E.R.A. update

A massive women's rights demonstration was held Tuesday in front of the U.S. Capitol.

The U.S. Senate police estimated the crowd at 60,000, but the U.S. Senate police estimated the crowd at 60,000, but the U.S. Senate police estimated the crowd at 60,000. Police said the turnout was between 60,000 and 100,000.

The women, clad in the traditional white of the suffragists, marched in what ERA supporters called the largest women's rights demonstration in history.

The women radiate across the United States to tell Congress to approve the ratification time for the Equal Rights Amendment. Legislation extending the deadline period for seven years has been introduced in both the House and Senate. The House Judiciary Committee is scheduled to vote on the extension bill Tuesday.

E.R.A., the proposed amendment that would provide equal rights for women, was approved by Congress in 1972. Since then it has been ratified by 34 of the 38 states that are needed for it to become part of the Constitution. The deadline for ratification is March 2, 1982. Opponents are predicting the possibility of obtaining three additional states ratification before the five deadlines.

Note: Pro-E.R.A. members of the House Judiciary Committee, consisting a block of votes, scrapped plans Tuesday for a vote on the E.R.A. extension bill.
Clearing the air

There's something happening here. The Supreme Court has decided to overturn the Federal Communications Commission's ban on religious broadcasts as a violation of the First Amendment guarantees of free speech.

It seems a normal radio station in New York City named Radio One was told that if it broadcast religious services on Sunday, its license would be revoked. The station appealed to the Supreme Court, which overturned the FCC's ban. The Court declared that the religious programs were protected by the First Amendment.

Unfortunately, one of the station's hosts was arrested, maintaining that the station was owned by children, he is in particular.

The Court completed to the Federal Communications Commission, saying that its decision will be reversed. The FCC had never made a ruling before.

The Supreme Court recently decided to spend the FCC's ruling.

Leaving federal law which prohibits the broadcast of the specific words, the Court has granted the station to broadcast a program to address the issue.

Furthermore, the majority opinion wrote that the Court should have been addressing the issue for years.

Religious cult undermining youth

The First Amendment to the Constitution of the United States guarantees freedom of religion. What if the so-called "religious freedom of the minority" is being undermined and even violated? Unfortunately, it is not only by the government, it is also by some individuals.

According to one commentator, the Creative Community of Scientists is a religious organization that has been accused of abuse. The organization has been operating under the guise of a scientific community, but it is actually a cult.

Recently, I observed two of Moon's followers selling flowers on the streets. They did not say they were part of Moon's organization, but members of the Unification Church. Moon has many front organizations, but the largest is the Unification Church. In San Francisco and Los Angeles, his followers wear under the guise of the Creative Community of Scientists, but they are in reality cult members.

We can't go on letting Moon's followers distribute propaganda, gathering people, and influence people. We need to stop this movement. They deceive through appealing promises of love, security, and attempt to indoctrinate students into their movement.

After visiting one of Moon's "houses" in San Francisco, I can report that his iniquity is mindfully hidden, and they are not only not a part of the organization, but they are part of the Unification Church.

Reminding us that there have been too many instances of people relating to the organization. The many disappearances of people and their families are a matter of concern.

According to one commentator, the Creative Community of Scientists is a religious organization that has been accused of abuse. The organization has been operating under the guise of a scientific community, but it is actually a cult.

Reports state that Moon's target areas are Stanford and Berkeley. He is seen wearing a black coat, and New York. Moon is quoted as saying, "With these two campuses, we will clean the country."

I am not sure if we can make it easy. Publicity in the last year and a half has slowed the growth of Moon's organization, but there are some unregistered followers in the United States alone. Still, Moon is permitted to spread his influence.

He works under a tent where he "broadcasts." He is a very clever man, he is a fool, but a program in a program.

Something is drastically wrong when a man of this caliber is permitted to preach his ideas and use methods of indoctrination to spread his message of evil.

His methods are well planned, and the word "indoctrination" is not used lightly. The next time you are approached by someone selling flowers on the street, look into their eyes.

Their smiles are mechanical, their eyes empty, and their bodies are not human. They are not human beings. What you are seeing is not a person, it is an organization. Moon is never mentioned, and they don't even know who he is.

Unfortunately, there is a religious cult. Moon is responsible for this new movement. It has been chosen by God to reveal the revelers. The Truth to the world. From one of his people, I was told.

One day in the near future, when I write as a programmer's office worker on some program, I will do it as a programmer. I will have to be very careful, and speak only what is required to do it. I will have to be very precise, and serve my God with the right words.

Through Moon, power can be obtained only through strength. More followers mean more people to achieve various goals. Followers, easily, etc., etc., etc., etc.

The follower has to be resistant to Moon's methods, but also be able to say yes when they have to say no. I was told by my friends, "He is a very clever person, but..."

I have been told to Moon's behavior, but now I know that these people are doing their job. I was told to keep away from these people, but they are not evil. I was told to keep away from these people, but they are not evil.

If you become confused, feel the church is not right, but I believe that the church is not right. It is the only thing, but I believe that Moon is not a part of my family. I have been told to keep away from these people, but they are not evil.

If you become confused, feel the church is not right, but I believe that Moon is not a part of my family. I have been told to keep away from these people, but they are not evil.

U.S. Nazis stretch tenets of freedom

When NBC broadcast the series, "Holocaust," an account of the one of the most heinous crimes of modern history, the view of many Americans was that it was as much an educational experience as a prime time ratings bonanza. The series provided a rare glimpse of a world that makes us all flinch at its reality but5 suggests that so much our history has been a guilty secret.

The series, however, has also been the target of a new form of protest. "We are against the film because it is slanted against the American tradition," says Carl Haggard, president of the American Nazi Party. "We believe that the United States was founded on the principles of freedom and equality for all people, and we re going to fight against the Nazis who are trying to destroy our way of life." He goes on to say that the party will continue to protest against the film until it is removed from the air.

But other groups are more vigorous in their opposition. The American Nazi Party has filed a lawsuit in federal court challenging the broadcast of the series. The suit claims that the series violates the Nazis' constitutional right to freedom of speech and expression.

"We are not against film in general," said Haggard, "but we are opposed to this particular film because it portrays us in a bad light. We believe that we are being misrepresented and that our point of view is not being heard."

The American Nazi Party has also been the target of a series of satirical advertisements in local newspapers. These ads have been joined by a number of other groups, including the Ku Klux Klan, the American Nazi Party, and the American Nazi Party of America.

But for many Americans, the series is a valuable lesson. "It's a good thing that people are beginning to understand the real history of the U.S.," said one viewer. "I hope that they will continue to learn from this kind of work so that we can avoid making the same mistakes again in the future."

"Getting an education is not always easy for these kids," Cruz said. "They move with the crops, sometimes up to three times a month, and have to change schools frequently. On top of that, the parents often take the kids out of school when they are needed to work in the fields. So the Migrant Program is extremely important, and Propagation is needed to be out there to help them.

"These kids were recommended for the program by their school officials and parents, and I agree with them. Unfortunately, there were only 50 family units served last year, but Propagation is almost up to 80 this year," said Cruz.

The coordinator added that because they were served so rapidly, they were not able to get the kids started in the program very well. They are not being served as well as in previous years.

"The students appear to be enjoying themselves. They are learning about the school systems in their new environment and are adjusting to the new school very well. They are not as shy as in previous years, and we are trying to keep them to that level," he said.

"The program has been a great help to the students. They are working hard and are doing well in school. The coordinator is doing a great job and is doing well in school.

"The students are already thinking about their future education and want to stay in school and do well," Cruz said. "I don't know why Cal Poly was picked as the site for the program, but I think the students are in it to learn and pass on their positive attitude.

"Two students have been honor students, but numerous others have shown that they want to go to college and work hard. They are doing well in school and are doing well in school. They are doing well in school and are doing well in school.

"The students are already thinking about their future education and want to stay in school and do well," Cruz said. "I don't know why Cal Poly was picked as the site for the program, but I think the students are in it to learn and pass on their positive attitude.
A must in your own bunker.
At Cal Poly, recycling rates at your own desk, in any office or dorm.
Through the efforts of Cal Poly groups and students, recycling
is a reality at Cal Poly.

Two waste management programs exist side by side at Cal Poly. The Environmental Center of San Luis Obispo
has been recovering
newspaper, paper, computer
printout paper and punch
paper, and some high-grade layout paper since 1976.
Last summer, an Office
Paper Recovery Program
was started under the auspices of Project ROKT (Restoration of Office and Knowledge of Throughput).
Only high grade Office paper
is recycled through the ROKT program.

According to Ray Pena,
Secretary of Project ROKT
offices, office workers
in the Administration Building and San University Building are the most consistent and most supportive to the recycling program. He pointed to paper bins located throughout the buildings.

From shops, to businesses, to buildings and dorms, the funding for the recycling
program is underwritten
by Cal Poly Foundation employees or state
support.

The program depends on volunteer workers in the various offices.
Another ROKT
COORDINATOR, Ken Larsen, reported "It's
in the personal incentive" for volunteer.

ECOLOGY's recycling efforts at Cal Poly are accomplished differ-ently, according to Ken Hendry, director of recycling.

Paper collection
at Cal Poly is handled by Hendry. Every
other Tuesday,
Hendry drives a truck
through the campus,
collecting paper at various locations to pick up paper.

Allots said Hendry
doesn't have any trouble picking up paper because he sets up a schedule
at locations around the university. The paper is then transported to a subcontractor,
where it is sent to recycling.

"The system works
well because people are more visible when
they pick up paper,
which can help just
as much as
recycling.

All of this is done without the participation of the Office of the President.

Ray Pena said he would like to see all of Cal Poly
students and faculty involved in recycling.

But, he added, "It's up to each individual to participate. No one should be forced to do
