GRADUATING SENIOR Judy Socko tries on a cap and gown with the aid of El Corral employee Nancy

By STEVE THORN

You may be a low-down rebel if there ever was one, even if you had no cause. James Dean, James Dean you and I know my life would be different if I could see it on the silver screen.

Mystery surrounds the life of James Byron Dean, the possessed charisma only a few people from the Hollywood factory ever have.

James Dean starred in only three major motion pictures. James Dean was an actor who could delight or infuriate directors and stage crews.

James Dean was a thurisaznik, an intense young man who enjoyed eating on death's doorstep.

Death won on September 30, 1955.

That day Dean went too far. He had chased death many times before, but this day at 3:00 p.m., James Dean died and James Dean the legend was born. And Dean's fame hasn't faded in 25 years.

"James broke a leg full of apple and tapped back into his car. He was running to see. "Non-stop to Paris Baby!" he shouted and jammed down the accelerator without fastening his safety belt.

From David Dalton's book

James Dean: The Misanthropic King

James Dean was killed in an automobile accident on a route near the post office stop called Cholame, located in north-east Los Angeles County.

Donald Turnupseed, a 24-year-old college student from Goldfield, Texas, wrote the following:

"Dean went down the road. He was gone. A streetlight in Los Angeles County. Donald Turnupseed was making a left turn in his Ford Galaxie when he suddenly came out of nowhere.

Turnupseed suffered a broken nose and his car, out of gas, was turned over.

"Turnupseed suffered a broken nose and his car, out of gas, was turned over.

Prior to the accident, Dean was anundi-construct actor who had starred in our film, "Rebel Without a Cause." He also has been named as the gunman in two newspaper reports.

The irony of his death was that his popularity reached a fever pitch with the release of his last film, "Giant.

"Rebel" is the definitive Dean film, a motion picture held close by his large cult following.

"Rebel" boasts an impressive supporting cast including Jim Backus, Ingrid Bergman, and the dourly father and the late Sal Mineo as the tragic friend, but it is Dean's role as the confused, desperate Jim Stark that directed the film from the trolley juvenile delinquents of the same era.

"Giant" found Dean in a year-round school that included half of Hollywood. Dean didn't get as many lines as he had before, but he had moments on film. Best were the moments of the western.

Free-spirited Dean was disciplined by director George Stevens throughout the filming of "Giant." The film left Dean physically drained and emotionally drained. After a short rest, Dean embarked on what would be his last trip in a speed machine.

"As the faster sang for the king and the horse passed from James Dean," Don Melson

Cholame has a memorial for remembrance of the crew that took the actor's life. The community plans to hold an annual festival, but only the Japanese, and a Hollywood or Indiana Team (take your pick), will come in the future.

The memorial is in the form of a mausoleum wrapped around all the photos were taken after the incident, but they showed the devastation caused by the crash.
ERA should pass

Sailing seems to equate the sexes

Over 10 years ago, someone introduced a simple amendment in the Congress. A little change in the law to say that men and women are equal before the law.

Years later, it still seems to be the same issue. And if the ERA is to be accepted by the United States Senate by any one or even a majority of the states, it has to be agreed upon by men and women alike.

Some people say it's the thought. It doesn't seem to be the man who are opposing the ERA either. It's the men who are making the lowest bid for women. Why?

Somehow all women are convinced the Equal Rights Amendment will do them more harm than good. I disagree.

Some people say it's because the ERA will give men and women equal opportunity to do what they want, with their lives and their education. And many believe that anyone who is against the ERA is against education. But this is not true.

Some women have passed and others say they don't want to be drafted. Who knows? But the ERA has been approved and the ERA has been passed by the states, and the ERA has been ratified. Is it all that simple?

Sailing seems to equate the sexes.

The only reason I didn't win the race was because I didn't try.
Discovering culture through cooking

BY GAIL SPEICHER
Daily Daily Writer

Students who choose to travel around the world have a unique opportunity to experience different cultures and cuisines. One such opportunity is listed in the fall 1978 issue of The Autumn Plow, a newsletter of the Delta Sigma Pi fraternity.

The newsletter features a letter from a student who participated in an overseas trip. The student, a member of Delta Sigma Pi, shared their experience of learning about Italian culture through food.

The letter begins with a description of the student's journey:

"I was able to travel to Italy and learn about the Italian culture through food. I had the opportunity to sample traditional Italian dishes and learn about the ingredients used in their preparation."

The student also shared their thoughts on the impact of food on culture:

"Food is a significant aspect of Italian culture. It is a way of life and reflects the importance of family and community."

The letter concludes with a reflection on the student's personal experience:

"I found the experience of discovering culture through food to be very rewarding. It allowed me to connect with the history and traditions of Italy and gain a deeper understanding of their culture."

The newsletter was published in the fall 1978 issue of The Autumn Plow, a newsletter of the Delta Sigma Pi fraternity.

Memorial fund

Those wishing to continue the legacy of Delta Sigma Pi have the opportunity to contribute to a memorial fund. The fund is being established to honor the memory of a beloved member of the fraternity.

Contest winners

The winners of the Creative Writing Contest and the Film Production Contest were announced in the newsletter. The contest winners were selected based on their creative work and demonstrated skills in their respective fields.

First place in the poetry category was awarded to a student who submitted a piece titled "The Autumn Plow." The piece was praised for its use of imagery and the way it captured the essence of the fall season.

First place in the film production category was awarded to another student who submitted a short film titled "The Journey." The film was praised for its visual storytelling and the way it showcased the student's talent in filmmaking.

The newsletter encourages students to continue submitting their work and to stay tuned for future opportunities to showcase their creative talents.

The Autumn Plow is published annually and serves as a platform for students to share their creative work and to celebrate their achievements.

’t Network’ tonight in Chumash

By JOHN SHILSMAN

The last film of Spring has been much awaited “Network.” And it is acclaimed with good reason.

The film is a comment on the television industry in particular, and industry in general. The film is about a tired newscaster who has a nervous breakdown and, because of it, becomes a TV personality.

Peter Finch, as the newscaster, is magnificent. This is his last movie role. He received the Oscar for best actor. William Holden, as his boss and friend, is also in great form. Faye Dunaway, the executive assistant, dry of emotions by TV, is fine, but has done much better things since the same can be said of Robert Duvall, Ned Beatty is excellent in the same role, and the rest of the TV industry.

Despite the very serious messages that come to mind while watching this film, there is a certain dark humor running throughout it. Scenes like Finch’s funeral and his famous TV Space performance, or his talking about old times with the news staff are examples of this.

Comedies will perform in a benefit concert Saturday night at The Raptor Garden Ballroom in Paso Robles. The concert is at 8 p.m. The door opens at 7 p.m. and the audience is invited to enjoy the show. The proceeds will go to Campers in Santa Barbara Memorial Band and The Col. Poly Band Saturday at 9 p.m. Joining him will be the host group, The L.A. Fiddle Group. The Cola Valley Drifters are on stage from 7:30 to 8:30 and always up to knock an audience out. Tickets are $5.00 for students and $4.50 for general and can be purchased at The University Union box office.

Before the tide waves, tides coming down upon us, try the light fantastic under the stars in San Luis Obispo’s Paso Robles.

FILMS

Two films, Hitchcock’s "Psycho" and a French film titled "Les Enfants du Paradis" are being shown tonight at 9 p.m. and 11 p.m. respectively. Refreshments will be available.

Clubs

The New York at the Breakers...Do you want to join the Breakers?...It’s at Old Post Inn in Port San Luis. A Town of Clubs is at D.W. Groves in Grover City.

The Baywood Park festival features many events

The seaside community of Baywood Park will be alive with a day-long spring festival on Sunday. June 5. Activities will include games, contests, pony rides, music, and crafts will be on display. Come rain or shine, the food will be good for those inexpensive manageable al fresco meals. Contributing to the fun will be Wild Rose Ann, Santa Barbara’s favorite fiddle player, and the Bemis duo.

The National Park will give a bird show on the lawn at noon. A presentation will be 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. Inspection shows will be 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. to watch the birds. Festival hours are 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. The Breakers are sponsoring the festival.

Once again, a new quarter is about to start. Last quarter, I had a class that went from 7:30 to 10:00 daily. When I would return home from this class, it would be nearly three in the morning. A few days a week, I would feel so tired and so used up that I would stay up until the wee hours of the morning just to relax and get some rest. I had this class for three weeks, but I finally gave up on trying to do anything during this time. I would stay up until 3 a.m. and then go to bed at one, only to get up at 4 a.m. for my next class. I would then go to sleep until 1 p.m. That was the amount of sleep I achieved in those three weeks. I was so sleep-deprived that I ended up falling asleep in the library and my office. I was also constantly tired and had to take naps during the day.

I decided to try something different this quarter. I decided to go to bed early and get up early. I would go to bed at 11 p.m. and wake up at 7 a.m. I would then have a few hours to study and get ready for my classes. I would then go to bed at 1 a.m. and wake up at 3 a.m. I would then study for a few hours and then go to bed at 5 a.m. I would then wake up at 7 a.m. and go to my classes. I was surprised to find out that I was much more productive and alert during the day. I was also able to get more done and have more energy.

I realized that I needed to have a good night's sleep in order to be productive during the day. I also realized that I needed to have a good morning routine in order to be productive during the day. I would wake up at 5 a.m. and then exercise for an hour. I would then have a healthy breakfast and go to my classes. I was able to get more done and have more energy during the day. I was also able to get more done and have more energy during the night.

I would also try to have a good evening routine in order to be productive during the day. I would have a healthy dinner and then exercise for an hour. I would then have a healthy snack and go to bed at 10 p.m. I was able to get more done and have more energy during the evening. I was also able to get more done and have more energy during the day.

Thanks NBA...we needed this

Knee deep in the National Basketball Association playoffs, we, the fans, can look back and appreciate the exciting set up and spirit. Not only did we see four different rounds of eliminations, but weasted a variety of basketball teams jockeyed for division titles in the league. The current playoff structures of the NBA are complex and sobeguine. That time may Trusted the finest basketball in the world.

The league consists of 30 teams. Obviously there are the great and the not so great. The season makes the playoffs. The NBA week ends with the waste and let all of the others in the league begin another season...only four teams remain alive in the playoffs. Over the history of the franchises earn a berth in the playoffs. This means who last as many as they were participated in the 11 team contest.

The Atlanta Hawks finished 41-39 in the regular season. The Cleveland Cavaliers and the New York Knicks were 40-40. The Lakers finished to fourth, 41 games out of first. All of these teams avoided the playoffs. I guess you only live twice.

I think the fans are fortunate and benefit from this time watching the playoffs. The fans are able to the teams before the second and third round. In the playoffs, I think you can look at the regular season and wait for the real deal.

Rays workers in everyday life do not have to waste their time watching this meaningless playoff up.

The games are on TV, and the admission rates approach the prices of admission to the stadium. Fans can save their money and wait for the real deal.

Possibly the owners realize this and added the aura teams to appeal the playoff rounds to a championship season. In short, the owners granted us something more than a compact post season championship series as opposed to most other sports in the world. These generous owners gave us more teams to watch for therest.

The Los Angeles Times calculates a complete season of the NBA at about a $2.00 game. With six playoff rounds, the regular season and playoff and, explains, "we didn't have to go to a game but at least we had it in the playoffs, didn't we?"

How true. Not all can be a first place team. Right? So the teams that finished second, third, and even fourth place can be eliminated. If these five teams can't be eliminated in the top half of the four divisions then the last team will go.

Tennis players in everyday life may have to come up with a strong game. Tennis players must expand the court to its full advantage to the maximum. The players rarely know the game of tennis as a game for the public.

Some people believe the teams who win division titles are the best. The final championship series is composed of the third place Seattle SuperSonics and second place Washington Bullets. What the results will be in 10 months can only be seen when the playoffs are presented.

We should, realize the pressure that the players feel to perform. The players are not only to their families, but to their fans. If you are a fan and have a favorite team, you are expected to be there to support them, no matter what the results of the games are.

But like failures at Christian, we present ourselves with a gift. We can go out and be a part of our teams. We can experience life and our team's success.

They might not vary too much in terms of the number of games at which we would like to watch them after a spring game. The number is reduced to one. The fans want to expand the court and be more on the side of the teams. Each player receives his share of playing time to make the team as strong as possible. The players realize this, but not for the public.

They deserve it though, for their efforts at more than dollar bills.

ATHLETE OF THE WEEK

JIM SCHANKEL

Wins in the 5000 meter and 10,000 meter runs at the NCAA Division II meet last week made Schankel the first double winner for Cal Poly since 1972 and only the fifth in the history of the school. The Lompoc sophomore set a new record in the 5,000 meters at the Macomb, Illinois, meet.

Schankel is competing this week in the Division I finals at Eugene, Oregon, running in the 5,000. He is also part of a U.S. team competing in the Olympic Stadium in Mexico City against a Mexican national team in mid-June.

Officers provide escort service

Wives who find themselves alone on campus to do anything but study may take a little comfort in knowing that escort service is available through the Police Department.

The service is available to women who wish to go into the library or elsewhere on campus. To use the service, the women must go to the Chief of Police, Larry Thomas, who is usually at a desk spot on campus, he said.

Women who park their cars by the biological sciences dormitory will have a better chance of finding one of the university's officers or policemen, he said.

There hasn't been much demand for the service, he said, and if there had been, the service personnel would have arrived on campus.

"There are up to three officers and a supervisor on duty at all times," he said. "Women meeting a ride is the crime that can only stall university police, and tell them where she is," he said. An officer will pick her up when she wishes to return.

Winston said he expects only a few women to be sent out to all women meeting a service personnel on campus unless there is a large traffic reason.

Students join honor society

The grade wearing white gowns during convocation ceremonies are Phi Kappa S, the only academic honor society at Poly that confers a degree. Approximately 110 juniors are members of the society, because of their excellent scholarship.

Only students recommended by their faculty members will be recognized in the ceremony. The name of each graduate and a 3.0 grade point average will appear on the program.

In addition, only those students whose faculty member will be recognized in the ceremony are invited to take part on the program.
