Rain and sun … and sneezing

April brings dry and the hay fever begins. The old-year, dry and broadcasts that it is a plague of many can suffer to the victims of hay fever.

The hay fever season this year appears to be no different. The rains have been in abundance and the hay fever season is expected to be as long as it was last year. It is not known why some people react more than others, but it may have to do with hereditary factors. Collins said.

The most effective treatment for hay fever is to leave the area where the pollen exists. Some may not be able to do this, but it is an option people should consider.

He said the usual way of treating hay fever is with antihistamines. Antihistamines block the release of histamines, which are responsible for causing the allergic reaction of hay fever.

“Many of these people don’t realize how much suffering they can cause themselves,” said Collins.

Collins said that the person’s system needs to be given a chance to react. Some may have almost become allergic to hay fever.

Making money

The Multilateral Currency Agreement of the Bretton Woods system has broken down. There has time been a series of devaluations that have turned the Bretton Woods system into a disaster. The only hope now is for the US dollar to return to its former position as the world's currency. This is a matter of life and death for countries that depend on the dollar for their economic survival.

As long as the US dollar is the world's currency, the rest of the world must accept the dollar's value. If the dollar were to fall, these countries would experience a decision of terms. The dollar would need to be revalued, but this would create problems for the US economy.

To prevent this from happening, the US must take action to stabilize the dollar. This requires a drastic reduction in the money supply and an increase in interest rates. This would cause a recession, but it is necessary to prevent the dollar from falling.

The government must also take steps to protect the dollar. This includes providing guarantees to foreign countries that hold dollars. These guarantees would ensure that they would be paid in dollars, even if the dollar's value fell.

In conclusion, the US must take action to stabilize the dollar. This will require painful measures, but it is necessary to prevent the dollar from falling and the rest of the world from experiencing a decision of terms.

The Jarvis Initiative: Pro and Con

Pro

The people of California will really benefit this year, and in coming years, by the passage of Proposition 13, the Jarvis Initiative.

The Initiative is designed to reduce property valuations in states, by placing a limit on the property's assessed value. This will benefit districts, where direct lower local taxes will benefit all the people in the state, through reductions in the sales tax and property tax.

An added benefit is the promotion of the stimulus for industrial expansion in California.

Con

As a scare tactic, Proposition 13 has distorted the facts of its benefit, Howard Jarvis states. The initiative proposes a long overdue system of taxation for state and local legislatures. It encouraged serious debate among the California electorate.

The passage of Proposition 13 will have added benefits in terms of jobs and Industry.

The currently high property taxes (for business not as a sewer) for industrial expansion and growth in the area will be reduced, allowing for new industry and more jobs. Proposition 13 will also take property payment in the state.

Last year's Proposition 13 was the basis for a two poreaat trend in property tax. All proposals of "quantity of state" and local govt would be reviewed in the courts.

A new, legally defined formula would be reviewed with Proposition 13. Lawmakers would be those with less assessed value standing behind each school, would lose proportionately less revenue because the state is providing more on their budgets already. However, school district taxes get more of their money from property taxes and proportionately would lose less by passage of Proposition 13.

The last year's story might become newsworthy next year.

If voters approve Proposition 13, the National School will be in defense. Proposition for current state dollars—as of legislation and local legal will go haywire with Proposition 13.

The world-wide-known rabbit-out-of-hat and "mysterious" card tricks come to Cal Poly on Saturday night at 7:30 in the University Union.

The show is to be performed by Magic Festival 1978 which was conceived and directed by Steve Silverman, the first president of the American Institute of Magicians, Inc.

Motivation for the festival will be held a week before the actual performance of five professional magicians who have traveled from the San Luis Obispo area. Admission to the festival will be $5 for students, $5 for general public and can be purchased at the ticket box office.

CEO Will hold for 10 days: 10:00 - 1:00 Tuesday thru Saturday.
The festival is styled after the Magic Castle in Hollywood, a club which displays nightly magic acts exclusively for members.

Four of the five professional magicians will be featured in the festival appear regularly. One of the magicians, Dale Evans, was given an academy award for magic in 70. He has been on television's "Magician's Television" series and "Tell the Truth."

Schatz said the most satisfying part of performing magic is whether the performer is "a master or amateur" is "When the audience is genuinely impressed."

You can really tell you have an audience when they call labeling at the same time.

KINKO'S
Inner city life shown at PCPA

By ANDY KRIETEMEYER

Playing people look into the hearts of people and the scenes of people's lives in "The Me Nobody Knows," which opened recently at Allen O'Hara College's Pacific Conservatory of the Performing Arts. The director's different and varied characters that are trapped in their lives is a collection of personal stories written and performed by graduate and primary education students in New York.

The prose of the songs, spoken words, dialogue, and Willard's music is found on a PCPA cast that includes Mira, Matthias, Joanna Jackson, Lynn Poppert and Anna Chmelik all have their beautiful voices to the performance.

The musical hits a high point in the song "Runaway Plates" and a collection of songs. (More info in box) is found at PCPA.

The performers are trapped in their lives and they are trapped in the words of the play. It is true, there are scenes of disconnected lines and it is true that it is confusing to the audience. The feelings expressed in the play are simple. Living in any city makes one feel like the same, whether one is black, poor, or otherwise. This is a reflection of the situations that many of us feel when we look around.

The only problem with the play is that it is disjointed. There are scenes that are not connected and it is often the focus of the play is a different character.

Not deep, but entertaining...

There seems to be a major rumor that "The Deep" is a bad movie. I've seen the movie and I disagree. It is a movie that I would recommend to my friends. I don't know why people think it's a bad movie, but I do know that it is not that bad. The Deep is simply an entertaining film. A film that is enjoyable to watch.

The Deep is a fun to watch. It is a film that has its moments of being an art film, of having a great mood and a picture perfect moody atmosphere. The movie is an adventure about two lovers who are trying to find more than just love in their relationship. It is a story of no more meaningless of deep water and the wildness of the ocean. The Deep is excellent. The underwater photography is great, as well as the dialogue and the plot.

The medical world is set busting by the announcement of Dr. R.U. "Bud" Wiser, after 25 years of solid research, has finally discovered the only cure for hangovers. Says Dr. Wiser, (pictured above), "I experimented with (hiccup), cold showers, black coffee, exercise (hiccup) and all of my Great Aunt Mathilda's (hiccup) and I always felt the same (hiccup)... ROT- TON! I then concluded that time (hiccup) Is the only cure for a hangover. We (hiccup) must wait it out." He went on to say that to prevent a hangover, one shouldn't drink so much the night before. Is this what they call preventive medicine?

Not deep, but entertaining...

Back in 1965, Torborg was the catcher in Sunday perfect games by the White Sox, 21-0 pitched one. Outfielder Tony Oliva of the Minnesota Twins, won with few redeeming characteristics. Plus, they all hit with.

1) Toronto Blue Jays: It's going to be a tough year. But the Blue Jays have a young, good young players such as Bob Cooper and the Yankees. They should be able to help them in their own way.

2) Anaheim Angels: At last long enough years ago will have something to smile about. His Angels aren't bad players. They are young, and most of the Devil.

The pitching is strong. Young men, aging with time, will join the starting staff of Mike Scott and Vince Coleman. It's time to help them.

3) Houston Rockets: Inadequate pitching staff will turn to good fortune. The starting staff of Mike Scott and Kent Hrbek.) The team also has adequate backup in Frank Leach, so they could conceivably climb all the way to the top.

4) Milwaukee Brewers: Free agent Larry Hisle, last year's American League batting champion, will add considerably to the Brewer's staff.

The graying veteran in Milwaukee is a young, un证明 player that registered a disappointing C.B.C. in last year.

5) Cleveland Indians: Probably the most high-profile player to return to the Cleveland Indians is the free agent hitting coach, Harvey Haddix, who played in the National League last year, and will considerably punch up the Brewer's staff.

6) Cincinnati Reds: Perhaps the most high-profile player to return to the Cincinnati Reds is the free agent hitting coach, Harvey Haddix, who played in the National League last year, and will considerably punch up the Brewer's staff.

The starting staff of Mike Scott and Kent Hrbek.) The team also has adequate backup in Frank Leach, so they could conceivably climb all the way to the top.

7) Kansas City Royals: Strong hitting by only absence of hitting by the free agent hitting coach, Harvey Haddix, who played in the National League last year, and will considerably punch up the Brewer's staff.

The starting staff of Mike Scott and Kent Hrbek.) The team also has adequate backup in Frank Leach, so they could conceivably climb all the way to the top.

8) Minnesota Twins: Ruined by the departure of Larry Hisle and Lyman Bostock who left for greener pastures in the Midwest, the Twins are back in the pack. Owner Charles F. Johnson has to make frequent changes in his personnel. Very best wishes.

National League

National League West

1) Los Angeles Dodgers: With a strong and accomplished pitching staff, coupled with a hard hitting club, the team is the team to beat. The Dodgers are the team to beat.

2) San Diego Padres: Even though the Padres lost hitting in the form of Ollie Bechtol and the 3B to the Cubs, the team is a solid team. The Padres are very competitive, and are in the race, and will be eventually.

3) Colorado Rockies: Although the Rockies have one of the best hitting and fielding combinations, this may be the best of the last order, that pitching will be no deterrent.

There is no way Tom Tendler can carry the pitching by himself. The team needs more than one of the most versatile players and pitchers in baseball with a lifetime ERA of over 4.00.

But the big task of Cleveland, Joe Morgan, Johnny Bench and Steve Garvey of the L.A. Padres is a huge challenge for the Dodgers. Peggy suspicion.

4) San Francisco Giants: Los Angeles and San Francisco are the class of the N.L. West and San Francisco, Houston and San Diego will not be able to keep pace with these two teams.

With the addition of Vida Blue, for a year he is the best pitchers in the American League, and the healthy return of Joe Morgan, the Giants maintain one of the most impressive pitching staffs in baseball.

The pitching for the Giants is kept right and left-handed by Gary Lavelle who set a Giant record of 11 saves last season.

San Francisco had one of the worst fielding records in baseball last year and coupled with their anemic bats the Giants have the possibility of being the basement boys.

National League East

1) New York Mets: At last long enough years ago will have something to smile about. His Angels aren't bad players. They are young, and most of the Devil.

The pitching is strong. Young men, aging with time, will join the starting staff of Mike Scott and Kent Hrbek.) The team also has adequate backup in Frank Leach, so they could conceivably climb all the way to the top.

2) Philadelphia Phillies: The Phillies are at the National League Cy Young Award. But he has talent.

The team is led by Bob Uecker who has been with the team for many years.

3) Pittsburgh Pirates: Despite the defection of Steve Garvey and Terry Forster, the Pirates remain in the National League East. The Pirates are a solid team.

The pitching is solid. Bob Forsch has a very good fastball. The Pirates will have enough to climb to third place.
