Stadium renovation

Students blamed for failure

The cost of renovating the stadium at the University of California, Los Angeles, has escalated to $200 million. Original estimates by engineering firms were made in January 1979 at $80 million.

During the fund-raising campaign, rumors circulated that Kennedy, under pressure, had agreed to fund raisers to avoid controversy with alumni in quest of money. It was the first year of the university's alumni giving program (direct donations to the university itself) and sources said Kennedy had not wanted to jeopardize the program by asking for stadium renovation donations as well.

"To say that we wouldn't let them touch the stadium is not true. They could approach all the alumni," Kennedy told the Daily Trojan. "The students aren't concerned," asked Kennedy. "The students aren't concerned. Why should they be concerned?"

Kennedy said students and their lack of involvement in the stadium project was the dark side of the university's picture.

However, President of Public Affairs, Robert MacDonald, said Monday and Tuesday are not challenging. Kennedy said in the article was intended to stop the students from being argumentative and from making their statements. "I don't have a chance to speak to them. Kennedy after he made those statements (in the paper), so I can't see what they are saying or if they are accurate."

MacDonald said the students were granted a group of the paper's editors. MacDonald said the students were granted a group of the paper's editors, and the Daily Trojan will be printed publicly for their criticism.

"I have never heard anything negative about the program," said MacDonald.

Cohabitation hassles

Roommates can be your best friends or they can make your life miserable. The people you live with can affect your life, your needs, and your peace of mind.

Problems with roommates are common among many students. It's true that no relationship can be totally perfect. When conflicts arise, it is important to deal with these situations in a mature and constructive manner.

Roommates may argue about who needs to clean a room. It's natural for people to have different opinions and priorities. It's important to communicate and work together on these issues.

Roommates may also have different schedules or routines. It's important to be considerate and respect each other's needs and boundaries.

Roommates may argue about who pays for what. It's important to have a clear understanding of who will pay for different expenses and to communicate about these issues.

Roommates may also have different interests or hobbies. It's important to respect each other's individuality and to find common ground.

Good communication is key to resolving these issues. It's important to express your concerns in a respectful and constructive manner. It's also important to listen to your roommate's perspective and to work together on finding a solution.

Good communication can help prevent conflicts from escalating and can help promote a positive living environment. It's important to remember that living with others requires patience, flexibility, and a willingness to compromise.

A sporting view

Pulling the strings of a champion

Bringing out its corner of consternation, the World Boxing Council dealt a分别 matrimonial blow to Len Green by upgrading its recognition of him as heavyweight champion and appointing Ken Norton to the vacant crown. It was a Just decision.

According to Joe Bachman, WBC president, the decision was based on the grounds that Green was avoiding the top-ranked challenger, Norton, and the council was faced with a decision to be made in the best interests of the WBC.

At its convention in Houston in the last week of November, the WBC ruled that the winner of the All-Japanese fight between Norton and Keiji Usami would go on to fight Norton, who has the WBA title, to face the new WBC champ.

Bachman said both Ali and Frazier agreed in writing to abide by the rules, and he stated that the winner must sign with a promoter of his choice by March 17 to fight Norton by July 17.

Since determining all same six weeks ago, Green has made the world of sports aware of the fact that the heavyweight championship is not a done deal. The promoter has been Bob Arum, chairman of Top Rank, Inc., the sports manager for the late Cassius Clay.

The All American Drug

To many college students today, beer signifies a time to relax after finals, a trip to the local liquor store to buy your keg, a tube to watch the Super Bowl, or maybe time for the next TGIF to get rolling. But what most young Americans don't realize, is that alcohol is America's number one drug problem. Whether it be beer, wine, or hard liquor, an occasional good time can become a bad experience. Look at yourself. Do you sit down everyday to a beer or two for lunch, a few suds after school, and maybe a couple of "water ones" in the evening? You may be oblivious to the fact that you are dependent upon or abusing the ravages of this drug to keep you going. Most of the college students don't realize that depending upon beer is just like being hooked on acid, amphetamines, or any other kind of drug. Beer can also result in just as many interpersonal, social, academic and financial problems as other drugs even if there is no addiction. If this story is familiar to you, you should step to analyze your problem. Alcohol has become a serious problem in this All Poly community. For counseling or care information, contact the Health Center.
