New front in SLO housing battle

BY SCOTTY CRAVEN

A new front has been opened in the SLO housing battle. The California Polytechnic State University (Cal Poly) administration has announced plans to construct a new dormitory on the campus. The dormitory will provide additional housing for students and is expected to be completed by the fall of 2023. The announcement has sparked a controversy among students and the local community.

The dormitory will be located on land that is currently used for parking and athletic fields. The decision to construct the dormitory has been met with mixed reactions. Some students are excited about the additional housing, while others are concerned about the impact on the existing campus community. The local community is also divided, with some supporting the expansion and others opposing it.

The dormitory will provide 500 additional spaces for students, bringing the total number of on-campus students to 5,000. The construction is expected to cost $30 million and will be funded through university resources. The dormitory will be designed to meet the needs of students, with features such as study areas, lounges, and kitchens.

The construction of the dormitory will be a significant milestone in the ongoing housing battle. The increased housing capacity is expected to relieve some of the current housing shortage on campus. The administration hopes that the new dormitory will provide a positive outcome for both students and the community.

Anniversary festivities in University Union

The 100th anniversary of the University Union will be celebrated on April 7. The event will include a variety of festivities, including a special lecture by a renowned scholar, a multimedia presentation on the University Union's history, and a buffet dinner.

The anniversary celebration will be held in the University Union's ballroom, with seating available for everyone. The event is free and open to the public. Attendees are encouraged to dress in period costumes to celebrate the anniversary.

The University Union plays a significant role in the university's history, and the 100th anniversary celebration is an opportunity to honor its contributions and traditions. The event is expected to attract a large crowd, and the organizers are excited to share the history and significance of the University Union with everyone.

Teacher evaluations a must

Having only a vague idea of what the course outline was, the core of the course, the case was registration. As it turned out, the course outline was less interest in the subject than myself.

Every quarter, I exchange information with students about professors, in an attempt to take classes where professors best test my needs.

At San Jose State University, a paper bound textbook is published weekly. The textbook can be obtained or sold for a reduced price. This textbook has been made available without having to pay for students who have completed a class.

At SJU, many examples of student opinion are as follows:

A. "It rushed through the material, leaving us in the dark."

B. "The presentation, spiced with humor and sarcasm, was just what I like to see in my classes."

It looks as though Poly may follow suit. It will be made available by members of the Student Senate. It will be implemented in two phases.

Phase one, solicited course descriptions from all professors, will be published in a free book offered to students, beginning this summer.

Phase two of the Profile should take place in the fall of this year and will consist of student evaluations of all classes and instructors in a similar format to that used under specific conditions when a course is offered at the school. It is the responsibility of instructors to deliver the product as advertised.

Along with the human rights movement, students are recognizing their own rights. The system is vastly underpaid. Commentator is not limited to the grocery store.

EDITOR: Being the last Interfraternity Council Committee and your Satellite, I would like to bring attention to the fact that some writers on the Mustang Daily staff are able to follow the rules against the Greek system at Cal Poly. Cal Poly is probably one of the most popular schools in California and the majority of its education is highly respected by many. Since Cal Poly is an "open" campus, students need not be enrolled in the college to take part in the many different classes and have them drawn on something that they believe in.

Publishing proposal

Change asked for Daily

By BOBBIE BURNETT

The ASI Senate approved a motion calling for President Larry Snedaker to apply for a publishing license to begin daily operations.

The motion, which was sponsored by Senator Jim Goff, asked Snedaker to apply to the California Newspaper Publishers Association for a daily license.

Snedaker said he would look into the matter and present his findings at the next Senate meeting. He said the Daily would continue to operate on a weekly basis in the meantime.

The motion was approved by a vote of 14 to 0, with 1 abstention.

ASI elections outcome

By SCOTT CRAYON

Only 16.4 percent of the student body turned out to vote in the ASI Student Government elections, with 1,841 votes cast.

The only successful candidates were John Burnley, 17, for president, and John Kelling, 18, for vice-president.

Burnley received the most votes, with 921 votes cast.

The other candidates were: John Kelling for vice-president received 746 votes; John Goff for secretary received 791 votes; and Jennifer Crocker for treasurer received 767 votes.

The Daily's weekly operations will continue as usual, but plans for a daily edition will be made.

South Bay library decision delayed

A decision on whether or not a library will be built on the South Bay campus was postponed for the time being, due to protest by the South Bay Library Commission.

The commission is opposed to the proposal to build a library on the South Bay campus, saying it would interfere with the use of existing space.

The decision will be reconsidered at a later date.

Sweet Springs

Sweet Springs, an environment-friendly sensitive resource, was approved by the commission.

Both proponents and opponents of the library attended the commission meeting in Santa Barbara.

Several stories in last week's edition of Mustang Daily were devoted to Sweet Springs. The project involved building a 6,000 square-foot library with a parking lot about 50 feet from the marsh.

Sweet Springs was approved at the commission meeting.

Faculty overloads lead to frustration

By KEN CROFF
Daily Nulz Write

A faculty overload has surfaced as part of the faculty overloads problem that is occurring at Cal Poly. This overload has increased to the point that many students feel frustrated with the situation.

As a result of a number of full-time faculty and administrative assistants being replaced with part-time faculty members, a large number of students are being assigned to instructors who are not necessarily well qualified. A committee, chaired by Dean of Faculty, Dr. Ronald Goldsmith, has prepared a study which reports that the overload is causing some extreme situations. The extreme situations were reported because overload is causing the quality of education to decrease.

The committee's findings were presented at the recent meeting of the Office of the President and the Dean of Faculty at Cal Poly. The numbers used for the study were obtained from the State Department of Education. The study indicated that the faculty overload is causing the quality of education to decrease. The study also indicated that the overload is causing a drop in the number of students performing well and receiving high grades.

Full-time teachers at Cal Poly have been reduced to a small number of classes per year, measured by a unit. A full-time unit equates to 12 credits per year. Unfortunately, there are a number of criteria used in determining what constitutes a full-time unit. It is extremely difficult for people to agree on how to determine what constitutes a full-time unit. A unit is defined as a minimum of 6 credit hours.

Stats explained

The statistics explaining overloads are as follows: The number of students enrolled in the University of California is 150,000. The number of full-time faculty members at Cal Poly is 1,200. We are up to our ears in books!

We think we are running out of books, said Susan Smith, chair of the Agriculture Department. "We have run out of books, and we are working on a new catalog," she said. "A new catalog will be prepared to show students the types of courses we have and what courses we need to offer," she said.

We have a lot of students who have not been able to register for classes because of the overload, said Smith. "We need a new catalog to show students what courses are available," she said. "A new catalog will help us to see what courses are needed and what courses are not needed," she said.
