works of art or artistic objects shown in this room. It is this responsibility I am writing to you about.

I have had this job, two pieces have been stolen from shows in the Galerie. What makes this a greater problem is that both were stolen this quarter Winter 1979.

The first piece, a Photographic Opulent Illusion, was stolen from the Art Faculty's show at the beginning of the quarter. The second piece, a Guatemalan made Conquistador, made of wood and glass, was stolen from the Faculty Jan 5.

At this time, I would like to appeal to my fellow students and ask that these two pieces be returned. If anyone has information about these pieces, remember that thief is still against the law that you are only hurting yourself and your fellow students. Not to mention the, pain of Cal State Los Angeles students who see the shows.

Author David Thakur is the student coordinator of the University Union Galerie.

Gymnasts place third

The gymnastics team finished third with 108.8 points in the Southern California Athletic Association conference meet over the weekend. However, the third place finish doesn’t necessarily make the Mustangs in the league. Only three schools, UC Santa Barbara, U.C. Riverside and Cal Poly, out of the six schools who competed in the league were able to attend the conference championship.

Cal State Northridge, Cal State Los Angeles and Cal Poly Pomona were not able to attend the meet because of the mudslides in the Los Angeles area.

Coach Andy Proctor said that the coaches will decide in their spring meeting the place finishings of each school.

Spikers take 8-1 record into match

Cal Poly Pomona and U.C. Riverside come to town this weekend for a pair of conference matchups with the Mustang's Volleyball squad.

Coach Mike Wilson's team are riding high following a highly successful road trip to San Diego in which they swept a pair of matches. Thursday night the Mustangs sent rumbles through the volleyball world by ousting San Diego State 15-11, 19-10, 19-7, 19-11. Friday they battled a mental letdown as well as a furious Mustang's backswing 15-11, 19-0, 11-15, 19-7, 19-9.

Saturday's matched against Poly and the Rames with conference rival Pomona was postponed due to the fact that both teams were stranded down south by mudslides on the freeway.

Now 8-1 for the season, the Mustangs will pay Pomona Poly Friday with U.C. Riverside coming in on Saturday. Both matches start at 7:30 in the Main Gym.
